More Fights, Riots
Santa Claus Wins
Hissing the Queen
Beware Arthritis

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FIGHTING and strike riots, spreading from Maine to North and South Carolina, with 120,000 more men ready to go out, is the late labor news. The trouble reaches as far West as Indiana. Tear gas and bayonets played their parts, one worker at Belmont, N. C., is dead of a bayonet wound, another was seriously wounded.

Easy to start a fire, sometimes hard to put it out.

A strike of electric light workers at Des Moines, Ia., put that city and six towns nearby in darkness for four and a half hours, raising the question, what would happen, generally, if strikes should deprive the public of life's necessities?

Governor Herring, of Iowa, decided that public convenience and safety are more important than any labor quarrel, and turned on the light, forcing arbitration by threatening to take over the Iowa Light & Power Companies, with the state as manager and employer.

He meant that the New Deal, and Santa Claus, Franklin D. Roosevelt, would surely win at the elections that were approaching.

Wisconsin supports the "no shooting Santa Claus" idea.

As this is written the New Deal is running ahead of the Republicans anxiously inquiring, "whither are we drifting?" And the La Follette progressive party, promising a better New Deal, to make the Santa Claus' New Deal look stingy.

Slowly everything changes. Even the North Pole swings around the heavens, in thousands of years, pointing first to one star, then to another. Among human beings, the bottom rises to the top, the top sinks to the bottom, as it has been written, "He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree."

The Queen of Holland makes a speech to her law-making body at the Hague, and three members of that body. "Communists," actually rise to shout insults at the Queen when her speech is done. What a change from days that Motley describes in "The Rise of the Dutch Republic!" In those days, when Philip of Spain ruled the Netherlands, it was death even to offer "a humble remonstrance," and the royal wholesale murderer wrote to the still more murderous Duke of Alva, saying that on the whole it would be well not to kill too many of the Netherlanders, as that would interfere with the king's revenue. And now there is no burning alive, when insults greet the Queen. Royalty has learned patience.

Don't trifle with arthritis, or any form of "rheumatism." In some states, according to Dr. Osborn of Harvard and Dr. Jessel of Cornell Medical School, "rheumatism" kills more human beings than cancer, tuberculosis or heart disease. Where there is rheumatism, according to doctors, there is a "focus of infection," often far from the spot that aches. It may be in the tonsils, at the roots of the teeth, or in the intestines. The doctor's business is to locate it. And that is not always easy.

Rex Beach writes in the OCTOBER COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE about a Canadian doctor named Locke, who, by manipulative surgery, no medicine, no drugs, has cured many cases of arthritis, after victims had tonsils and teeth removed without good results.

New York, "all set" to establish a lottery and use the gambling proceeds for the benefit of the unemployed, finds religious groups and individual clergymen denouncing the lottery plan as "degrading and shocking to the city's moral senses."

It is worse than that. A lottery means gambling, and gambling is a vice that kills the sense of honor and makes thieves. A man will steal to gamble that would not steal to eat.

The late, wise August Belmont, head of the eminently respectable Jockey Club controlling the race track detectives, was also a banker. The race track detectives were ordered to report to Mr. Belmont if any of his, Mr. Belmont's, employes appeared near the betting ring.

Any such employe would be promptly discharged because Mr. Belmont knew that gambling makes thieves, and did not want race track betting to make thieves of his employes. If they stole to gamble, they would steal from him.

New York thinks it has found a way to beat the devil around the bush and establish gambling for revenue purposes on a "foolproof" basis that the courts cannot upset, but the city may be mistaken. It may find somewhere "along the line" a judge with respect for the meaning of the Constitution, the intention

LINDBERGH CASE ARRESTS, REPORT

CAPTAIN OF MORRO HIT AS 'YELLOW'

New York, Sept. 20—The Federal board investigating the Morro Castle disaster today heard first assistant radio operator, George I. Alagna, charge that acting Captain W. F. Warms ordered an S O S sent from the burning ship only after "strong pleading" on Alagna's fifth trip to the ship's bridge for instructions.

Alagna described conditions on the bridge as "unintelligible and confused." He said Capt. Warms "just kept pacing" and he had to follow him about and then doubted if the captain recognized him.

The man at the wheel, Alagna testified, just turned the wheel around as though it was out of order and that by the time he had made his fourth trip to the bridge the wheel had been abandoned.

Finally, he said, he saw Capt. Warms leaping over the bridge rail to the foredeck and he explained to George Rogers, chief operator, who had joined him after sending the SOS:

"Look at the yellow rat leaving us here—deserting us."

Alagna, a slight, swarthy youth, with long, nervous fingers, grew faint during one point in his testimony. He called for water, then asked to rest a few minutes.

ASTOUNDING STORY

The hearing room was tense as he droned his astounding recital. He provided sensation after sensation.

Describing his futile efforts to get orders from Warms, he said:

"When I began to realize there was no hope of getting any word out of him I left the bridge in disgust and went back to Rogers and told him in plain English: 'They had a bunch of madmen up there on the bridge and there was no order or intelligence.'

"I thought then we were the only ones on that ship who were cognizant of the real state of affairs. Captain Warms didn't know what it was all about."

"What did Rogers do?" Hoover asked.

"He told me a ship had inquired of the Tuckerton radio station if it had heard of a ship on fire off the Jersey coast."

VOTE TABLE

	Curley	Cole
Scituate	120	69
Mashpee	52	8
Mt. Washington	0	10
Total	172	87

Former Mayor James M. Curley piled up a substantial lead over Gen. Charles H. Cole, his opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor, in the first returns of the primary vote received this afternoon.

The Curley total was 172, the Cole total 87.

Curley's supporters were jubilant, declaring the tabulation indicated Boston's former mayor is receiving tremendous support in the small towns to back up his known strength in the cities.

ODDS INCREASE

Betting on Curley to win was reported to have switched from adds of 2 to 1 to 3 to 1.

A tremendous Democratic vote was being polled throughout the state with indications that Curley would have a wide margin of victory. Boston's Democratic vote, cast under the watchful eyes of 1500 police, was believed to approach a record.

First complete returns were received from the little town of Mt. Washington, in Berkshire County, where all 10 Democratic votes went to Cole. In the Republican gubernatorial poll there Lieutentn-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon received 18 votes, Frank A. Goodwin, 4.

Mashpee, on Cape Cod, was next in line to give Curley 52 votes, Cole 8 and Goodwin 15 on the Democratic ticket. The Goodwin vote there had slashed amazingly into Cole and left him the weakest of the trio.

Mashpee also went strong for

The mystery of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., whose brutal kidnaping and murder shocked civilization, and for weeks kept armies of investigators busy, was believed near solution today. Several arests had been made today and others appeared near, resulting from spending of some of the $50,000 ransom that "Jafsie," as Lindbergh's agent, tossed into a Brooklyn cemetery at midnight, supposedly to the abductor.

President Acts to End Strike; New R. I. Riot

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 20—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, demanded today that the report of the President's mediation board be made public immediately.

Stones flew today in a new Rhode Island barrage as President Roosevelt moved to settle the national textile strike personally.

Windows were shattered in the homes of three mill workers, two employed in the Sayles Finishing Company plant at Saylesville, where the Rhode Island strike violence has been heaviest.

A shotgun blast, fired by the father of John Moore, an operative in the Wanskuck Company mill at Providence, drove away a gang which had stoned the Moore home, breaking many windows.

The Sayles Finishing Company mill opened today under strong military guard, with about 700 operatives going to work in the mill, under the eyes of 50 pickets, who potrolled quietly.

In Eastbampton, the selectmen today asked that E Company of the 104th Infantry, Massachusetts National Guard, be mobilized for strike duty at the Hampton Company mills, where a group of outside pickets were patroling.

Gilsum, N. H., also had a visit

NEW YORK TRACES 'JAFSIE' $50,000

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept 20 — Department of Justice officials said today "hot" leads had been unearthed in the government's investigation of the Lindburgh kidnaping case.

By Intrnational News Service.

New York, Sept. 20—Three, or possibly four men were reported under arrest in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping today at the Greenwich street police station, where all the leaders in the two-and-half year manhunt gathered in the utmost secrecy.

Reporters were barred from rooms above the second floor of the station, where Commissioner John F. O'Ryan met with J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice at Washington; Frank Fay, his New York head agent; Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, New Jersey state police commandant, and Inspectors Vincent Sweeny and John A. Lyons.

The arrests followed reports that large sums of the $50,000 ransom notes paid to unidentified men by Dr. John J. Condon, the famous "Jafsie," had been circulated in lower New York from the Battery to Greenwich avenue and in the department store area around Herald square.

By International News Service

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 20—Indication that some break is expected in the Lindbergh kidnaping case was seen in a statement at the office of Governor Harry Moore this afternoon that unconfirmed reports had reached there of arrests or new developments and that Governor Moore was awaiting a report from olonel H. Norman Schwarkopf, chief of the New Jersey state police.

"Yes, we have heard rumors ofarrests or new developments in the Lindbergh case," said one of the Governor's secretaries, "but we have no verification of anything here.

"At any rate nothing will be given out until Colonel Schwarzkopf submits his report to Governor Moore. The Governor has just left the office for the day."

"We have received no notification of any arrests in the Lindbergh case," said Lieutenant Coughlin, temporarily in charge of state police headquarters. "All I can say is that Colonel Schwarzkopf is not at his desk. I understand he is in the northern part of the state."

Told it had been ascertained that the state police head was in New York in conference, supposedly on the Lindbergh kidnaping, Lieutenant Coughlin replied:

"Well, that's possible but I know nothing of it."

from a flying squadron of outside pickets who took up posts near the Gilsum Woolen plant, operated by the Keene Silk Fibre Mills of Keene. There were no disorders.

At Fall River, Judge Daniel T. O'Connell in superior court, made permanent an injunction restraining members of the Barrowsville United Textile Workers' Union from interfering with the business of the Defiance Bleachery at Norton.

From the side of the strikers and strike sympathizers came a move against activities of armed guards maintained at textile plants throughout the East, and particularly in Dighton.

SEEK PICKETS' FREEDOM

Powers Hapgood, cousin of the former American minister to Denmark, Norman Hapgood, and A. L. Wirin, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, announced in New York that they would begin with the Dighton situation in taking action against these mill guards. Wirin said:

"Tomorrow Mr. Hapgood and I will seek state action against Dighton's armed guard, employed by industrialists who have been driving pickets from public roads leading to mills."

He announced also that Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorney who long has been in sympathy with "causes," will leave for Atlanta, Ga., tomorrow to seek release of strike pickets impounded in concentration camps.

PRESIDENT CALLS TWO

Meanwhile, as the yacht Nourmahal landed him at the summer White House in Hyde Park, N. Y., President Roosevelt flashed calls to both Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire to meet him later today.

STRIKE REPORT DUE

Governor Winant is chairman of the special mediation board whose efforts to effect peace in the industry failed when manufacturers flatly refused to treat with strike leaders.

The report of the mediation board, was later submitted by Winant to the President.

President Roosevelt's decision to intervene in the strike is charged to the crisis approaching with the labor threat to involve 100,000 more textile workers in a strike that has now enrolled 420,000 in the ranks of the idle, caused 13 deaths, countless injuries and millions in property damage.

Not the least of the factors believed to have influenced the Chief Executive is the embattled condition of the state of Maine, where half a dozen communities are under military control and others keep peace only by threat of cold steel, gas and bullets.

Dispatches from Washington said that the mediation board's report contains no specific recommendations or conclusions, but confined itself to a straight resume of conditions in the industry as affecting both labor and capital.

It carries a picture of the economic status of the textile industry, statistics on hours and wages, demands and arguments of workers and the answers of manufacturers.

The news of the presidential summons was hailed at the national strike headquarters, where the United Textile Workers' executive committee had just voted to entrust to the strike committee full power to negotiate settlement.

According to information the President was greatly impressed with the reports he received in conference with Governor Green of Rhode Island at the time when that state was torn wide open with strike rioting and bloodshed.

BIG GUNS AT WATERVILLE

Authorities in New England hoped that the news of the Presidential intervention would stem the increasing flood of violence here that was renewed yesterday after a few days of comparative quiet.

Particularly desirous of peace were the cities of Waterville, Biddeford, Lewiston and Augusta in Maine.

So serious had the situation in the Waterville area become during the night that a howitzer company of the 103rd Infantry of Portland was moved in, marking for the first time since the start of the strike the use of artillery.

TROOPERS INJURED

In hand-to-hand fighting at the Lockwood Cotton Mill in Waterville last night one National Guard trooper was injured, a number of other militiamen and strikers got slight hurts and two men were arrested, making a total of eight pickets seized during the day.

This sort of scene was repeated in a number of other communities and for that reason more National Guard outfits were mobilized during the night.

Nor was all as quiet as it had been in the Rhode Island sectors. In Providence, early this morning, a blast of shotgun fire routed a gang of hoodlums who were stoning a non-striker's home.

The stone attack was directed against an employe of the Wanakuck Mills. Police reported that another worker in this plant had received a threat that his home would be bombed.

INTERVENTION LIKELY

With approximately a half-million workers in the industry on strike and strike leaders threatening to extend the walkout to include more than 100,000 employes in allied production branches, Washington dispatches indicated the possibility of President Roosevelt calling upon Secretary of Labor Perkins to intervene. Francis J. Gorman, strike chairman, already has indicated a willingness to discuss settlement terms with Miss Perkins.

Another likely alternative, it was reported, was that another textile board might be created to make a more exhaustive study of conditions in the industry than that drafted by the Presidential mediation board whose report was expected to be submitted to Secretary Perkins today.

Repeated clashes in the Carolinas indicated that martial law may be declared in both states to preclude violence as mills reopen. Nine plants were reported to have resumed operations in the Carolinas and Georgia. The southern situation was described as satisfactory by George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, but he admitted New England and other eastern mill areas were "not so satisfactory."

Meanwhile, manufacturers in the Passaic Valley of New Jersey took the aggressive by warning participants in the proposed walkout of 15,000 dye-plant employes next Monday that if the strike called in violation of a union contract now in force civil suits would be instituted against each striker.

Bayonets Turn Maine Riots to Hoots, Says Miss Early

By ELEANOR EARLY

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Waterville, Me., Sept. 20—The Lockwood Manufacturing Company plant opened its doors as usual this morning, and the people who came to work were protected by national guardsmen and state police. There was plenty of booing, but no rioting.

The answer was—bayonets.

The space about the mill is roped off, and anyone who trespasses does so at his own risk. Soldiers with fixed bayonets march menacingly back and forth. State police, in blue uniforms and steel helmets, decorate the street corners and there is something decorative about these state troopers. Girl pickets touch up their lips and powder their noses when they march past.

[illegible] heels. Her "dog[illegible] ing her. They talk French and English, these girls, breaking from one to the other with grace and fluency. Many of them are remarkably pretty. The sign they carry says, "Join the union. Now or never."

BUT IT ALL COSTS

On either side of the eight marches a guardsman. The sun glints on their bayonets. Out of the corners of their eyes they survey the pickets approvingly. The pickets being what they are, you can't blame them.

But guardsmen are an expense. There are, at this moment, some 13,000 of them on duty in nine states, at a cost of $37,000 a day. Besides the guardsmen, there are hundreds of police and private guards. And these run into money. Strikes are fun to cover, and interesting to read about, but you can't have them for nothing.

Waterville, to date, is taking the situation lightly. The historic Common, across the mill, is swarmed with strikers. The trodden grass is sweet and damp. Under the big elm is a hot dog vender. The place smells like a church picnic, and if you don't know what a church picnic smells like, you should have been born sooner.

A fat woman kicks off her shoes and sits on the grass. Everybody is in a holiday mood. Yesterday the police arrested Willie Hachey for thumbing his nose and today Willie was in court charged with disorderly conduct Willie is 26 years old, and the father of two children.

Strikers claim tha[illegible]ckwood mills are employin[illegible]nd declare them to hav[illegible] cause of yesterday's rio[illegible] C. Deroehn is hiring men who haven't n't worked for him in two years, and if those guys aren't scabs, we need a new definition. Scabbing means trouble. If they don't lay off, there'll be hell to pay."

But that is only Jabar's point of view. For the most part, the strikers shrug their shoulders. And Willie Hachey—he thumbs his nose.

BAR GIRL KILLER FROM MOTHER

By International News Service

Florence, Ariz., Sept. 20—The plea of Mrs. Ernest J. Turley, the beautiful "American Venus De Milo" of World War days who was found guilty in June of having been an accessory in Arizona's "Ouija board murder case," to have her daughter, Mattie, visit her, today was denied.

Mattie, who confessed that she shot her father so that "mother could marry a handsome cowboy," is in the Arizona school for girls in Randolph, 15 miles from here.

It was Mattie's testimony, in which she declared her mother had asked her to kill Ernest J. Turley, a reserve naval officer, that sent Mrs. Turley to prison for 10 to 25 years.

In denying the plea, prison officials said there was no precedent for allowing the inmates of two separate penal institutions to visit each other.

Mulloney's Special Stock Buying Account Bared

John T. Morrisey, vice-president of the closed Federal National Bank, testified today in the trial of Daniel C. Mulloney and John A. Deery in Federal court that neither of the former president of the closed bank nor Deery was benefited in any way by a loan to the Federal National Company on Sept. 30, 1931, by the Salem Trust Company.

In cross-examination by Attorney Marvin C. Taylor for Mulloney, the witness who was president of the Federal National Bank, the witness said the money paid to the bank benefited the Federal National Company.

The witness revealed that he handled an account for Mulloney which was known as the "D. C. Mulloney purchase special," but that all transactions in this account were subject to Mulloney's approval. He admitted that a check for $17,487 went to swell the assets of the Federal National Company.

The witness said that the check was signed "D. C. Mulloney," whereas it should have been signed "D. C. Mulloney special." He said that cashbook and journal recorded the stock as having been bought by money from the "D. C. Mulloney Special" account, and he said the omission of the word "special" after Mulloney's name on the check was "a clerical error."

The special account, according to Morrisey was used to purchase stock in the Federal National Bank, which, "upon a sufficient accumulation," was sold to the Federal National Company.

Attorney Taylor asked Morrisey if he told Irving G. McCann, special assistant to the attorney-general, the prosecutor of the case, about the alleged clerical error, and the witness replied the information was given the prosecutor last week, but not before the indictments.

He said cash entries in the journay of the Federal National Company, which recorded the words "D. C. Mulloney, special," were in possession of the government before the indicements.

He was asked if he could recall making out a loan on two notes, one for $40,000 and the other for $30,000, from the Salem Trust to the Federal National. He replied he had a very definite recollection of making out the two notes.

He said he made out the notes, the basis for the loan of $70,000 by the Salem Trust to the Federal National Company in the presence of Deery.

ASTOR, 'TUCKY' SEPARATELY FLEE MAULING N. Y. CROWDS

HEIR FLINGS KIN'S FAMOUS HOT RETORT

By Universal Service

New York, Sept. 20—Mrs. Ellen Tuck French Astor was shoved and pushed and almost mauled here—and her husband, John Jacob Astor, III, cited a classic. "Tucky" and her spouse were separated (by a crowd and a church) when the action took place.

At the wedding of Joan Blake and Henry Harjes at the Church of the Heavenly Rest on upper Fifth avenue, John arrived early, alone in his own car. "Tucky," in shimmering green, arrived with the bridesmaids.

RESCUED BY POLICE

When the ceremony was over women broke police lines and surged around young Mrs. Astor, probably curious to see the young girl who had quarreled dramatically with her husband outside a Providence, R. I., hotel on Sunday.

Mrs. Astor cried, "Oh, mercy! Oh, mercy!" as she was bunted around, and policemen finally formed a flying wedge to escort her safely to a waiting limousine.

A FAMOUS REMARK

With young Astor, it was different. He escaped through a side door of the church, but was pursued by reporters. This exchange ensued:

Q—How about a statement, Mr. Astor?

A—You can go a long way with me but you won't get anything.

Q—But the public wants to know.

A—You may recall a relative of mine once said something about the public.*

Astor leaped into a taxicab and hoarsely called to the driver:

BOND INQUIRY TURNS TO N. Y.

By International News Service

Washington, Sept. 20—Investigation of activities of bondholders protective committees, representing hundreds of millions of defaulted real estate bonds, will be opened in New York Tuesday by the special House investigating committee, Representative John J. O'Connor (D.) of New York announced today.

A mass of material already has been gathered by investigators through questionnaires and weeks of secret inquiry.

"There are indications that enormous amounts of money have been paid to trustees and lawyers without justification," said O'Connor. "There is some evidence that after committees get hold of properties the last person they think of is the bondholder—the whole thing is dissipated."

FOUR DILLINGER FRIENDS MOVED

By International News Service

Chicago, Sept. 20—Four prisoners who have confessed harboring and aiding John Dillinger today were behind bars in the Lake County Jail in Waukegan, Ill., whence they were transferred on orders from Washington.

They are to be witnesses for the government at the trial here of Attorney Louis Piquett, Dillinger's lawyer, on charges of harboring the gangster.

Revolver Shot Brings Down Owl

Minneapolis, Sept. 20—With one shot from a .38-calibre pistol, Eris Bjorman brought down an owl measuring five feet in wing spread. He said it had attacked him, and his wife while in the yard of their home last night.

PRISONER LEAPS OFF JAIL WALL

A daring attempt at escape from the Charles street jail today ended on Fruit street outside the jail wall when the prisoner sustained serious injuries after a plunge of 35 feet.

Officials said the prisoner is Joseph Sullivan, 43, of Bennington street, East Boston, sentenced yesterday to six months for larceny. A painter, he was working on a ladder and shifted it to the wall.

He was taken under guard of police to the Massachusetts General Hospital, across the street, suffering from a broken leg and possible internal injuries.

The prisoner had broken from the line of other inmates inside the jail and had scaled to the top before he was discovered by guards.

The yells of the guards to the prisoner to come back could be heard by pedestrians on Fruit street, several of whom declared that they had heard someone say to the prisoner:

"Don't do it!"

The prisoner glancing back shouted:

"Here goes."

He leaped from the wall his arms outstretched toward a telegraph pole he apparently had hoped to grasp and then slide to the ground.

QUICK REALTY COMEBACK DUE, SAYS BABSON

Foreclosed real estate may yet be the best asset of a cooperative bank, it was prophesied today by Roger W. Babson, noted business statistician, in an adress before the Cooperative Bank League of Massachusetts at the annual convention in Swampscott.

Babson predicted higher prices in the real estate market, reduced taxes and a credit inflation that he said would be based on confidence.

He added that solution for real estate valuation shrinkage caused by federal, state, county and municipal taxes was taxation of real estate in accordance with the income it produces.

Speaking of foreclosures, Babson said:

"I can visualize a time when your foreclosed real estate may be your best asset, inflation or no inflation.

OLD NEW HOUSES

"You may easily live to see the time when a 10-year-old house is as antiquated as a 10-year-old automobile."

To explain his statements he offered predictions that buildings will be revolutionized by such improvements as air-conditioning, heating and other pending changes, then added:

"What has happened to transportation during the past decade will hit housing during the next decade."

Babson's speech followed that of Raymond P. Harold, president of the league, in which he expressed concern lest the recent appraisal policies of the Federal Home Owners' Loan orporation may lead to a general reduction of real estate valuations throughout Massachusetts.

VALUE FIXING

Harold declared:

"This is a matter about which our banks have hesitated to speak for fear they may be misunderstood. It is only natural that the corporation guard against lending too much on property it takes over, but, in many instances, particularly in the recent period, it has scaled its appraisals so far below the potential value of the property that the bank holding the mortgage cannot afford to accept the amount offered.

"Unfortunately, in such cases the bank executives have no choice than to foreclose and to conserve for their shareholders the true value of the mortgage."

Harold revealed that there are 3,000,000 depositors and shareholders in the cooperative banks of Massachusetts, while there are less than 300,000 borrowers.

POSTHOLE WAR HATCHES NEW TROUBLES

By Universal Service

Camden, N. J., Sept. 20—Mrs. Elsie Barnabie is hatching trouble for others besides the officials of the New Jersey Public Service Company in her strange "sitting campaign" in front of her house, it developed here.

Mrs. Barnabie is sitting in a posthole to keep the company from erecting a telephone pole outside her front windows. But her campaign is preventing one of her neighbors from eating.

Joseph Direnzo, 23, who lives next door, is paralyzed, and can only eat immediately after awakening, when he is refreshed. Now, according to his brother, Ben, a grocer, he is unable to eat at all.

Ben intimated he would seek an injunction to prevent Mrs. Barnabie from carrying out her announced plan of sitting in the post hole until the Public Service Company gives up.

"SWEEPING VICTORY SURE," SAYS EX-MAYOR CURLEY

By FRANK REILLY

Twelve thousand men and women of Massachusetts, volunteers in the political army of James M. Curley, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, early today began the task of getting every friend of the former mayor to polling places throughout the Commonwealth before closing time this evening.

Judge Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, and one of the Curley campaign directors, estimated today that as a result of the work which will be done by his campaign workers, nearly 80 per cent of the enrolled Democrats of the state will go to the polls.

Former Mayor Curley was in a cheerful mood as he welcomed friends to his residence in Jamaicaway early today. Crowds gathered in the vicinity of the place and once he had to respond to their repeated demands and address them briefly. He said:

"This day will bring smiles to the tired, weary mothers of Massachusetts who through five years of the worst depression in the history of this nation have prayed for a change in our social and economic order.

"While I am convinced that I will carry Massachusetts by a vote of 5 to 1, I urge that every one of my friends go to the polls today to help pile up a vote that will astound my enemies.

"I will be victorious tonight because my enemies failed to debate issues and devoted all of their time to the spreading of malicious gossip in an attempt to destroy me politically. The people wanted a discussion of issues. They wanted to know when their children will again receive the nourishing food of which they are now being deprived, and they wanted to know when they are going to be given employment at sufficient compensation to provide every necessity for their loved ones.

"The eyes of the nation are upon Massachusetts today. The vote of confidence which will be given Franklin D. Roosevelt today through my nomination by the Democracy will resound throughout the nation.

"No man has ever been more bitterly assailed than I have during the past 15 weeks. No man has been tempted more to reply to his enemies than I have been. I declined to make this a battle of personalities because the interest of the people were at stake and if through some streak of misfortune General Cole has become a strong candidate I should have been directly responsible for the creation of a set-up for Gaspar Bacon in the November election. Choice of Bacon as the next governor would have meant the complete collapse of the Roosevelt program in Massachusetts. Mr. Bacon cannot win now.

"Five years of depression have transformed the American people from a carefree, thoughtless people to a serious thinking nation. My landslide vote for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination will be the greatest proof of that."

Capt. Charles S. Bixby, a Republican, and a leader in the work of rehabilitating the disabled American veterans of the World War, in a statement issued today, urged every former soldier, sailor and marine to cast a ballot for the former mayor. His communication read:

"Curley is the greatest friend the disabled veteran ever had. The disabled veterans want Curley at the State House. They know what we can expect from him. They fear for the future without his helping hand at Beacon Hill."

City Councillor Thomas H. Green, of Charlestown, a Curley campaign leader, predicted today that 95 per cent of the vote cast in his district will be for the former mayor.

State Senator Joseph A. Langone, of North End, said that Italian-American citizens of his district and of East Boston would give a solid vote to the Curley candidacy.

Reports from Curley campaign officials in Hampden and Worcester counties indicated that the former Mayor would carry both areas by a substantial majority.

City Councillor Joseph McGrath of Dorchester, Melville Eastman of South Boston and John J. Shields of Roxbury remained on duty at the Curley headquarters until the opening of the polls today, making final arrangements for automobile transportation of all persons who, through ill health, are unable to go to voting places without assistance. McGrath in a statement early today said:

"We want every friend of former Mayor Curley to go to the polls today and register his protest against the treatment which has been accorded President Roosevelt by Governor Ely.

Jack Dempsey Aid Indicted

McKay testified in effect at the divorce trial that he saw Dempsey in Reno every day between April 11 and Aug. 17, 1931. But at a recent New York bunco trial McKay gave testimony to the effect that he was in Vallejo, Cal., during much of the period.

NAZIS DEFACE JEWISH SHOPS

New York, Sept. 20—Jewish storekeepers in the Yorkville section of Manhattan have complained to the police about the defacement of their shop windows during the Jewish holidays by a Nazi sympathizer who used a diamond or a glass cutter to inscribe the word "Jew," or the German "Juden."

The shopkeepers plan to send a delegation to Aldermanic President Bernard S. Deutsch, proponent of the anti-Nazi boycott, today, and determine what can be done. All the shopkeepers whose windows were defaced plan to leave the words on the glass.

The shopkeepers concurred in the belief that the inscriptions are another phase of the boycott of Jewish stores in the German Yorkville section, in retaliation for the boycott of German products by Jews. Some said that their business has been decreasing steadily in an apparent campaign of boycotting boycotters.

Break Is Believed Near in Speer Slaying

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Northfield, Sept. 20—State Detective Albert Dasey, now in charge of the investigation of the shotgun murder of Dr. Elliott Speer, was to hear a story from a former town official today that predictions said might "break the case wide open."

Deep secrecy prevailed as to the identity of the person to be named in the report, but the Boston Evening American learned that a man who had at least three scores to settle with the murdered educator would be advanced as the possible killer.

Further, in a manner of speaking, the man was "on the campus," thus fulfilling state police contentions to that effect.

THREAT REVEALED

This man, according to information, declared three or four months ago that "within a year Speer will be gone." He made this declaration to a woman whose name is also kept secret.

The story the town official will tell Detective Dasey is substantially as follows:

The accused man was a longtime employe of Mt. Hermon School when Dr. Speer became head master. He had worked for years in a subordinate position in the hope that eventually he would take over the duties of the man immediately above him.

When the superior retired, Dr. Speer made a replacement with another person, a selection of his own. This, it has been pointed out previously, was a custom of the murdered man. He ran the school as he thought proper, regardless of custom.

The disappointed employe was enraged at what he fancied was a slight and a reflection on his ability.

Then to make matters more serious, one of the students of the school got into a difficulty with that same employe, which resulted in the man calling upon authorities to punish the boy. This particular case gained widespread attention on the campus and in the town.

Dr. Speer took over the matter, heard the boy and his accuser, and then announced that the youth would not be punished, but placed on probation instead. This, it was said, further enraged the employe, since he considered himself again publicly humiliated.

As a third factor, this man is said to be one of deep and sincere convictions on religion and tradition, and the liberal policies of the murdered headmaster were a source of constant annoyance to him.

CONFIDED IN WOMAN

It was at the peak of his irritation that the man blurted out to a Northfield woman that Dr. Speer would "not be here" for long.

In itself, this declaration is not considered as a murder threat. But coming as it allegedly did, from a man who fulfilled the reputed characteristics of the murderer, it is given a more sinister meaning.

This man, as police have declared the murderer must have been, is familiar with the school, the headmaster's house, all the surroundings.

He is not a religious fanatic, but he is of such an emotional type that they believe his mind might have been unbalanced by self-conjured injustices and his own opinions of the doctor's conduct.

The loss of an expected promotion, the fancied grievance of having a case of discipline taken from his own hands, combined with his opposition to Dr. Speer's views, officials see as three motives for a "revenge murder."

AIR NOW TENSE

The air was tense with expectation of what would follow the revelations to the state detective when it was learned that guards had been placed around the house of Dr. Myra B. Wilson, principal of the Northfield Seminary.

No threats had been made on her life, but the second shooting of the week—that at Shelburne Falls yesterday—has this section in a state of widespread alarm.

It was feared that a maniac was loose when a spray of what is believed to have been gunshot crashed against the automobile of William H. Buker, superintendent of schools in Shelburne Falls.

Posses of students who have been combing the 1000-acre estate of the Northfield schools for traces of the shotgun used in Dr. Speer's killing were relieved today.

Detective Dasey announced that 200 CCC workers from Ewing, older men, who realized the importance of the search, were to be used.

FORM "ANTI-CRIME CLUB"

In the meantime, the faculty of the Mt. Hermon School and Northfield Seminary had banned together in an "anti-crime club" that had for its end the solution of Dr. Speer's murder. Dr. M. Brently Miller, school psychiatrist, led this move.

Dr. Miller was also expected today to complete studies he has been making on several mentally-deficient students who have attended the Mt. Hermon school.

Officers With Heart Ignore Warm Loot

Two husky limbs of the law, Chief of Police Patrike J. McDonnell of Randolph and Patrolman Patrick Meilly of the Fields corner station, in search for a man wanted by the police of Randolph for several breaks there, tip-toed their way into the man's home in Dorchester today, but they came away without their man.

There were three little children huddled together in a single bed, and three blankets stolen from the Knights of Columbus building in Randolph covered their bodies. Said the chief:

"There's the loot, but I'd rather lose my right eye, then take them away from those kids."

The father was not home. The mother was at work. The children were sleeping, comfortable and warm, under the woolen K. of C. blankets.

BIG HIGHLIGHTS TO WATCH IN PRIMARY

FIRST RETURNS GIVE CURLEY BIG LEAD

CURLEY TAKES LEAD

Curley surged far in the lead with Scituate's complete vote. There he got 120 to Cole's 69 and Goodwin's 2 on the Democratic ticket. The Republican tabulation gave Bacon 184, Goodwin, 74.

In the Mt. Washington count, David I. Walsh carried the Democratic slate for U. S. Senator, with 10 votes.

HAIGIS AHEAD

John W. Haigis, Republican candidate for lieutenant-governor, polled the largest individual vote with 22, while on the Democratic side Joseph J. Hurley poled 10 and Francis E. Kelley none.

Oscar U. Dionne, Republican candidate for state treasurer, received 17 votes and his oponent, Thomas M. Vinson, 2.

Elizabeth W. Pigeon and Alonzo B. Cook received the only votes for Republican auditor nomination, the former polling 15 to Cook's 7. Thomas H. Buckley polled the 10 Democratic votes for auditor.

Features of the early returns were Curley's great strength in towns where Cole supporters had expected to match the former mayor and Goodwin's strngth on the Republican ticket, indicating Bacon had a real contest on his hands.

Boston police were out in a force of 1500, in uniform and plain clothes, guarding the polling places with orders to preserve order and prevent crowds of non-voters from gathering. All days off were cancelled and reserves were held at the stations.

A squad of 20 deputy marshals was at the Federal Building ready for a call to any congressional district should voting get out of control.

Curley enthusiasm was likewise marked in the voting throughout the State, and Curley supporters were so encouraged by the morning balloting they predicted the Boston ex-mayor would come into his home city with a substantial lead rolled up outside.

Cole supporters admitted their candidate had no chance unless he came into Boston with a 20,000 lead, and the Cole chances faded when it became apparent he might have no outside lead at all when the Boston counting began.

VOTING REPORTED

Boston's morning vote was reported to police headquarters by division leaders as follows:

North End, heavy; South End, heavy; South Boston, very heavy; East Boston, very heavy; Dudley street, heavy; Roxbury Crossing, fair; Fields Corner; heavy; Jamaica Plain, heavy; Brighton, heavy; Charlestown, fair; Back Bay, light; West Roxbury, fair; Hyde Park, light; Mattapan, light.

At noon a total of 2500 votes had been cast in the 17 precincts of Ward 2, Charlestown. The majority of voters during the morning were women.

Over 1800 votes were cast in Ward 6, South Boston, during the morning. The entire 15 precincts reported heavy voting in the afternoon.

In precinct 11, Ward 3, in the South End, police warned several workers who tried to pass out handbills, but no arrests were made.

East Boston precinct officials reported a record Democratic turnout, and heavy Republican voting as well. More than 2500 ballots were tabbed in 20 precincts there during the first hour.

Curley workers were everywhere in the district and there was also great interest in the three-cornered battle for the Democratic nomination for Congress between Congressman oJhn R. Douglass, Representative John P. Higgins and former Councillor James H. Brennan.

South Boston and East Boston were also major battlegrounds in the Foley-Mulhern contest for district attorney.

EARLY VOTE IS HEAVY

Upwards of 1500 ballots were cast in Wards 9 and 10 during the first hour.

Extra police on duty there were part of the uniformed force of 1500 assigned to the polls or held in reserve at headquarters and stations in event of trouble. State election supervisors were also on duty in Ward 9.

In many polling places in Boston crowds appeared an hour or more ahead of the opening time, apparently misled by publication, yesterday, of the opening hour as 6 o'clock. The result was there were long lines at the booths when the doors opened.

Another feature of the city balloting was an extra police guard established over the polls in Wards 9 and 10, Roxbury, following a report that an attempt might be made to intimidate voters. No attempt was reported during the early hours.

BIG CURLEY LEAD SEEN

The Boston voting indicated that the Curley lead here over General Charles H. Cole would far exceed the conservative 25,000 estimate.

Only one mishap was reported. The ballot box installed at the Christopher Gibson School, Ronald street, Dorchester, failed to function.. It was quickly replaced by the election commissioners.

Noon marked the beginning of the heaviest voting in Wards 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17.

FOLEY VOTES EARLY

Earliest of the candidates to vote was District Attorney Foley, who cast his ballot at the Bigelow school, West Fourth street, South Boston. Mrs. Foley accompanied him.

The size of Boston's vote, the Curley-Cole contest, the Foley-Mulhern battle, the 11th district Congressional fight, and the Joseph L. Hurley-Francis E. Kelly contest for the lieutenant-governor nomination held chief interest for the Democrats.

In the Republican field, interest centered in the size of the lead Gaspar G. Bacon was expected to pile up over Frank A. Goodwin; the size of the vote for John W. Haigis, unopposed for the lieutenant-governorship nomination; Congressional fights in the seventh and eighth districts, and the contest in the third district for Governor's council between Frank A. Brooks, Margaret McGill and Russell A. Wood.

BIG SUBURBAN VOTE

Earlier opening of the polls in some suburban Boston cities and towns also saw heavy balloting. Voting began in Reading and in Braintree at 5:45.

Early voters encountered a heavy fog that beclouded everything but the issues involved. Later the sky cleared and the sun shone.

In Chelsea 1,400 ballots had been cast in the six wards of the city during the first two hours.

No trouble had been reported and the usual police detail was on hand at the polls.

A large number of workers for both former Mayor Curley and General Cole were on hand at all of the voting booths and rushing about the city in automobiles to get out the vote.

BROOKLINE WAITS

An early morning light vote was cast in Brookline during the first two hours of polling.

In this town seven voting precincts all over the town reported only 110 votes.

Today's result is being closely watched by the Republican bigwigs in nation and state. A win for Curley will swing the Massachusetts Democracy squarely in line behind the New Deal, with Maine and other states, where bye-elections have been held. It will make the issue a clear-cut one in the coming election battle against the ultra-conservative Republican gubernatorial standard-bearers, Gaspar G. Bacon and Robert M. Washburn.

BIG VOTE EXPECTED

Two years ago 309,252 Democrats went to the polls in the state, of which 118,410 were in Boston. Before the Boston polls close tonight at 8 p. m., election officials look for a total Democratic vote of at least 150,000 and a corresponding increase in the rest of the state.

The submergence of Republican contests by the Democratic free-for-all is expected to keep the G. O. P. turnout down to around 400,000, what is was two years ago.

Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, credited with having conducted an effective campaing for the G. O. P. nomination for governor against Bacon, the Worcester convention choice, is expected to better his previous nomination attempts, when he received around 170,000 votes.

With the possible exception of Ward 17, Dorchester, where Street Commissioner Owen Gallagher and several appointees of Mayor Mansfield reside, former Mayor Curley should carry every ward in the city handily, over General Cole.

And, although reports indicate that Curley will win practically every city in the state, Cole men are stubbornly disputing the fact. Places like Lawrence, Lynn, Haverhill, Lowell, New Bedford, Cambridge, Fall River, Woburn, Waltham and Chelsea, appear certain to give the former mayor substantial leads.

Better than even breaks are indicated in Springfield, Pittsfield, and other cities. Mayor John C. Mahoney of Worcester expects that city to go to Cole by 2500, but Curley men dispute the power of the local mayor to deliver.

OTHER LIVELY BATTLES

Curley's majority in Boston over Cole is placed conservatively at 25,000, but may go higher. Cole, it is figured, must come into Boston at least 20,000 in the lead, to be within striking distance.

Lively battles are on only in two congressional districts against sitting members of the national House. Congressman William P. Connery is being opposed by Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn, and Congressman John J. Douglass of East Boston, has four opponents, two of whom, Representative John P. Higgins of the West End and former Governor's Councillor James Brennan of Charlestown, are considered dangerous to Douglass' renomination.

Higgins has the endorsement of the famous Henricks Club, presided over for many years by the late Martin Lomasney. Douglass, however, was a personal favorite of the departed Mahatma.

Mayor Joseph L. Hurley of Fall River, Democratic convention choice for lieutenant governor, is being opposed by Francis Kelly of Dorchester.

WATCH BARRY VOTE

Representative Paul A. Dever of Cambridge, Thomas Buckley of Abington, Joseph Santosuosso of Boston, convention named for attorney general, state auditor and secretary of state, also have opposition, but are expected to be nominated without trouble.

The size of the vote former Lieutenant Governor Edward P. Barry of Jamaica Plain, will roll up against David I. Walsh, for United States Senator, is outstanding interest in today's voting.

Congressman George Holden Tinkham, Back Bay Republican, is being opposed on stickers by John Heffernan, Democrat. Tinkham always has managed to retain his popularity in the Democratic ranks.

Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell is being challenged by John M. King, war veteran, whom she defeated two years ago.

RUSSELL SHOULD WIN

Because of the Democratic decision this year to "go after" Robert Luce of Waltham, veteran Republican congressman, the result of the Democratic battle for the honor of opposing him in the November election, is attracting national interest.

Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge, running against Albert L. Brophy of Waltham, and Frank L. White of Newton, has the backing of James Roosevelt, resident of Cambridge, and is expected to be an easy winner.

Miss Curley Honored

MISS MARY CURLEY MME. ILONKA POTTOSKY

Mary Curley, daughter of former Mayor James M. Curley, Democratic candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, was presented with a bouquet by Mme. Ilonka Pottosky, when she attended the huge rally at Symphony Hall in honor of her father.

FREED 2D TIME, SHE GETS FIRST MATE'S NAME

Although her first husband divorced her 10 years ago in Ohio, Mrs. Myrtle E. Sexton, 37, of Surfside road, Lynn, today had the right to resume his surname.

The right was granted her by Judge Edward B. O'Brien in Salem probate court, where the woman received a divorce from Manuel Sousa on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

A "campaign for liberty" which Sousa began a year after he married her in 1929 was detailed by Mrs. Sousa to the court.

He slapped her, struck her with his fists, and refused to pass her anything at the table, she said.

"He kept talking about wild parties he had been on," the wife testified, "and about a girl in Michigan."

Judge O'Brien gave their liberty to four other women in the same session of court.

Mrs. Hazel M. Carone of Essex street, Lynn, got her divorce from Frederick Carone, a wrestler, when she told of his attacking her with a razor.

Mrs. Leontine Thibault of Salem was freed from Albert Thibault on the ground of habitual intoxication. Mrs. Queena A. Snyder of Lynn won a divorce from Harry E. Snyder of New York on grounds of desertion, and was granted custody of a 12-year-old son.

U. S. NAVY PLAN IRES JAPAN

By Associated Press

Tokio, Sept. 20—Vernacular newspapers today splashed the headlines "Japan the Target," and "Japan an Imaginary Enemy" over the announcement of Secretary Swanson's plans for the United States fleet's 1935 Pacific maneuvers, which call for operations in the Puget sound-Hawaii-Alaska triangle.

A spokesman for Admiral Mineo Osumi, Naval Minister, said:

"There is no reason for the Japanese navy to be sensitive concerning the American plans. All navies hold maneuvers and it always is necessary to have an imaginary enemy. We do not care to criticize the United States Navy's choice of the theater of maneuvers or imaginary foe."

The same spokesman said Admiral Osumi had not decided where Japan would hold its maneuvers next year.

Policy Dropped on Quintuplets

Callander, Ont., Sept. 20—W. H. Alderson, spokesman for the guardians of the Dionne quintuplets sisters, said here all negotiations towards insurance for the 114-day-old infants had been cancelled.

Alderson denied a report by an insurance executive that an application had been made and said the guardians had done no more than inquire on rates for maximum insurance protection for the children.

All five children, recently ill with intestinal toxemia, gained weight, leading to the belief they had recovered.

N. H. Board Named for Farm Loans

Rochester, N. H., Sept. 20—Four representatives of the Concord Production Credit Association have been designated in this county to handle inquiries and applications for short-term loans to farmers.

The men named are Perley I. Fitts, of Durham; Alfred C. Brainered of Dover, Albert H. Brow of Bow Lake, and W. P. Thompson of Farmington.

25,000 in Welsh Mines May Strike

London, Sept. 20 (INS)—In a last-minute attempt to avert a strike of 25,000 Welsh coal-miners, representatives of the miners will reach London today to seek government aid for the restoration of 1931 wage levels.

Mine owners assert that they are losing money under the existing wage scale. It is hoped a compromise may be reached.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

MAYOR TO OPEN NEW STORE

Mayor Mansfield will exchange keys tomorrow with Joseph Levy, founder and president of the Crawford clothing chain, when the mayor officiates at the formal opening of the new Crawford quarters at 595 Washington street.

First Mayor Mansfield will be given the keys to the new store, and will open it on his way to the City Hall. Later in the day, he will give Levy the key to the city. The store ceremony will take place at 10 o'clock.

Pointing to the Crawford move to larger quarters as one of the many signs of general business recovery, Levy said:

"Business is not nearly so bad as some would have you believe. True, it could be better—but why wait? These are days of golden opportunity for the hustler, the man of enterprise, the business man with courage and vision. Men should realize that. The sooner they do, the more rapid will be the recovery of this nation."

of those that wrote it, not interested in subterfuges.

A man past fifty, not identified, with a bullet in his head, sat leaning, dead, against a tree trunk, a new pistol between his knees, near him a note reading, "Thanks to the Creator of the universe for leaving the way out of a chamber of tortures of the stupid civilized cannibals."

Others give thanks to the "Creator of the universe" for enabling them to hold on, cannibals or no cannibals, and make headway against the current.

All German pastors have been told by Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller that they must become active Nazis or stop preaching, otherwise "lose their jobs."

Everybody, pastors included, according to the reichbishop, should be forced to join the Nazi party, "even though he doesn't understand Nazism."

One small news item indicates that "the next war" will be a real war. One of the "75's," French cannon, has been successfully fired from an airplane. Five shots were fired from a big French bomber, with no damage from shock or vibration. The "75," cannon that Lord Northcliffe called "the most useful weapon invented in the whole war," will be more useful than ever, firing from airplanes above the clouds.

POLICEWOMEN TRAIL 'APE MAN'

By Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 20—Straight-shooting police women set out today to pick up the trail of an "ape-man" moron.

For several days he has terrified women in northside districts — dropping suddenly in their path from the lower limbs of trees where he waits. So shocked have the women been who have seen him, that the description given police are confusing and contradictory.

But early yesterday—and police said they believed it may be the same man—a short stocky man of about 24, accosted six girls homeward bound from a club meeting.

Without a word, he lashed out with a pen-knife and fled. Miss Marie Griffin, 19, an attractive stenographer, clutched at her throat, and screamed. Five stitches were taken at a hospital to close the wound.

Sze Denies Using Relief for Guns

Washington, Sept. 20—Dr. S. K. California's Democrats Put Drive Up to Sinclair

By International News Service

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 20—Conservative Democratic leaders were prepared to place today's State Democratic convention "in the lap" of Upton Sinclair, life-long Socialist who captured the party gubernatorial nomination in California.

In addition, they prepared for submission to Sinclair a "modified" platform which "toned down" the EPIC (end poverty in California) platform upon which Sinclair ran far ahead of regular Democratic candidates for governor.

The new platform included a number of the EPIC plans which the "right wing" of the party denounced in the primary campaign as "strongly Socialistic."

By giving Sinclair control of the convention, responsibility for the platform will rest upon the candidate rather than the conservative, old line Democrats, the leaders asserted.

SOCIALISM SCORED

With the hope of incorporating the least objectionable of the EPIC planks in a moderate, yet progressive, platform, George Creel, defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination, helped draft the "modified" platform at conferences lasting into the early hours of today.

Denouncing Republican rule in state and nation, the Creel draft asserts:

"Unitedly, wholeheartedly, we declare unalterable opposition to Socialism, Communism, Fascism or dictatorship in any form."

Common planks in both platforms included the following:

Repeal of the present 2½ per cent state sales tax.

TAXATION EASED

Enactment of a state income tax on corporations and individuals.

Increase in bank and inheritance taxes, the Creel plank modifying the original EPIC plans.

Exemption of homes and farms occupied by owners from taxation to the extent of $1000. The EPIC exemption was $3000.

Protection of aged, blind, disabled and widowed mothers of helpless children by the federal Government in accord with President Roosevelt's proposed program, but with support and co-operation by the state. This was in recognition of the Sinclair plan for a state $50 a month pension to these classes of people who have resided in California three years.

Regarded as hitting the EPIC platform, was the Creel plank which pledged protection of ownership of property rights.

CHURCH DANCE ESCAPES BAN

Unless state authorities decide differently today, the dance of Miss Erica Thimey which will convey a new idea of worship to the congregation of the First Parish Church, Waltham, "through the swinging body," will be allowed.

Mayor Frederick L. MacDonald of Waltham said that he contemplated no action. A local statute forbids music and dancing for entertainment on Sunday but the dances at the First Parish Church are said to be not for amusement but for worship. Rev. Kenneth C. Gesner, minister of the church, will confer with state authorities today.

FATHER HUNTS HARVARD BOY

Temagami, Ont., Sept. 20—Accompanied by three guides, E. Franchot, Niagara Falls, N. Y., lawyer, prepared to push into the wilds near Lake Temagami today in search of his missing son Stanislaus and his companion Davis Reisman, Harvard graduates.

The youths paddled into the forest two weeks ago and have not been heard of since. They had only a limited food supply with them, but persons familiar with the area say the abundance of fish and game would prevent famine.

WOMEN TESTIFY IN ATTACKS

Trial of John E. Newhall, 34, of Main street, Malden, charged with attack with a dangerous weapon with intent to murder, is scheduled to be resumed in Middlesex superior court at East Cambridge today.

Two Cambridge women took the stand and testified that they and two women companions were beaten with a lead pipe by Newhall last May in the Middlesex Fells reservation.

Two of the four women who were injured at the time who have testified are Mrs. Margaret Harter and Miss Ethel J. Holton, both of Prescott street, Cambridge. The other two women are in Indiana.

Maine Pays $1000 to Guard Ballots

Augusta, Me., Sept. 20—The sum of $1000 was taken from the state contingent fund by Governor Louis J. Brann and the executive council to defray the expense of guarding ballots cast in the state election September 10.

Day and night the ballots, stored in the state house dome, have been watched by armed guards employed by Secretary of State Robinson C. Tobey.

ALAGNA CHARGES MORRO SHIP BRIDGE ALL CONFUSED DURING FATAL BLAZE

He also told ho mhe and "all the deck department" kept kerosene stored in a wooden locker behind the radio room to mix with the polish paste the Ward line provided for the ship.

Inflammable polish, kerosene and other explosives or inflammable materials are strictly forbidden on board passenger ships by federal regulations.

Alagna, whose testimony has been awaited with eagerness because of charges he is understood to have made before a federal grand jury investigating the disaster, told a story of smoke and leaping flames and fire hose twisting slowly under low pressure.

SAW SMOKE FIRST

When he first went into the radio room, two or three minutes after being awakened by tramping feet about 3 a. m., Alagna said there was smoke but no fire at the radio. The smoke came from directly below the radio room, he said.

Before he entered the room he saw flames leaping so high above the room's roof that he believed the fire had been burning at least an hour before he awoke.

In the closet in the radio room there was smoke, he said. It was in there, Alagna told the board that mattresses and some combustible polish was carried.

The polish, he said, was a paste which when being used, was mixed with kerosene to make it mre effective.

Alagna said that he had been told the kerosene was kept in a locker behind the radio room and that all the sailors, the deck department and the officers knew that it was kept there.

When we had gotten the order to send the SOS and started back to the radio room, Alagna testified, the smoke was so dense that he blundered past the radio room and it was not until flames leapt up in front of him that he realized it and had to turn back.

The SOS was sent at 3:25 a. m. Alagna testified. The position was given as 20 miles off Scotland Light.

Alagna said that he remembered each trip he made to the bridge because each was significant in that he got no cooperation from the bridge. He said that he made all the trips but one on his own initiative and after each had to encourage Rogers.

It was at 3:15 that the "Stand-by" signal was sent out without orders from the bridge after Alagna had reported back to the radio room for the third time without orders.

Alagna took the stand just after Acting Captain William F. Warms of the ill-fated liner came into the hearing room and handed a note to Chancey Clark, Ward Line counsel.

Alagna, questioned by Hoover, said he realized he might be dismissed for starting a strike, but said he took the step because the food and dining conditions were revolting to him, "because I was just out of college."

Alagna testified he was first assistant radio officer on the Morro Castle at the time of the fire, had been on the ship as such approximately one month and that he joined the ship as third assistant about four months ago.

He said his full name is George Ignatius Alagna and that he lives in Wallingford, Conn.

"About a month ago," he said, "when Rogers took one trip off I was promoted to chief officer with the captain's consent."

"Was that Captain Willmott? (Captain Robert R. Willmott, who died the night before the ship burned)."

"Yes."

"You held it one trip?"

"Yes, I was replaced as chief officer the following trip by Rogers."

Alagna, questioned regarding allegations by other witnesses that he fomented trouble, said he was discontented with the food and sanitary conditions on board and lent assistance in circulating a petition to the Captain requesting correction of conditions.

Hoover asked him:

"Had you ever had trouble on the ship?"

Alagna said he had.

"Was there a strike on the ship?" asked Hoover.

Alagna said it was decided to call one as "it was time to do something about conditions."

The radio operator spoke in a barely audible voice despite instructions from Hoover to "speak up."

The board listened to the testimony in strained positions, leaning forward to catch the words.

TAKEN FROM WATCH

Alagna said he had been forced to act as a "flunky" on ship and this "endangered" the ship because it took him from his work in the radio room.

"Did they take you off your regular watch?"

"On freights ships they did."

By "they" he referred to the Ward Line.

"Did you know of any examples like that on the Morro Castle?"

"Yes, sir, one of the men was always taken off to take care of the public address system."

"Was the watch uncovered?"

"No, sir, some one else was called."

"Then it was not uncovered," Hoover said, "but some one else was gotten out of bed to fill in?"

"That's right."

"Did you have any other trouble on the Morro Castle beside the petition?"

"Yes, sir."

"What?"

USED RADIO FOR MUSIC

"The direction finder was used to get radio broadcasts and interfered with the work."

"Who used it?"

"Mr. Freeman, the first officer."

Algana said on one particular day, Freeman used the direction finder extensively.

"I called the bridge and asked whoever was using it to stop listening to the music. I told them that since I was on watch and responsible for the equipment I had a right to object.

"Mr. Freeman said, 'I'll take this to the captain and have you fired.'"

"Did he report this to the captain?"

"He said he did and the captain was very much upset."

"Now let's get to the night of the fire. First, did the Ward Line receive any message from the ship before the SOS?"

"Mr. Rogers sent one."

"What was it?"

NONE SENT OF FIRE

"He informed them of the death of Captain Willmott and asked an acknowledgment."

"I mean right before the fire."

"Not to my knowledge."

Alagna said the noise outside his room awakened him before the fire.

"Who woke him?"

"I did."

"Who was on watch?"

"Maki. Rogers ran out then," Alagna said, 'as Maki appeared at the door."

"What time did you awaken?"

"CURSING OUTSIDE"

"Three o'clock or three or four minutes before, I was awakened by tramping and cursing outside."

"How much fire did you see?"

"It was enough to illuminate the radio shack. It led me to believe it had been burning for at least an hour."

"An hour!" ejaculated Hoover. "That's interesting. What made you believe that?"

"Well, when I looked out of the port hole, I saw the flames far above the top of the radio shack.

"I went to the radio room. There was smoke in the radio room when I got there. In the closet, it seemed. We carried out mattresses and some things like that, and some combustible polish—"

KEROSENE IN LOCKER

"Combustible polish?"

"Yes, sir, but it was not in its original form. It was a paste. I was told that if I went to a locker behind the radio room I would find some kerosene, which if mixed with paste would make an effective polish."

"Who knew that kerosene was there?"

"The sailors and the whole deck department."

"Was this known by the officers?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know if the stewards bootlegged this stuff in?"

"No, sir."

"Well, at about 3:02 there was smoke but no fire at the radio. The smoke came from directly below the radio room. I saw a lot of men standing near a boat opposite the radio room."

"Was any officer there directing the work?"

"ALL CONFUSION"

'No. They were just standing there sort of waiting for orders."

Alagna said he started for the bridge, stumbling over hose and passing men cursing low water pressure. At the bridge, there was a lot of smoke.

"There was a lot of hollering on the bridge. Everything was unintelligible and confused. I at once surmised everything was in confusion."

"You went back to Rogers in the radio room, did you?"

"Yes, sir; I went back and told Rogers of conditions on the bridge and gave him encouragement. I tore down life preservers, one for myself and one for Rogers."

Alagna was obviously upset and asked for a brief respite. He was given a chance to rest.

"Did you suggest to Rogers you go to the bridge?"

"Rogers suggested it to me."

"Go on."

"As I went forward the smoke seemed to be more densst. In the wheel house, the man at the wheel was turning the wheel in different directions as though it was out of order and other men on the bridge were running around."

NOT RECOGNIZED

"I told Captain Warms that I as sent there by Mr. Rogers but I had to follow him around before he noticed me. Finally, he said 'All right.'"

"I had a suspicion he didn't even recognize me."

"Why do you think this was so?"

"It probably was due to the fact his mind was upset by the terribleness of the fire."

"Who was on the bridge?"

"Mr. Freeman, Mr. Hackney and seven sailors."

"Do you suppose he could have given orders without your hearing them?"

TOO MUCH SMOKE

"There were a few other things that escaped my hearing. It was apparent that he might not even have recognized me."

"Too much smoke at that time?"

"Probably."

Alagna said he went back then and told Rogers to cher up and that things would turn out all right. He said he did not believe Chief Officer Warms was "fully informed of the facts of the situation."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Hoover.

GOT NO ORDERS

Alagna said that on his return from his second trip to the bridge at Rogers' request he reported, "No orders."

"Did you get any instructions from Captain Warms?" Hoover asked.

"No."

"Did you ask him for any?"

"Yes."

"Did Captain Warms at any time give you the order to send the SOS?"

"No, sir."

"Then—?"

"I went to the bridge a third time. I asked Captain Warms if there were any instructions. He said, 'No.' I said the ship seemed in danger. I went back to tell Rogers there were no instructions, and that the main power set had broken down. I immediately went to the door of the emergency set to turn it on."

"Where was Maki, the third operator?"

"I don't know."

Alagna then contradicted Maki's testimony that he (Alagna) had been gone time.

ROGERS "CONFUSED"

"I can say of my own knowledge," Alagna said, "I was not gone more than a few minutes. I think Mr. Rogers was confused when he said he sent Maki to find me. He was quite disturbed about it later."

"Mr. Rogers," said Hoover, "was quite clear in his testimony he would report Maki for deserting. Do you think he deserted too?"

"No, sir, I don't know what happened to him."

STORY NUMBLED

Alagna's testimony was little more than a nervous mumble at this point.

"Did you advise the Ward Line and the Radio Marine Corporation of America that Maki was incompetent?" asked Hoover.

"Yes, sir, I did. I have had occasion to reprimand both the other operators, particularly Maki, for inefficiency."

"Did the companies do anything about it?"

They sent a stand-by message shortly after 3:15, without orders from the bridge. Rogers sent the message on the emergency set.

DESCRIBES TRIP

Alagna made a fourth trip to the bridge.

"You made a fifth trip?"

"Yes, sir, all on my own initiative. Each time I returned to the radio room."

"Tell about the fifth trip."

"On the fourth trip, I told Captain Warms conditions were unbearable in the radio room and Rogers was not able to hold out much longer.

"Captain Warms said he couldn't do anything about the radio room and Mr. Rogers would have to wait. Captain Warms was pacing back and forth on the bridge."

"What officers were on the bredge durng all these trps?"

"The same officers. Oh, yes, on the fourth trip, I passed the chief engineer on the bridge. He was wringing his hands and saying 'What shall we do, what shall we do!'"

"It impressed me because I knew he had no business on the bridge.

PLEADED WITH WARMS

"I pleaded very strongly with Captain Warms on the fifth trip to send something out.

"After several minutes he seemed to get an inspiration and said: 'Can you send a message?' I said, 'Why, certainly, that's what I'm here for.'

"Captain Warms said, 'All right, sand an SOS.'

Can't Determine If Morro Captain Was Poisoned

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 20—Failure to determine whether Captain Robert Willmott died from the effects of poison a few hours before the Morro Castle was gutted by a disastrous fire was reported today by Dr. Alexander Goettler, city toxicologist.

The master might have been poisoned—Dr. Goettler could not say.

Traces of two metals which form the bases of some poisons, copper and lead, were found in the bones, but the toxicologist was inclined to ascribe their presence to the fact that copper wiring and lead pipe on the doomed liner had melted in the terrific heat and impregnated the bones.

"We had so little to work on," Dr. Goettler said. "It is unfortunate that at least part of the body was not recovered. Then we might have been able to tell something different.

"But most poisons evaporate and vanish in fire. It was useless to look for any trace of them. And, then, we had none of the vital organs where poison traces are usually found.

"The traces of lead and copper which we did find in the bones may well have come from melting metal. There is no way of saying definitely."

Dr. Goettler made his analysis at the request of U. S. District-Attorney Martin Conboy, who was not quite satisfied that Capt. Willmott's death was due to the cause given by the ship's surgeon, who perished in the fire—acute indigestion.

All that was recovered of the captains' body was a box of charred bones identified as his because they were found where his cabin had been.

ARMY SHIP HITS LINER IN FOG

anchored in the early morning because of a thick fog which tied up practically all shipping, held airplanes on the ground and made motoring ashore hazardous.

LINE SAVES BOAT

The army boat, carrying ERA workers from Winthrop to Fort Standish, Lovell's island, suddenly nosed out of the fog and crashed almost head-on into the liner.

Passengers and members of the crew aboard the Nova Scotia were jarred by the impact and ran to the rail to see what had occurred.

The army boat, badly damaged, was ni danger of sinking when a line was paid out from the liner and run under the 64-foot army craft, keeping her afloat.

Out of the fog the Boston health department steamer David Townsend then appeared alongside.

After an inspection of the army boat, it was deemed safe to tow her to Long Island, where she was beached, pending repairs.

The fog which descended upon New England early in the day tied up virtually all airplane and ship traffic until after 9 a. m. and made it necessary for motorists and truckmen, even far inland, to drive with extreme caution.

COLD WAVE COMING

In addition to the liner Nova Scotia, the coastwise steamer Micaro, from Cuba, with a load of bananas, was forced to anchor off quarantine for hours.

First planes due to leave Boston and Newark on the Boston and New York schedule were grounded but in mid-morning the plane schedule was resumed.

The sun, seen for less than three hours during the past five days, broke through the murk shortly after 9 and, according to the weather bureau, threatens to remain visible through tomorrow.

A cold wave in the Northwest, where snowstorms are reported, is heading for New England and is expected to cause much cooler weather by Saturday.

PLOT TO BOMB LINER DOCKS

By Associated Press

Houston, Tex., Sept. 20—Officials of the Morgan Steamship Line announced today that a large store of dynamite conected to a battery and alarm clock had been found beneath the company's docks on the Houston ship cannel.

A special officer for the Morgan Line who found the infernal machine broke the connections with the battery and the timing mechanicism and removed the dynamite, totaling 319 pounds.

One theory advanced by antholties was that the plot to wreck the steamship terminal was connected with the reported attempts at destroying vessels at sea by fire.

Four vessels in the Gulf and Carribean trade, including the ill-fated Morro Castle, have caught fire while at sea during the past two weeks.

2 Sue Man, 70, as Love Thief

By Universal Service

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 20—Having passed the 70-year mark, Peter Blenderman, Anthon, Ia., farmer, may not be quite the dashing figure of a half century ago, but nevertheless he faced today not one, but two suits for alleged alienation of affections, each for $30,000.

Actions were brought by Walker Haney and Corwin Monroe who, with their wives, were employed on farms owned by Blenderman. According to the complaints, the aged farmer stole the love of both the women. He is married and has a grown son.

Jail Her Choice; Feels Safer There

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP)—Miss Irene Marshall, 26, wants to stay in jail.

Held in connection with the slaying of Paul (Sunny) Cuprea, a handbook operator, the young woman yesterday refused legal aid to release her from custody.

BARBARA DAVIS GOING ON STAGE

Bound for Hollywood to go on the stage—yes, the stage, not the movies—Barbara Davis, blonde sister of Newton's petite star, Bette Davis, is leaving Boston within a few days.

Bette, who got her own start as an actress behind New York footlights, believes her young sister has what it takes.

"Barbara has talent," declared the Warner Brothers star. "And I will help her all I can."

After the stage, the films? Perhaps, says Bette. Barbara is very pretty, though in a different way than her demure ash-blonde sister, and she may parallel the startling rise which the former Newton High school student made in the talkies.

PARADE OF RADIO STARS ON AIR WAVES LATE TONIGHT

There's a gala 'round-the-circuit salute being broadcast late tonight (WEEI) an all star affair and due on the dials between 11:30 p. m. and 12:30 a. m. Bing Crosby heads the list of loud-speaker favorites. Naturally he would, since the airing is a sort of send-off for Bob Crosby, the Bing's kid brother.

Bob begins an engagement at The Riviera, swanky dine and dance spot near New York. Boswell Sisters' harmony is slated out of Hollywood along with Bing's soloing. The popular Mills Brothers chime in from Detroit, Buddy Rogers and Jeannie Lang join the hour from Chicago and Anson Weeks adds his Waldorf Astoria Hotel music from New York. Thusly does young Bob Crosby start his "mike" climb with fellow artists, all friends of Bing contributing their talents to wish him good luck.

Bing Crosby

Helen Ford, prominent Broadway stage star, occupies the Paul Whiteman program spotlight this evening (WEEI) at 10 o'clock. Miss Ford plans to recreate memorable moments of her recent footlight success "Dearest Enemy" and brings Douglas Stanbury, able Canadian tenor, to the hour to assume a leading role in the supporting studio cast.

Fray and Braggiotti, the crack two piano team, appear with Waring's Pennsylvanians while they are coast to coasting (WNAC) from 9:30 until 10 o'clock tonight. Fred's music making is full of Spanish flavor this evening, by the way.

Whispering Jack Smith and his outfit have one selection that should carry especial appeal to the oldtimers (WNAC) at 7:30 tonight. He holds forth with "After the Ball" in addition to numerous popular selections, namely, "For All We Know" and "Two Cigarettes in the Dark."

Rudy Vallee ventures into space (WEEI) with Lou Holtz again for a headliner. Frank Thomas, gifted 11-year-old juvenile actor, is also in the Vallee troupe, with a scene from "Wednesday's Child" to offer.

Another of the Brookline Symphony Concert presentations is in the wind for wirelessing tonight (WAAB) and is to be found in the 8 to 9 o'clock 60-minute schedule. An orchestral opening will waft the overture to "The Bartered Bride" by Smetana.

Best Bets Tonight

6:00 P. M.—WEEI—Regular chatter and novelty hits by the "Tattler" with Vic Whitman.

7:15 P. M.—WEEI—Funmaking by the popular "Gene and Glenn" pair.

7:15 P. M.—WBZ—Listen to Joe and Bateese and more of their humor.

9:00 P. M.—WBZ—Half hour adventures airing of "Death Valley Days" in the Old West.

10:00 P. M.—WEEI—Sixty minutes of music and novelties under Paul Whiteman direction.

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

Since this is the "Showboat" program night it is quite interesting, I think, to make note that no soloing successor (ess), as George Holland often puts it, has been named to fill the dainty shoes of Annette Hanshaw.

In fact, the coffee concern behind the mythical river boat broadcast, despairingly claims many have been auditioned, but none found to even so much as "hold a candle" to the vivacious vocalizing of Miss Hanshaw. All of which finding may not go over so big among other well known fair ones of the air. Nevertheless, Annette does have a powerful singing personality.

Speaking of individuality in the songstress ranks, more than a few patrons who read and then write to your favorite evening newspaper, are at a loss to understand why they won't let Jeannie Lang giggle any more. When she did, there were those who didn't like her! Now that she doesn't, equal objection arises. You hard to please radio audience you! Suppose they take the "So-ooo-oo" away from Ed Wynn—then what?

Ten years ago, come the 29th of this so far inclement month we have weathered, good old WEEI ceremoniously broke out for the first time on our Down East ozone. So what to do but have a birthday party? Nothing is the answer. All America is invited, because the merrymaking is to go across the "Red Network" of NBC to the far South and West. Music by the drum corps of Aleppo Temple, which was the first group to do WEEI duty, will again get a headline place in the program. Informality is to be the keynote, according to boss men Joseph Gross and Charley Burton.

FLEETING FLASHES

Since the hotcha tunes turned in by Duke Ellington and his band boys in the new Mae West screen show, "Belle of the Nineties," the brown-skinned orchestra overlord is besieged with additional movie offers. Moreover, the "Duke" is betwixt and between, having three or four nice network offers pending as well. . . . At the big New York Dahlia show, they have named a prize bloom "Jessica Dragonette" in honor of the "mike" soprano. . . . S. L. Rothapfel, meaning "Roxy" to almost anyone at all, has a room full of gift mementos sent to him by men in Army hospitals in appreciation for the years of his staging studio entertainment at their requests. . . . Anson Weeks, now playing for the Waldorf Astoria Hotel management, brings his melody men to Boston and will be the attraction at the Hotel Statler Salle Moderne Room on and after October 4.

Malden Sidewalk Driving Costs $60

When Patrolman William Callahan saw an auto traveling on Main street sidewalk into Malden square, he went into action. As a result Joseph Gracie of Portland, Me., faced Judge Elbridge G. Davis in Malden court and settled his account by paying $60 in fines.

Gracie said he mistook the First Baptist Church driveway for a side street and the sidewalk for the Turnpike. His companion, F. Gerry Cousins, also of Portland, paid a $5 fine for drunkenness.

CANADA LOCKS LEAGUE DEBATE

By Associated Press

Geneva, Sept. 20—Canada today followed Poland in declining to accept external control of her minority groups. The statement of her position was made in the political committee of the assembly of the League of Nations.

Prof. O. D. Skelton, submitting Canada's position as the committee debated a Polish resolution pressing for the generalization of the protection of minorities, said it was difficult to see the consistency of those who argued that international supervision worked badly in their own countries but wished other countries to adopt it.

Canada could not agree, said Skelton, that it would be equitable to make the existing system of international guarantees of minorities universal.

PRISONERS BET DESPITE BAN

Inmates at state prison don't necessarily have to have money to bet, nor do they have to have a horse or boat race to bet on.

Officials at the prison tried to end the betting at the prison by putting a stop to the practice among the prisoners of paying off debts by transferring part of their funds by means of prison checks.

Now that the cash is cut off, officials have discovered that they are using cigars and tobacco in its place, betting on most anything from the color of the warden's necktie to the kind of weather outside the prison walls.

WHAT can a woman do to be charming?
It isn't a matter of a Grecian profile or gowns with a Paris label. It isn't a matter of age or money. It is often a matter of health.
Health means a clear skin . . . sparkling eyes . . . bubbling vitality . . . steady nerves and a dependable disposition. Radiant health is the foundation of beauty and charm. The woman who is healthy and friendly and interested in the world about her cannot fail to be attractive to others.
If you are not as well as you want to be, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remember that 98 out of 100 women say, "It helps me!"
"I was a disagreeable old spit-cat!" —says Mrs. Davidson
"I was so nervous I wanted to scream. Your Tablets helped me wonderfully. My husband remarked last night of the difference he sees in me. I am not that grouchy, disagreeable old spit cat I was three weeks ago. I am a cheerful, joking young girl again."—Mrs. Clarence R. Davidson, 1311 Milburn Blvd., Mishawaka, Indiana.
If periodic pain is dragging you down, ask your druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. Mrs. Marion Sidor, 5436 Grace Street, Chicago, Illinois, says: "I had severe pains and terrible headaches periodically. My husband saw your Tablets advertised and bought me a bottle. They helped me wonderfully — stopped all the pain."
"All the fun was gone out of life—"
"All the fun was gone out of life. I was very nervous and had terrible backaches. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a great medicine for a woman at any time of life but especially at the Change and before motherhood. My daughter Lucille feels 100% better since she took it. It helped my daughter-in-law, too."—Mrs. S. Matushek, 10007 Edbrooke Ave., Chicago, Illinois.
It's old fashioned to suffer. Silly, too, when so many stores sell Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They bring welcome relief from cramping pains, "blue" spells, periodic backache and headache and similar discomforts which undermine a woman's charm.

REPAIR LOANS WILL BENEFIT MILLIONS

(This is the ninth of a series of articles explaining the new National Housing Act which, under facilities developed by the Federal Housing Administration, enables home owners in Boston and other communities to obtain inexpensive, easy-to-repay loans for repairing or improving their homes.)

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Now is the time to rebuild America generally, and your homestead particularly.

Now is the time to permit Uncle Sam to play godfather to your property which has suffered from lack of care and attention during the years of depression.

Millions of homes, apartments, offices, factories, and other buildings have suffered because of limited funds for improvements.

Property owners have not been able to provide for the necessary alteration, repair and improvement of their property out of their reduced incomes.

The shrinkage in values of real property has made it impossible for owners to obtain credit which in normal times would have been available to them and which would have been repaid out of their regular income. The magnitude of this deferred work is great.

MILLIONS NEED REPAIR

Since figures don't lie, here is a startling revelation—more than 16 million buildings in this country have reached a more or less serious state of disrepair. Of these 16 million buildings, some three millions have reached such a physical state that nothing short of a major building operation can save them.

In fact, the repair of many of them is unjustified and their immediate fate should be demolition. However, the remaining 13 million require, for the most part, only minor repairs to put them in good condition; but it is essential that this reconditioning be initiated at once.

Hence the advent of the National Housing Act.

To date, adequate credit has been lacking. First, the liquid assets of property owners in general have been depleted. Second, the current incomes of many property owners may not be sufficiently assured to be accepted by financial institutions as a basis for adequate credit.

The National Housing Act provides the means to bridge this gap. The plan thus makes it safe for financial institutions to provide the necessary credit for remodeling work.

From all parts of Massachusetts letters have come from interested property owners seeking advice on their particular problems.

VISIT LOCAL BANK

Typical of the inquiries is this letter written by a Cambridge home owner, who says:

"I would like to get a loan to do some repairing on my house. My credit is good. I have an income and also some money. I don't know how to go about it. Could you please let me know where to go or give me some information on how we pay, how much interest we pay and how or when we pay back the loan....."

My Dear R. L.:

"It would be well, in the first place, to have a contractor estimate the amount of money you will need for the contemplated repairs. After you have obtained that information, go to your local bank and make application there for a loan, sufficient to cover this work under the plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

"You will be asked to fill out an application blank, which is a credit statement. After examination of your application, the bank will advise you whether your income or general situation is such that a loan of the amount asked by you is warranted.

"It is possible that the first bank you apply to may not be in a position to make the loan. You are privileged to make application to other banks whenever one or more refuse to make a loan.

"The charge in connection with the loan is five per cent discount which covers all charges, fees, etc. The length of time the loan will run can best be determined between you and the institution loaning the money, based on your general condition, and ability to repay. The government leaves the length of time to the borrower and the lender, but it must not exceed five years."

(Further details of the operation of the National Housing Act will be explained and more letters will be answered in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

New Rail Body Formed

Overcoat Gives Him $6500

Andrew Murray, of Jamaica Plain, held a Sherbrooke sweep ticket on Overcoat, who finished sixth in the Irish St. Leger race, in England, today. The lucky ticket means about $6500 for the Washington street, Brookline, grocer. He is pictured at his home with his son, Andrew. (Picture from International News Photograph Sevice.)

Also Ran Drops $6700 Into Jamaica Plain Man's Lap

Andrew Murray, 30, of Dalrymple street, Jamaica Plain, won $6,700 today on a sweepstakes ticket for the Irish St. Leger race—although his horse, Overcoat, was an also ran.

Murray was the only New England winner of a large purse, no one from this part of the country holding a ticket on any of the first four horses to finish.

The winning horse was Primero and will pay the holder of his ticket $31,000. Carriff, second, pays $17,000, while the third and four horses, Portugal and Wagonhill, paid ticketholders $13,000 and $6,000 respectively.

Murray's ticket was in the Sherbrooke Hotel Dieu Hospital sweepstakes. He said he purchased it to play against bad luck which had been following him for several months.

Jap Noble Exiled for Soviet Praise

Tokio, Sept. 20—Count Hisataka Hijikata, 36-year-old scion and head of one of Japan's noblest families, has been banished from the peerage for praising Soviet literature.

The bureau of peerage and heraldry of the imperial household department announced the drastic action against the count, who long was under suspicion of fostering the Communist movement in Japan.

"Manila" Target of Japan's Fleet

Shanghai, Sept. 20 (INS)—The third fleet of the Japanese navy today engaged in naval manoeuvers in the Pescadores Islands, which were described in semi-official circles as being a mimic attack upon the Philippines.

While the main Japanese fleet was concentrated at Dairen, Admiral Imamura of the third fleet, commanding the cruiser Irzumo and the 26th and 27th destroyer flotillas, attacked the naval base of Mako, used as a counterpart of Manila. Admiral Niyama, commanding the Mako base, defended the make-believe Manila.

GREATEST NAVY PROMISED U. S.

By Universal Service

Washington, Sept. 20 — The Roosevelt administration is "going to have a navy, adequate in all its parts to any demand that may be made upon it, and second to none in the world."

Assistant Secretary H. L. Roosevelt so declared in a nationwide radio address last night.

At the same time he made a strong plea for an adequate merchant marine which he described as a "vital element in national defense." Recalling the predicament in which the country found itself at the outbreak of the World War because of its shortage of merchant ships, he said:

"In case war should again unfortunately break out between nations friendly to this country, in which the United States would remain strictly neutral, we could not afford again to be placed in such position that our foreign trade would be in danger of extermination due to the lack of ships of our own to carry goods from and to this country."

Theft Inspires New Door Lock

St. Paul, Sept. 20—Fifteen years ago John G. Bins was robbed of $40 while in a Tree Forks, Mont., hotel and because his door was locked and the key was in the lock, he grew indignant. Today he had received patent papers on a door lock which he said would make an recurrence of the episode impossible.

Stricken in Auto, Crashes Into Pole

Believed by police to have been taken suddenly ill while driving his car, Stuart Hall, 38, Wilson road, Nahant, crashed into a telephone pole at Washington and Newhall streets, Lynn, today.

By Universal Service

New York, Sept. 20—Miss Elinor Murdoch, first woman ever to win the National Masters' individual contract bridge championship tournament of the American Bridge League, is an anomaly in the bridge world. She is actually a modest champion.

Interviewed here, she shocked the bridge world by saying:

"I was terribly lucky. I played better bridge last year when I was runner-up in the same event than I did this year as winner."

Awakened at an unheard of hour for bridge players—she was busy for hours accepting congratulations by telephone and telegrams from admirers everywhere in the country. Between telephone calls, she gave a short history of her life and philosophy:

"I was born in Birmingham, Ala. I came to New York nine years ago to work in a department store. But I liked bridge so well that I went to work for the late Wilbur Whitehead. That was in the old auction days. I worked for Whitehead for a year, and then started teaching auction.

"Later I joined a club where I learned contract. I play no particular system, except to play contract as experts play it—a method known as 'experts,' one over one."

Blonde, good-looking, chic, agreeable, Miss Murdoch said she wanted to give this advice to other woman players:

"The main thing a woman bridge player ought to develop is the ability to stand the physical and mental grind of tournament playing."

Wife Sues Jailed Mate for Divorce

Mrs. Hilda D. Lester, of Weymouth, filed a petition for divorce in Norfolk probate court, Dedham, against her husband Thomas F. Lester, also of Weymouth, on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

'SCRIP' ONLY TO GET RUM TODAY

Unless you're fortunate to have a "scrip" from your doctor, or you reside in Lynn, you will have to go without that usual cocktail or glass of beer with your luncheon or dinner today.

With the exception of Lynn, where the sale of alcoholic beverages is allowed, every city and town of the state was believed to have banned the sale of liquor, except at drugstores on prescription, while polls are open today.

In Boston, the polls opened at 8 o'clock this morning and will remain open until 8 tonight. After voting is ended, the liquor stores will be allowed to open for the remainder of the evening..

By International News Service

Hanover N H Sept 20—America as the land of opportunity for individualists is slipping and rapidly developing conditions in this country are making it increasingly difficult for a man to change his station in life declared President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth College in his convocation address today at the opening of the 166th academic year.

Dr. Hopkins branded defeatism as a despicable attitude, and called for "a militant spirit of faith and of courage."

MISSING GIRL HUNTED HERE

The mysterious disappearance of 16-year-old Catherine Kearns of Bennington, Vt., September 1[illegible] centered in Boston today.

The girl went mountain climbing near Bennington with a youth who later went to Detroit. Fearing foul play police brought youth back from Detroit, but in the meantime residents declared they saw the girl walking in Bennington after he had left for Detroit.

Parents of the girl asked Boston police to aid in the search after residents in Bennington told of giving the girl a ride to Williamstown Mass., from Pownal.

78 JAP PLANES BACK PROTEST

By Associated Press

Tokio, Sept. 20—A successful flight of 78 Japanese military airplanes across the 450 miles from Darien to Hsinking Manchukuo, was reported today by the Hsinking correspondent of the newspaper Asahi.

The complete fleet was in Hsinking at 3 35 p. m., after overcoming head winds which spoiled their formation but did not interfere with the success of the movement.

The head winds caused 21 of the ships to run low on fuel and land at Liaoyang, where they refueled and caught up with the advance part of the fleet.

The mass maneuver was made shortly after Manchukuo sent a protest to Soviet Russia.

A Harbin dispatch to the newspaper Asahi today said Manchoukuo protested to the Soviet consul-general at Harbin, alleging Russian had occupied an island at the confluence of the Amur and Ussuri rivers. Manchoukuo claims this territory as her own.

The protest charged Manchoukouans had ben expelled and that the Soviets immediately set to work digging trenches and bringing in munitions.

MARINA DANCES SCOTCH REEL

By International News Service

Balmoral, Scotland, Sept. 20—Princess Marina occupies a warmer spot in the hearts of Scotsmen today than any other foreign royal personage for many a year—for didn't she practice the Highland Reel for two days under the instruction of Queen Mary, and then dance it before bewhiskered "gillies" and housemaids at the servants' ball last night?

The folk from the royal estate were the more delighted with Prince George's fiancee, because she was so very decorous during the early part of the evening—but when the old folks (in this case King George and Queen Mary)—had retired, she forgot to be sedate and tripped around joyously with her George.

Prince George led in a Scottish reel, he and Princess Marina weaving in and out among the other couples in the rollicking dance. A Paul Jones followed.

ERA Workers Get Jobs at Arsenal

Suburban ERA administrators were assigned their allotments for workers at the Watertown arsenal project, which calls for skilled laborers, and which will give employment to several hundred men.

Notice was also served that part of the pay for the workers on the arsenal project would have to come from towns where such workers reside.

"Throat·Ease ? you said a Mouthful!"

says Al Jolson
"That's why I prefer Old Golds"

"EDDIE CANTOR said, 'You can't fool my eyes. I can see the better tobacco in Old Golds!'

"The great Schnozzola said, 'You can't fool my nose. I can sniff the better quality in Old Golds!'

"Now I'll admit that the Cantor eyes and the Schnozzola nose are pretty keen. But so is my large size 'taster' . . . and it sure gets a thrill out of Old Gold's mellow smoothness.

"In other words, you can SEE it—you can SNIFF it—and Man!—how you can TASTE it! . . . that finer tobacco quality in throat-easy Old Golds."

(Signed) AL JOLSON

It boils down to this, Al:—

FIRE CHIEF FOX WED IN SECRET AT 68

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Robert E. Rogers

As news sources they will probably not rank with the six younger Roosevelts—count 'em, six!—but as a trend of the times they are even more important. Roosevelts at Harvard are an old story, just like Du Ponts at Technology. They will have the responsibility, of course, of not letting down their respective sires or grandsires or cousins too badly. It would not look well for them, for instance, to flunk out because of the severity of the scholastic rules, which have been jerked up a good many notches in the past few years.

On the other hand the Roosevelt record at Harvard has not been entirely free from minor infractions of the rules of the college and the law of the land—such as summonses for speeding, etc.—and a reasonable continuation of such news items may be expected from a crowd of six healthy youngsters, with plenty of money and social position, and what most people would consider an enviable position in the spotlight.

But the ten hand-picked boys are going to have an even more difficult position to uphold. Ten hitherto obscure boys, for whom the high schools and preparatory schools of America have been combed, have been virtually invited to Harvard on stipends of an amount usually reserved for the highest quality of graduate students of mature age and considerable accomplishment in scholarship. They will be carrying the banner of an idea—President Conant's idea. If any considerable number of them let it trail, do not live up to expectation, the question will be asked: Is it the boys who failed the idea, or did the idea fail the boys?

It is my notion that to advertise 18-year-old boys just out of secondary school as highest quality students, who are expected to become distinguished scholars, is doing them a great injustice. No one knows what the subtle chemistry of growth will do to them. High school experience is by no means an adequate evidence of lasting mental capacity or power of character.

I have served on an admissions committee at a major college. I have read endorsements and recommendations given by secondary school principals for freshman candidates. I have seen, again and again, the absurdity of those documents, when compared with a student's entrance record, or, better, his first year record. I have seen the most promising candidates fail utterly to live up to the prophecies concerning him. I have seen dark horses come to the fore. You simply can't tell what the yearlings are going to do.

We have had at Technology some three or four boys picked by the late Thomas A. Edison by means of an elaborate and ingenious questionnaire. They represented his idea of the best student obtainable, the possible genius. All of them, it is only fair to say, did well. But one of them noticeably went down hill in his grades from his first year to his fourth. What had happened? Nothing except that a highly intelligent young man had come to the conclusion, as he grew older, that books and laboratory work, marks and grades, were not necessarily the only important thing in college. He had gone out for athletics, activities, management jobs in competition, and all that sort of thing. The sort of thing, one suspects, that Edison, that indefatigable grind, thought very little of. The result was that the boy ended his college career, not as a grind, as the exceptional scholar he was picked to be, but a man of the world, in competition with other men, who knew his way in practical matters, had many friends and contacts, and probably stands a very good chance of becoming somebody in the world.

But President Conant's fledglings are, as I understand it, picked for scholarship. They are to be Harvard's nucleus of a brain-trust of the future. The question is, will they have an opportunity to become men of the world, or will their intensive experience in laboratory and library be considered sufficient to fit them for the places of leadership in society which they are, supposedly, to take? Will they be capable of going up against the big business men, who took the other route in college? Will they have personality and character enough to crack down on them, as the business men of the future, presumably, are going to be cracked down on by the Braintrusters?

I do not know—I really do not. I can't help tending to bet on the boys who get out and do things. Both as teacher and as classmate, I feel the probabilities lie that way.

I wish I might follow the college and future careers of those ten boys. I can't, of course. But I hope they watch their steps. And I hope President Conant won't be too disappointed if the boys follow the laws of nature instead of the academic probabilities. It may be better for them, after all.

DEWING BALKS MILLEN PLEA

An assignment of errors claimed to have been made at the trial of Irving and Murton Millen, convicted slayers, will have to be filed not later than Saturday as a result of the decision handed down by Judge Charles H. Donahue in Supreme Court.

A motion filed by Attorney George Stanley Harvey, the Millens' counsel, for an extension of time for counsel to file the assignment, was refused by Judge Donahue, after District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk County opposed the motion.

GIRL GRILLED IN ESCAPE OF KAMINSKI

Springfield, Sept. 20—Two men and a woman were questioned today in the escape of Alexander Kaminski, convicted killer, from Hampden County Jail, and police, meanwhile, were guarding the home of District-Attorney Thomas F. Moriarty against possible reprisal.

Rita Staples, picked up near Kaminski's home, was questioned, but later released. She was declared by officials to have said that she spent four months in the jail and that she passed Kaminski's cell daily while both were inmates.

The two men questioned were with her when she was picked up. The also were released.

While a posse of more than 50 Massachusetts and Connecticut state police, aided by two airplanes, searched the wooded sections of Coventry and Mansfield in Connecticut, the police detail was placed at the Moriarty home here.

It was Moriarty who conducted the prosecution resulting in a first degree murder conviction against Kaminski and it was thought by police and the district attorney that an attempt might be made to retaliate against the prosecutor.

Officer to Get Hearing Sept. 26

September 26 is the date that has been set for a public hearing asked by Patrolman Albert F. Clifford, of Station 15, Charlestown, who was dismissed from the department last week, for conduct unbecoming of a police officer.

Deaths Split Five Generations in Family

LESLIE COHALON — MRS. DOROTHY COHALON

MRS. MARY CARTWRIGHT — FRANK COHALON, JR — MRS. MARGARET DeWOLF

Five generations of an Everett family have been split by two deaths. Mrs. Mary Cartwright, great-great-grandmother, died last month. Mrs. Margaret DeWolf, grandmother, was killed today in an auto crash at Billerica.

Married Schoolma'ams Praised

Fire married schoolma'ams? Stuff and nonsense. Greater Boston men and women, picked at random today, were almost unanimous in their insistence that a wedding ring—and the experience that comes with it—is a help not a hindrance in the classroom.

The teaching profession, it was agreed by the persons interviewed, is one occupation where economic angles are not uppermost.

In the first place, it seemed generally conceded, the assorted devilitries of the rising generation require a firm hand at the educational helm.

And for putting firmness in a teacher's grip, to say nothing of steely calm in a teacher's eye, there is nothing, the Boston Evening American reporter was told, like a few years of running home, husband and progeny of one's own.

Said Helen Madsen of South Boston:

"When there is a teaching job available, may the best woman win. It makes no difference if she is married or single. However if it's a question of fitness, I should think the woman with children of her own might be expected to profit by her experience."

Helen Madsen

Nathan S. Carvitt of Cambridge, said:

"Statistics prove that the married teacher is a better teacher than the one who has never had opportunity to run a home of her own. There are too many single teachers who are only pinch-hitting at their jobs until the right man comes along. They have one eye on their pupils and the other eye on the class room clock. The married teacher, in many instances, has accepted her work as a chosen and permanent profession."

N. S. Carvitt

Beatrice Holly of Back Bay said.

"It's not so much a question of the job being open to a married teacher as it is of the married teacher being willing to take the job. Very often, I think, she is justified in continuing to earn a salary. Financial problems in her home may be acute. She certainly ought not to be debarred from worthwhile activity in her chosen field."

Beatrice Holly

Alice Malden of Roxbury said:

"The handling of children, especially those of school age, is an ability that is gained, if at all, by long experience and real devotion to the task. A married teacher, with a home of her own, certainly has an advantage in approaching the test. I feel that the whole question of allowing married women to continue in teaching positions should be viewed not from an economic angle, but from the angle of the pupils' welfare. A wedding ring should not be a teaching handicap."

Alice Malden

G.A.R. Veteran, 90, Dies in Melrose

Frank S. Field, 90, veteran of the Civil War and next to the last remaining active member of U. S. Grant Post 4, G. A. R. of Melrose, is dead at his home, 72 Melrose street, Melrose.

DEATH DIVIDES 5 GENERATIONS

Mrs. Margaret DeWolf, 64, of Buckman street, Everett, died today of injuries suffered in an auto crash Monday. Her death was the second within two months to fracture what had been a chain of five living generations.

Mrs. DeWolf was the daughter of Mrs. Mary Cartwright who died last month.

Mrs. DeWolf's daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Coholan, the latter's son, Frank Coholan, and Frank's baby son, Leslie, are surviving links in the chain. All lived in the same Everett home.

HIT-RUN CRASH MAY BE FATAL

A hit and run driver today demolished a milk wagon and sent its driver, John C. Keenan, 23, of Gordon street, Alston to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where he is said to be dying.

Bystanders furnished police with the registration number of the auto said to have caused the accident. Keenan was driving in Commonwealth avenue, Alston, when the automobile struck the vehicle from the rear, overturning it, spilling hundreds of bottles of milk and hurling Keenan from his seat.

The horse bolted and was caught nearly a mile away by a motorist. Radio Cruiser Patrolmen P. J. Burke and John Geoghean took Keenan to the hospital.

WEST ROXBURY CASHIER, 45, IS BRIDE

An aura of mystery today surrounded the romance of Chief Henry A. Fox, 68, veteran head of the Boston Fire Department, who admitted that he was wed secretly in August to Mrs. Agnes C. Fisher, 45, of La Grange street, West Roxbury.

The wedding took place August 16 at Derry, N. H. It was kept a secret from even the chief's most intimate friends.

CONFIRMS BRIDAL

Even when the news finally leaked out, startling the other members of the fire department, Chief Fox refused to comment upon his marriage. He confirmed the fact, however, when confronted with the report.

The bridal couple are making their home in a Commonwealth avenue apartment, the chief admitted. Mrs. Fox was a cashier at the Hotel Essex before her marriage to the fire fighter.

CHIEF CONGRATULATED

Chief Fox refused to reveal details of the wedding, and who the the best man and bridesmaid were. By whom the marriage was performed is still shrouded in mystery.

WESTON DRIVER DIES IN CRASH

William T. Harrington, 30, of Church street, Weston, was killed early today when his car was in collision with a truck on Weston street, near Sibley road, Waltham.

Samuel Pastorelli, 24, of Clark street, Everett, driver of the truck, with his helper, escaped similar fate when they jumped from the truck less than a second before the head on crash. They were uninjured.

Following the crash, the truck, loaded with wood, continued along Weston street for about 100 feet, knocked down a telegraph pole, tipped over and then went up in flames.

Harrington was driving to Waltham hospital, where he was employed, to start his morning's work when the crash occurred. With his head crushed, he was rushed to the hospital and pronounced dead upon arrival there.

Everett Wars on Night Parking

As a result of the parking of autos all night without lights in residential sections of Everett, Chief of Police George O. Kenney has issued orders for patrolmen to tag all such machines on the streets after 1:00 a. m.

Early today long lines of ticket holders appeared at police headquarters. They were warned that repetition of the offense would result in court action.

2 Join Faculty at Northeastern

Two new members have been added to the faculty of the school of business evening division at Northeastern University, Dean Carl D. Smith announced today.

Roger S. Hamilton, assistant professor of economics in the day division, will join the even staff as vision, will join the evening staff as dustrial statistician for the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, will be assistant professor in economics.

NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—Hollywood designers, plus a debased dollar, have the Paris dressmakers catching at their thumbs. Only large New York department stores are sending style scouts to Paree this fall. And along the rue de la Paix, Molyneaux, with a London clientele, is the only coutourier making rent.

O. O. McIntyre

Several major establishments are pulling down their corrugated shutters until there is a definite pick-up. Chic manikins have scattered across the channel and to America in the hope of stage careers. South America is stony, too, and that trade, once so enormous, has vanished.

The movie fashion makers are not only creating more acceptable ideas but the release of pictures inspires a demand as big as any big ad. campaign. Adrian, designing for Garbo, has more sway among well dressed American women than Patou, Lanvin, Vionnet and Lelong.

Even Mainbocher, the Chicago boy who topsy-turvied the Paris designers, is reputed to be coy toward the sheeps eyes cast by important cinema companies and may come over. At any rate the ancient simile is changed. Now it is: "As smart as a Hollywood gown!"

While Paris has suffered a terrific blow to one of its leading industries, the shake-up of the exchange is bringing Parisians to America in boatloads. The increase of tourist visits from France the past year more than quadrupled. During July and August the big metropolitan hotel registrations were almost 50 per cent French. Our sidewalk cafes, of course, help to give a homey touch.

The human ants, who crawl up building fronts, the steeple jacks and flag-pole sitting Shipwreck Kellys have almost vanished from the modern scene. Psychologists say that single heroic personal exploits have lost their emotional wallop since Lindbergh flew the Atlantic. Stunt men create their furore by topping the other fellow and Lindbergh, although not a stunt man, cannot be topped. What has followed seems milksop stuff.

Meredith Nicholson has rounded out a year as minister to far-off Paraguay and also a sabbatical year at writing. He closed his typewriter when he sailed away. Heretofore he has turned out a novel annually along with several short stories and essays. It was a deal like a confirmed smoker giving up his pipe. But he made the grade—not even taking notes during the hiatus. But with the literary fast ended, he has already begun on a novel with war-torn Paraguay as a background. Nicholson was one of James Whitcomb Riley's closest friends, and publishers have been after him for years for Riley reminiscences. In the leisure of Latin-America it is hoped he will find time.

Novelists can get away with sabbatical years with no falling away in their following. Harold McGrath, I believe, knocked off work for three years with no loss in forthcoming royalties. C. G. Norris gives us but one novel every two years. But short story and article writers cannot drop out of the parade so easily. One year without representation, as a rule, and editors have found another boy or are looking out the window.

Perhaps more publishing scouts drop into Brook, Ind., than any other American small town. They are, of course, trying to flush out Brook's most celebrated citizen, George Ade, to write fiction, articles or what-not on any subject he chooses. His wares have open sesame in every publication house of standing in the land. But Ade prefers to wander over his broad acres to hunching over a typewriter, as who wouldn't?

Thingumabobs: Jim Tully was once a bus boy in the Gibson House in Cincinnati . . . Joseph P. Day, who never wears an overcoat, carries $3,000,000 life insurance . . . The London critic, Hannen Swaffer, is a devout spiritualist . . . Lily Pons always has a lease that permits cooking at all hours in her hotel quarters . . . Dorothy Dickson has had the longest vogue of any American performer in London . . . The hair of Ravel, composer of Bolero, turned snow white in one week in the trenches . . . Walter Wanger is Garbo's only business confidant in Hollywood.

In an avenue candy bazaar I was sliding along the glass counter, peering at this and that. And out of a bon-bon tray flew a lone, imprisoned fly. Which is one idea of paradise. I wanted to step to the floorwalker to say: "Pardon, there's a fly in your glass case." But he looked too lordly. Anyway why should I run around evicting flies from candy shops!

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

"SECOND GUESSES" OFTEN PROVE DIVORCE WOULD BE A FAILURE

Given in Marriage

—By Adele Garrison—

With difficulty Madge restrains an impulse to flare at Dicky for his untimely reference to her ride with Hugh Grantland.

DICKY'S MALICIOUS gibe "Sure you wouldn't rather have Faithful. I mean our neighbor of The Larches" was so anger-provoking that for a long second I stood silent, mentally combatting with the primitive impulses to scream and scratch which it brought to me.

I knew that Dicky, through realizing the reason for and the reasonableness of my actions, nevertheless had not fully forgiven me for letting Hugh Grantland escort me on the trip to Patchogue the day before. But that he should take this particular time of stress to indulge himself in this jeering reference to the incident infuriated me almost beyond control.

I mastered myself finally, however, and with head high, turned toward the door.

"As you please," I said. "I'll telephone Hugh at once. Will you kindly take over my task of [illegible] why it is necessary for me to go to Patchogue instead of remaining here for the last dinner before Mary leaves us?"

I had my hand upon the doorknob when he reached me, wrenched it free, and wrapping powerful arms around me effectually prevented me from movement.

DICKY RETRACTS

"Let me go!" I demanded furiously, but he only laughed and held me the more tightly.

"What's the matter with the little sense of humour this afternoon?" he demanded, and resentfully I recognized an old ruse of his. Whenever he sees that he has gone too far in baiting me, he pretends that his caustic remarks have been made only in jest, and that my perceptions or nerves are at fault.

But with a mighty effort I reminded myself that I must not, under any circumstances, give way to anger or permit myself to get upset, until Mary and Noel were safely departed upon their honeymoon trip.

"I haven't a laugh left in my system," I said. "Neither have I any time for airy persiflage. If you're going with me, say so and let us get started. I still have your mother to see."

He gave me a little shake, planted a kiss between my ear and my nose and released me.

"That's where you have your little revenge," he said. "I wouldn't hand mother the news of you're going to Patchogue for a mission. And if that's where you're going now, accept my sympathy and my blessing."

"I shall need both," I said, as again I went toward the door. "Please go downstairs and see that Jim has the car ready. I'll be with you as soon as I've seen mother. By the way, what are the small boys doing?"

"Meditating on their sins, one in each corner of the room. I saw to it that Harry didn't get in, or he would have demoralized all discipline. But I suppose I would better tell him to let them out in half an hour. Don't you think so?"

"Yes, indeed," I answered, and went on down to my mother-in-law's room, knocking at her door with a feeling that my [illegible] would fail to carry me across the threshold.

But the moment was to be counted among my lucky ones. For my mother-in-law not only listened quietly to my story of what Ava Arden was trying to do, but arose with decision when I had finished and, coming over to me, put her hand upon my shoulder.

MADGE SCORES AGAIN

"You've only one job, you and Richard," she said, "and that is to go and get that girl. I see to it that she has no chance to see Noel. Don't think another thing about the dinner. I've presided over dinner tables many times and I can do it again.

"There's only one thing I want you to do before you start, and that is to tell Katie that you're going, and that she is to serve dinner just as she would if you were here. I'm perfectly willing to act as hostess, but I'm not equal to standing any impertinence from that ape in the kitchen."

"I'll see to Katie," I promised, "and thank you so much, mother."

I waited until her door was safely closed upon me to indulge in the silent laughter which I could no longer control. For my mother-in-law was too deliciously transparent for words. She had so nearly caused a domestic cataclysm by her interference with Katie the day before that I knew she would steer clear of the kitchen for a long time. But she had characteristically 'saved her face.'

Corn Bread as Autumn Treat

By Martha Lee

AS AUTUMN coolness increases the family's appetites, there are certain additions we can make to the daily menus, which will add nourishment, give variety, please with their flavor and best of all demand but little from the cook in time and trouble. One of these additions is old fashioned cornbread which is universally liked, but sometimes forgotten for months at a time while less nourishing breads hold a place on the menu. Try this recipe for:

BOSTON CORN BREAD

One cup yellow cornmeal; one half cup flour; three teaspoons of baking powder; one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon sugar; three-fourths cup milk, two eggs; one tablespoon shortening. Mix the cornmeal, flour and baking powder well together, add salt and sugar, mix again then add the milk and well beaten eggs. Pour in the melted shortening. Stir well. Pour into a baking pan rubbed with shortening, and bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, about 20 minutes. Serve hot.

MOLASSES CORN BREAD

Add one-fourth cup of molasses to the milk in the above recipe and omit the sugar, adding one-half cup additional flour. Follow the same directions for mixing and baking.

SOUTHERN CORN BREAD

Two cups white cornmeal, one-half teaspoon bicarbonate of soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup sour milk, two eggs, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix the cornmeal, soda and baking powder together. Stir in the milk. Beat the eggs and add them to the batter. Rub muffin pans with shortening, fill them with the batter, bake in a moderate oven [illegible] degrees for 20 minutes.

CORN MUFFINS

One-half cup yellow cornmeal; one cup flour; three teaspoons of baking powder; one teaspoon of sugar; one-fourth teaspoon salt; two tablespoons shortening; one-half cup milk; one egg. Mix the cornmeal, flour, baking powder, sugar and salt, together. Melt the shortening and add it, stirring slowly. Add the milk, and egg well beaten. Put in muffin pans which have been rubbed with shortening and bake in a hot oven, 4[illegible] deg. F., for 20 minutes.

RICE AND CORNMEAL BREAD

One cup boiled rice; two cups white corn meal; four teaspoons baking powder; one-half teaspoon salt; three eggs, two cups milk; one tablespoon shortening. Mix together the rice, cornmeal, baking powder, salt, beating well. Then add the eggs, well beaten and the milk. Stir well, and pour in a shallow pan rubbed with shortening. Bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven, 450 degrees. Serve hot.

Jabot-Vest Adaption

By MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9122

One way you look at it, that becoming business in the front is just a jabot buttoned on to the frock—and then in another way it resembles a vest. But any way you look at it it is very smart and extremely new. Think of it in white

Pattern 9122 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards 39 inch fabric and ½ yard contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

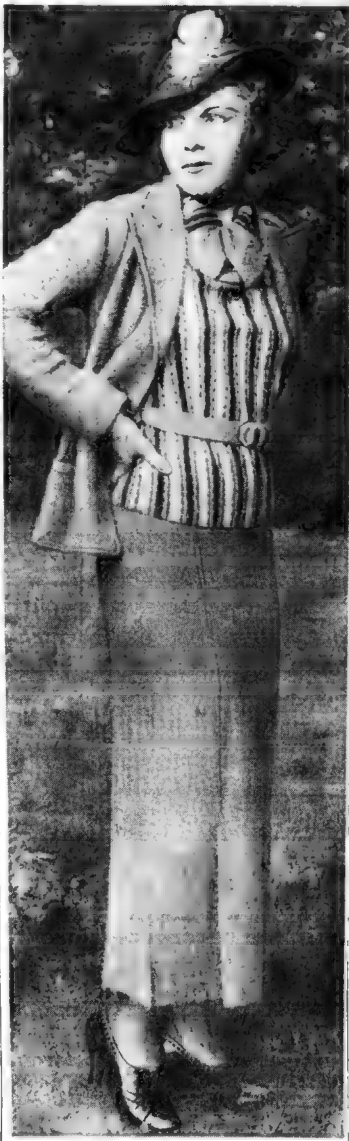
Camel's Hair Is Cosy and Trig



A REEFER jacket and slim skirt, both with smart welted seams, have the camel's hair texture and smooth brownish beige destined to be smart this season. Blue, brown and white stripes of the sweater are a charming, lively contrast. The whole has a young, clever and well-fitted air that will make it popular on campus or for mornings in town. The peaked brown felt with a real goose feather is a wearable adaptation of the hat made famous by a cigarette ad. The ensemble is modelled by Miss Priscilla Gano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Gano of Belmont. Miss Gano is one of the new season's debutantes, and will be formally presented this month.

For further information on either the three-piece suit or the hat, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sunday Afternoon Shower

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am planning a shower for a friend who is to be married next month. I am planning to have it on a Sunday afternoon, then in the evening have the young men friends of the guests come and have supper. Is this proper?

2. How should the invitations be worded? Should I buy little shower invitations and add words to that effect, or what would you suggest?

Z

1. Yes, this is proper, and I think that it is a very delightful plan for the party for the bride-to-be.

2. Rather than use the shower invitations for this special kind of party, I suggest that you write your invitations as personal notes. Then the notes to the girls can be of one kind and the notes to the young men who are to "come in after the shower" can be of a different wording.

Ace Discard Is Left-Handed Largess

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

No play in Bridge is more sensational than the discard of an Ace. Whereas there is basically no difference between discarding an Ace and throwing away any other card which happens to be the highest of the suit, it always causes more comment when a player willingly gives up the highest-ranking card in order to save some card which is much lower in appearance if not in actual value.

In the hand shown below the Declarer made this play in order to safeguard his trump holding. The type of play is not at all uncommon, since very often a good player will give up a trick rather than reduce his trump length. When the card he discards is an Ace, however, the play looks very brilliant.

East, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

North:
♥ K 10 8 5 4 2

West:
♥ 9 7 5
♦ K Q J 10 5 4 3
♣ 7 6 3

East:
♠ A 6 5 4 3
♥ Q J 6
♦ A 6 2

South:
♠ K Q J 10 9 2
♥ A
♣ A 9 8 4 2

South	West	North	East
Double (1)	4 ♦ (2)	Pass	Pass
4 ♠ (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass (4)

(1) South does not wish to pass, and considers his spades strong enough to permit playing the hand in spades if his partner responds to the Double in hearts or diamonds.

(2) West fears that his vulnerable opponents may have a game and makes shut-out bid.

(3) South is still convinced that despite East's bid he can safely play the hand in spades.

(4) East wisely refrains from Doubling.

West opened the diamond King, winning the trick, and continued with another diamond, on which East played the Ace. At this point South feared to trump, because after ruffing he could not draw trumps—East would hold up the spade Ace until the second round and then force South to ruff again on a third diamond lead. South knew this would give East the advantage in trumps because East could not have bid the suit originally with fewer than five. So South heroically discarded the Ace of hearts on the second diamond lead.

Now the contract could not be defeated, since anything East might lead would put Dummy in to finesse the clubs, after which South could drive out the spade Ace and still have enough trumps to ruff a diamond return, exhaust East's supply, and then run the club suit. East tried to keep Dummy out of the lead by leading the spade Ace to the third trick, but on this South played the spade nine, retaining the spade seven so that Dummy's eight would provide an entry for the club finesse.

Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your questions to Josephine Culbertson, in care of this newspaper.

Well-Dressed Co-Eds Wear Ear-Muffs

By Dorothy Roe

(Authentic last minute fashions from New York—the style center of America.)

AND NOW the well-dressed co-ed adds ear-muffs to the last-minute accessories to brighten the football bleachers.

And, what with the bare-headed fad in Eastern women's colleges, they are slated for plenty of popularity this fall.

The lowly ear-muff has now achieved the status of a decorative as well as a practical finishing touch for your football or campus costume. For they're being shown in bright colors, to match your hat or your scarf, in velvet, velours or fur.

What with the hats of the season leaving the ears exposed to the chill north winds, ear-muffs will be welcome along about the time of the Thanksgiving game.

And you'll be seeing them on some of the smartest members of the practical-minded younger set.

You'll also see thick, woolly anklets and scarf sets for football games and knitted yarn mittens and gloves in gay stripes and checks.

Emphasize Your Hair's Natural Beauty by Keeping Scalp Clean and Free of Dandruff

POSED BY DIANE BOURGET

By Juliet Shelby

YOU'VE GOT TO hold your head up high this season, or the magnificence of your furs and velvets will completely swamp you.

Woman's crowning glory is so apt to become her clowning illusion when the scalp is not clean or healthy or where there is any suggestion of dandruff on it. If you have been cajoled into believing that your hair would respond in some friendly way if it only met with a little sympathetic understanding, your dreams have not been in vain.

There is no need to go into hysterics or seclusion at the first sign of dandruff. So many girls nowadays look upon it as a loathsome ailment—a communicative infection only equalled perhaps by leprosy. This is all nonsense, of course, as any reliable scalp specialist will tell you. Dandruff can be corrected and cured—permanently.

But there is this to remember. Hair that is kept scrupulously clean will not suffer from dandruff. If it is allowed to remain for any length of time, however, the scalp is apt to become a lodging for parasites, or infections.

Specialists differ as to the cause of dandruff. The modern school will tell you it is the surplus oil or fat from the sebaceous glands which are overactive in their functioning. The result is a substance we call dandruff.

If you have allowed it to accumulate, take immediate steps to get rid of it. The first step is a thorough shampooing. A tar shampoo is excellent for this, followed by a dandruff treatment.

I have recipes for a fine ointment and an efficacious lotion that will cure the most annoying case of dandruff. You may have both by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Juliet Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Spanish Influence in Costume Jewelry

SPAIN with its romance and glamour has inspired not only some of the most effective laces for fall and winter, but costume jewelry in new colors and designs. Decidedly new and colorful are the "Toledo Bracelets" that echo the Spanish theme. They are broad bands of plastic composition in various vivid colors, with gold and silver metal trims. Some are hand etched in delicate floral patterns. They are often worn in pairs.

Astringent or Lotion

Question: At the sides of my nose I have a few whiteheads. How can I treat them and still keep my skin from becoming dry?—L. P. K., Arlington.

Answer: Don't apply any cream where you have whiteheads. Wash those areas frequently with warm water and a mild neutral soap or washing preparation, then dry with a towel. After this use a corrective lotion or an astringent. This will not affect the dry condition of the rest of the face and will clear up the whiteheads.

Tan Without Freckles

Question: Is there any way to acquire a tan without the accompaniment of freckles?

R. E. R., Brookline.

Answer: There is no way to prevent freckles if you wish to get a tan. But if you cover your skin with a good sunburn oil and remember to shield it with oil or cream all the time that you are exposed to the sun, you will not freckle!

Suggest Probe Instead of Action

By Sheilah Graham

WHEN a divorced couple jump back into the old harness it doesn't necessarily mean they have bad memories for faces. More often than not the answer to the riddle is as simple as this—They should not have been allowed to divorce.

We moderns are a touchy crowd. It doesn't take much for red spots to dance before our vision. But we have one saving grace. We listen to reason—if person reasoning know what or she is talking about.

That's why I want to remi vote of thanks to the Welf Council Committee of the Bro lyn Domestic Court of Relatio They've been toying with grand experiment of sett marital troubles out of court stead of it. So far they [illegible] kept 500 marriages on the [illegible] side of the door.

ANGER AND DESPAIR

"People come to the court moments of anger, jealousy, despair, to seek legal redress said the secretary of the Domestic Relations Court committee the Welfare Council. "O method is simple. We find o what is wrong with the home life physical and mental [illegible] conflicts in the family group and try to help cure them, rather than by redress through legal action." If that's not sheer horse sense I'm a Siamese twin.

In England special courts have been instituted that seek to save a minimum of 1000 marriages a year. Magistrates who understand matrimonial cases, lads who are unmarried, I hope, are in charge of investigators and cures.

There should be more su courts in America.

The easiest thing I [illegible] is to hear other people's [illegible] bravely. The next is [illegible] advice. I'll presume [illegible] and prove how [illegible] solved marriages w[illegible] intact if the bone of [illegible] had been first chewed [illegible] experts and [illegible] couples OUTSIDE [illegible] Court.

CUPID IS SHOT

Mrs. Gordon Coburn of [illegible]ford, Mass. was granted a divorce because during a telephone conversation with her husband he threatened to shoot her—and did. He discharged a revolver close the transmitter and shot Mrs. Coburn's love to pieces.

A cowardly thing for Mr. Coburn to do. But there is something missing from the story. What did Mrs. Coburn say [illegible] Mr. Coburn that so enraged [illegible] that he wanted to shoot her?

A case lady from a Welfare Council could have explained all this to Mrs. Coburn and had her modify her telephone conversation and, or her supply of home liquor.

If this failed, they could have been made to laugh. A marriage seldom ends in divorce when husband and wife have something to laugh about—even if it's only each other.

It's the Great Dizzy Dean :·: Are There 45 Wins in Those Cards? :·: Two Diamond Aces From the Same Pack

DIZZY DEAN

Looks pretty good, eh? And who'd say no? For here is none other than the great Dizzy Dean, pitcher, and debater extraordinary of the Cardinals, who were to tackle the Braves at the Wigwam this afternoon. Dizzy is no shrinking violet, as this shot indicates. (Pictures by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

MRS. "DIZZY" DEAN — PAUL DEAN — DIZZY DEAN

"How about it, Mrs. Dean," said Husband Dizzy and Brother-in-Law Paul, "Are there 45 victories in those cards for this year?" A vital query for the two great hurlers, who have won 43 games of 84 taken by the Cards. Dizzy has won 26, Paul 17. And they're shooting for the 45 conquests. No wonder they're interested in Mrs. Dean's fortune-telling. Even if they haven't much real faith in the cards' predictions, it is comforting to be told nice things about their diamond present and future.

PAUL DEAN — DIZZY DEAN

Two aces of diamonds from the same pack and Paul and Dizzy. A famed pair of brothers, these, who know they are great pitchers, tell the world all about it, and then back up their words with winning efforts on the hill. And how they stick together! You just can't start a debate with one Dean. Either in a game or out. If you knock one off the mound (that happens seldom), the other goes to work and fans you. One of the most valuable pairs in the nation's favorite game are the brothers Dean.

ERA Gives College Football a Legup
Cubs Cozen Braves
Sington Ties Up Endeavour's Record
N. B. A. Makes Threat

By AUSTEN LAKE

A LOVING GOVERNMENT HAS COME to the rescue of football coaches who have been worried daft about the many stout tackles and footfast backs who are unable to pay their college keep.

Now comes the ERA (Emergency Relief Act) with a fund of $13,500,000, which may be tapped by needy students to the extent of $15 a month—you have no idea how long a needy student can live on this small sum. And the ERA will not discriminate against athletes.

Austen Lake

Thus many a shaggy-haired lad with piano legs and a washboard stomach, who otherwise would have spent the season on the end of a hoe handle or cranking a gasolene pump, will come back to his varsity this fall.

Only thing that the ERA has overlooked now is caring for indigent baseball players whose livelihood has been snatched away by collapsing minor leagues and who have spent the season trudging the railties, with a uniform roll in one hand and a pet bat in the other, sleeping in haystacks and looking for jobs on village nines for the sake of board and cigaret money.

A FOUL BALL CAROMED OFF THE BAT at Navin Field, Detroit, and struck Mrs. Babe Ruth on the arm, raising a sore, purple welt. The Babe, himself crippled by a muscle snarl in his thigh, hopped up to have a look and said: "Nothing serious, but she'll be out for the rest of the series, except maybe as a pinch hitter."

FROM A RELIABLE SOURCE, I LEARN that the Cubs, eager to mend their fences before next year, are ogling the Braves for Wally Berger, Ed Brandt and Pinky Whitney.

They would like, if you don't mind, to give a hefty bale of cash, a pitcher, an infielder and an outfielder, still unnamed. Which sounds like the height of impertinence, since it amounts to asking the Braves for their heart, lungs and stomach, while giving a tonsil, adenoid and appendix in return.

DO YOU REMEMBER THE SMOKE and cinders that the Braves raised about Roy Sington, the Jewish outfielder of the Albany club last month? And how Judge Fuchs offered currency, Frank Hogan, Bob Worthington and Dick Gyselman, all in vain?

Well, the Brooklyn Dodgers have finally lassooed Sington. Not the baseball Dodgers, however, but the pro footballers of that name who are coached by Captain John McEwan, former Holy Cross mentor. In addition to being a baseball prize, valued at $75,000, Sington was a slashing, 200-pound tackle at Alabama last fall.

I'll give odds that before he sets a cleat in the ground, his new owner, Clark Griffith, will descend with a shrill cackle and hustle his precious hide to safety.

THE BRITISH SLOOP ENDEAVOUR is actually the only challenger for the America's Cup which has ever won a cup race on the basis of sheer speed. Shamrock IV took two races in 1920, one when Resolute's throat halyard parted while in a commanding lead and the other due to a sudden shift in wind.

Only other cup challenger to win a race was the Livonia, back in 1871, and in that instance the defender, Columbia, snapped a topmast.

It is a record that has been a bitter dose to the British, who fancy themselves as rulers of the ocean wave.

Kelley Joins Squad at St. Anselm's

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 20—Joe Kelley, all-scholastic halfback at Malden High last year, has enrolled at St. Anselm's and will be used against Holy Cross Saturday.

What the Stars Did

By Associated Press

Van Mungo and Johnny Babich, Dodgers—Checked Pirates with six and eight hits, respectively to win doubleheader.

Tony Lazzeri, Yankees—Drove in two runs with a double as Yanks defeated Tigers.

George Caster, and Joe Cascarella, Athletics—Former held White Sox to four hits in first game and latter allowed only three in second.

McKechnie Happy Frisch Irascible As Rain Falls

By Joe Cashman

If you can't have a ball game, how about a little study in contrasts?

Your envoy would offer as subjects Bill McKechnie and Frankie Frisch, pilots of the Braves and Cardinals, respectively, who've been fighting a losing battle with the weather since Sunday last.

The Tribal chieftain sits in an easy chair at his Hotel Victoria apartment puffing contentedly on his mellowed Meerschaum. All is peaceful and serene.

"This is the life," chirps the canny Scot. "Nothing can beat a pipe, book and easy chair for pleasure unless it be a gun, a dog and the wide open spaces.

CASEY HELPS CAUSE

"Baseball, did you say? There you go spoiling everything. What would I be thinking of that for, when every day I can forget it, my good pal Casey Stengel and his Dodgers shove fourth place money deeper into my pockets, and those of my valiant Braves. We loaf two days and our lead over the Pirates increases from one to two and a half games.

"Hoot mon, one of our scheduled tilts with the Cards can never be played. Unless we can get two in this afternoon, there'll be three washed out forever.

"If we can play, we will, and probably make the Cards sorry that we could. If we can't, it will be o.k. with me as long as the sun shines in Brooklyn.

"Tomorrow, though, and for the rest of the week, I'm pulling for clear skies. I want to take four cracks at those snobbish Giants.

"But while the Dodgers are playing the Pirates, there's nothing sweeter than a book, a pipe and an easy chair."

FRISCH EXPLODES

Standing outside the door of the room assigned to Mr. Frank Frisch, one would think the League of Nations was in session within.

"It's a plot against St. Louis. A nefarious plot," comes screeching through the transom. "D—n the rain! D—n the Braves. D—n the luck!

"We're forced to sit around here twiddling our thumbs while those Giants walk off with the flag. Two games we're supposed to have completed with those Braves, whom we have beaten 11 out of 19 times, and we haven't got a game in. We lose one forever, even if we get in two this afternoon. I want to play three today, and they won't listen.

"If anybody mentions New England climate to me again, I'll shoot him on the spot."

WHY MEN GET GRAY

Afraid to go further in investigating, he pecks through the keyhole.

The room looks like the ruins of the Morro Castle. Furniture is overturned. The phone is on the floor. Torn paper and clothing is strewn all about.

Paul Waner First to Reach 200

New York, Sept. 20 (US)—Paul Waner, Pittsburg's hard-hitting outfielder, is the first major league ball player to bang out 200 or more hits so far this season.

"Big Poison," who also leads the National League in batting with a mark of .357, collected two hits, a single in each game of the Bucs mid-week doubleheader against the Dodgers, and brought his hit total to 201.

HITCHCOCK WILL NEVER PLAY AGAIN

By Pat Robinson
International News Service Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 20—Tommy Hitchcock probably has played his last game of polo.

While watching the East score a surprising 10-8 victory over the West in the first of the series for the polo championships of the United States on Meadow Brook's historic International Field yesterday, one of the powers that be in the world of polo gave me the foregoing information.

My informant told me that Hitchcock's physician had warned him that another severe fall from a horse, such as twice resulted in concussions of the brain for him, undoubtedly would prove fatal.

WILL QUIT SADDLE

My polo friend also added that he knew Hitchcock would follow his doctor's advice and stay out of the saddle.

The end of Hitchcock's career marks the passing of one of the three 10-goal men of the polo world.

The East won because they played as a team. The West, despite the presence of the only other active 10-goal man in the world, Elmer Boeseke, and Cecil Smith, the Texas cowboy, lost because they playd as ruggd individualists rather than as a cohesive unit.

SMITH DEADLY

Individually, Smith and Boeseke were brilliant enough and Smith was deadly in his accuracy whenever the Easterners didn't crowd him too closely.

leeward-windward, with the first leg a 15-mile to the southwest and then a beat back home.

TROUBLE ALONF ON RAINBOW

Both were across the line together, running down the wind and hitting the start at an angle, but with the British boat in the windward berth for the first time in the series.

What little advantage Sopwith and his crew had was lost, however, as they were tardy in setting Annie Oakley spinnaker, which did not draw properly even when set.

Rainbow in the meanwhile had her spinnaker pole out crossing the line and soon had her big kite drawing, although there was trouble aloft and a man had to be sent up in a boatswain's chair to clear it.

The British crew had some trouble setting her Annie Oakley spinnaker, while the Rainbow, her spinnaker boom already rigged before the start, quickly had her big kite drawing.

Once the heavier British ventilated sail filled, however, it pulled Endeavor along faster than the American boat.

The advantage was not unexpected as the blue-hulled challenger had proved herself better down the wind in the first two races.

ENDEAVOR SEIZES LEAD

The light airs—only four knots at the start—were not considered her best breeze, however, as Rainbow went much faster Saturday in conditions similar to those today. That race was declared no contest when neither yacht was able to finish the course within the five-and-a-half-hour time limit.

Endeavour appeared to be slightly ahead at 12 06, 36 minutes after the start, as Vanderbilt, at the helm of Rainbow, vainly attempted to work the defender between the British boat and the breeze.

Endeavour appeared to be increasing her margin over Rainbow with every minute, and at 12 15 had pulled out to a clear advantage.

Both were slightly eastward of a true course to the mark due to Vanderbilt's unsuccessful efforts to blanket the challenger.

The breeze had hauled around slightly to the eastward, but was holding steady at four knots.

RAINBOW STRIKES STRIDE

Sopwith had increased his lead to eight or ten boat lengths at 11:20.

Rainbow finally began to move along and at 12 35 appeared to be holding Endeavour to the eight length lead.

The British boat's big spinnaker is of much greater area than Rainbow's "May West" kite but it did not appear to be drawing any better.

At 12 45 Endeavour was leading the defender by about 750 yards and holdig true to the course for the mark.

Vanderbilt had Rainbow somewhat to the southeastward and had doused his spinnaker and set a Genoa jib.

At 12:55, an hour and 15 minutes after the start, the British challenger had covered over half the 15 miles to the mark.

She doused her spinnaker at that time and set a reaching jib of a larged sail area than Rinbow's Geno. The canvs trailed in the water for a moment, but was quickly hauled inboard.

BIGGER SAILS COUNT

The British sloop began to widen the gap under the new sail spread and at 1 15 had a clear lead of 1000 yards over Rainbow.

Both were moving faster as they neared the mark, and at 1 30 were estimated to be not more than a mile away with their relative positions unchanged.

ADAMS DENIES CUP CHALLENGE

A scornful Yankee chuckle and then:

"That's pure rot."

Thus did Charles Francis Adams, skipper of the Yankee, unsuccessful candidate for the position of defender of the America's yachting cup, dismise today reports from Newport, R. I., that in the event the British challenger Endeavour wins the cup in its races with Rainbow, Adams will challenge the British craft.

Seated in his chair in the Union Trust Company, of which he is president, the patrician sportsman, who was Secretary of the Navy in the Hoover cabinet, smiled, shook his head sadly and asked:

"What will these newspapermen have me doing next?"

SPECTATOR FLEET GROWS AT CUP RACES

(Copyright 1934, by Universal Service.)

At Sea, Aboard Yacht Winchester, Sept. 20—The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes flapped listlessly a brief stretch apart nine miles out at sea.

But, try as hard as they might, every known prescribed remedy, old man Aeolus, god of the wind, just winked and held his pace. His lips were pursed until away past 1:30 o'clock when the official time of waiting expired.

At dawn, when many of the visiting yachtsmen were just rowing back after a gay evening ashore, it was easy to see, regardless of what condition you might happen to be in yourself, that a calm had descended on Narragansett Bay.

FLEET ON HAND EARLY

This probably accounted for an even larger turn-out in the spectator fleet.

Several additional excursion boats from all over the coast were at the starting line an hour before the show—the third event in the battle for the America's cup—was to begin.

A long, easy ground swell still coursed the Atlantic and sent some of the craft assembled reeling all over the place. But it was an oily swell and did not spell a breeze.

The sky was obscured by heavy, low clouds. Smoke rose from funnels straight up. Yacht ensigns lay motionless against masts.

A race just wasn't in the cards that's all, though both contestants had their mainsails up before 11 o'clock, and Endeavour was carrying her huge genoa jib. Five minutes past 11 she took it in, at just about the time that Rainbow ran up two light weather headsails in stops.

Yachting experts gathered a good deal by these maneuvers. They learned immediately just what kind of canvas the big sloops each expected to use in case they were ever again faced by similar calm.

PRESIDENT LEADS WAY

At 11:15, the committee boat posted the 15-minute postponement signal; which it kept aloft until 1:20 p. m.

For an hour or more the crews on both sloops lay upon their decks making little motion whatsoever as they drifted closer and closer together. At 12 15 Endeavour set a small jib staysail, and 51 minutes later Rainbow did likewise.

Perhaps someone somewhere thought he spied a zephyr over the lea. Whatever they thought, nothing materialized. The committee boat did the rest.

Vincent Astor's high sided white yacht, Nourmahal, carrying the President of the United States steamed off in the direction of Long Island Sound ten minutes afterwards.

Behind her went a destroyer and a boat load of White House correspondents. Hyde Park, on the Hudson, was the destination.

The rest of the spectator fleet wheeled about and headed home, hoping for better luck today when Dame Rumor has it Old Boreas will do his stuff in a bigger and better way.

HAKANSON STAR IN NEW ROLE

Coach Al McCoy had just made up his mind to use Jay Hart, 1933 freshman captain, at fullback for the Northeastern U. varsity eleven when Allan Hakanson, veteran halfback, was tried at that post.

Hakanson immediately proved he was no second-stringer by ripping the scrub line to shreds.

Whether Hart or Hakanson starts at fullback, McCoy will be better off than last year. Hakanson, star sprinter, has developed into a punter as well.

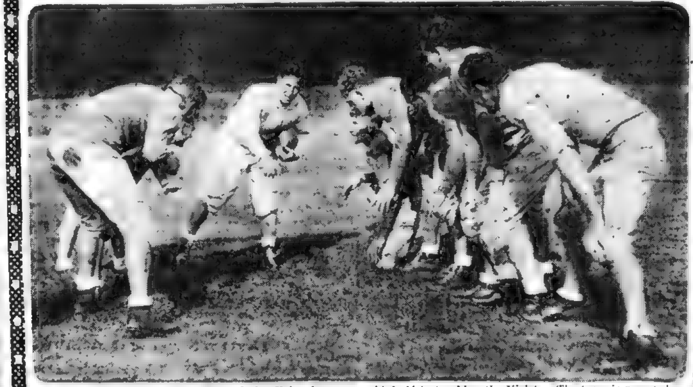
Hart will start at halfback if blonde Allan continues to show his good work. Ken Cahoon is almost sure to win the other halfback job, and Ray Pelletier has cinched the quarterback post.

Shields Advances

Los Angeles, Sept. 20—Frank Shields, Lester Stoefen, Gene Mako, Don Budge and George Lott have reached the quarter-finals on the Pacific Southwest tennis championships.

News From the Football Front Livens as Season Starts

Pop Warner always was a progressive football instructor. The charging machine, and various types of dummies were used by him long before many coaches adopted these grid helps. Here are some of his Temple University players smashing into the dummies. Warner's squad has attained fine condition and is expected to cut a wide swath in intercollegiate battling. This is Warner's second year at Temple.



Albie Booth, former Mitey Mite of the Yale elevens, shows the backfield men at New York University how to do a bit of plain and fancy broken field running. Albie was one of the shiftiest backs of all time as an Eli and is proving a top rank teacher. Albie is Mal Stevens' chief aid in teaching the Violets. The team is reported headed back to the football heights. It has several veterans back, and a number of newcomers. Stevens coached Yale last year. (Pictures by International News Photographer.)

POLICE ESCORT FOR DETROIT HILL ACE

By Universal Service

Detroit, Sept. 20—Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, ace of the mound staff of the Detroit Tigers swallowed his Adam's apple a couple of times in succession today, and mumbled.

"Aw, nobody's gonna kidnap me—especially since they'd have a pretty tough time of it."

And that's what happened to Detroit's newest "kidnap sensation"—which had Rowe on the spot as the object of a deep-dark plot to cripple the Tigers as they approach the World Series with the New York Giants.

Even though his Adam's apple obviously bounced on his breastbone, the schoolboy seemed bored by the reported plot.

He did not explain what he meant by a "tough time," but he evidently did not expect his bodyguard to furnish it, since he hoped to rid himself of the presence of the watchful guardians.

When he learned that Manager Mickey Cochrane had asked for police protection for him, Schoolboy put up a howl but it looked as if he would be over-ruled. He declared

"I've never been bothered with threats either by mail or phone and never have been disturbed in any way. Of course, there's usually a lot of people around whom I don't know, but they're all fans, and they certainly wouldn't bother me.

"I don't like the idea of a bodyguard. One would think I couldn't take care of myself."

M'COY DEFEATS HYATT; WAITS TITLE SHOT

McCoy was promised the bout if he defeated Leo Hyatt in Alex's mid-week show at the Arena, and defeat him he did.

He took the first fall in 20.53 with a flying tackle, lost the second to a top body scissors in 10.56 and settled the issue in 3.10, when he pulled Hyatt over the ropes with a double head chancery and then fell on him for a top body scissors.

Jack Lutze, brother of Nick, went to a 15-minute draw with Freddy Moran, while Bull Martin, usually the headliner, went to a 30-minute draw with Red O'Dell.

ROOKIE PITCHES FOR RED SOX

St. Louis, Sept. 20—Lefty Marcum, just up from Reading, was scheduled to pitch for the Red Sox today in the closing game of the series with the Browns.

Bucky Harris is testing all his rookies as fast as they come up and has uncovered several prospects of promise. First it was Melo Almada, then Frank Graham, then Lefty Hockette and finally young Al Niemiec.

The last named is a former Holy Cross third baseman who has been campaigning at Kansas City all season. He stepped into the lineup at second base here yesterday and was the Sox star of the day.

Al got two hits and accepted nine chances in the field without a slip as the Sox lost, 3 to 2.

ing" of steeds. A uniform method of analyizing horse-saliva, for speed and accuracy, is being taught to track vetenarians.

THE N. B. A. IS NOT ONE OF THE alphabetic departments of the federal government. It is a busybody, fussbudget unit without portfolio, meaning National Boxing Association, which makes resolutions and paperdoll champions.

And now, in convention at Toronto, the N. B. A. refers to amateur boxing as a racket, which it sometimes IS. But it says, naively, if things don't cure themselves soon. "We will take the amateur situation over."

"Yes you will," rejoins the A. A. U., which is a saucy, arrogant body in its own right, "Over our dead bodies."

FROM THE PRELIMINARY READING coming from Holy Cross, one gathers that Dr. Eddie Anderson, the football drillmaster, is in a form of gridiron Paradise, embarrassed by the richness of his material.

If so, Dr. Eddie, who is an old Rockne desciple, will find his Notre Dame experience handy. Because the late Knute Rockne used to have players on his third and fourth teams that would have made Grade-A varsity material for other major colleges.

As it stands now, Holy Cross is regarded the potential Eastern champion. B. C.'s first squad, under guidance of Joe McKenney, is going up Saturday to have a first hand peek.

MICKEY COCHRANE REMARKS THAT he is going to have "Schoolboy" Rowe dish up the first pitching rations to the Giants in the coming world series. "No finessing for us," said he, probably referring to the time in 1929 that Connie Mack sent Howard Ehmke to the firing line and astonished the sporting world.

Mickey is taking precautions to have Rowe handy on the opening day, by hiring a police escort to shadow the pitcher between now and then, a precaution against kidnap rumors.

BARNEY ROSS IS THE ELEVENTH successive welterweight champion to lose his title the first time he defended it . . . On the teletype, which keeps this department posted on late news, came the stuttering announcement, "Braves-Cardinals and international yacht races postponed because of wet weather. Doubleheader tomorrow" . . . The Detroit infield, composed of Greenberg, Gehringer, Rogell and Owen, has not missed playing a single game, intact, this season . . . "General" Crowder, the pitcher who was not good enough for the seventh place Senators and was passed up by all the other clubs in the American League before Detroit took him at the waiver price, is being credited by Cochrane as the man who raised his club to glory.

DIETZ TO TEST NEW STARS

Virtually the same Redskins' line-up which started against the Pittsburgh Pirates are to play the Manchester Pros at the New Hampshire city next Sunday afternoon. There will be two exceptions.

Orien Crow and Hank Ellstrom are to give way to Frank Bausch and Doug Wycoff, a pair who earned their spurs at the center and fullback positions, respectively.

This in no way implies that the former holders of these berths have been displaced. But it does mean that the two pairs must battle to retain first team rating.

BIG THREE OF SCHOOL FOOTBALL PLAY SATURDAY

Mr. Boston Says:—

Browning-George Go Holds Public Interest

"Dave" Sullivan

By Jack Conway

I WAS talking with Tommy Parle, who has charge of the sale of tickets for the Ed Don George-Jim Browning world heavyweight wrestling championship bout, which will be staged by the Crosscup-Pishon Post at the Garden on September 28.

"The most remarkable thing about this match," said Parle, "is the fact there were virtually no return of tickets when we shifted the bout from Fenway Park to the Garden. In fact we improved our cash position as most persons exchanging tickets increased the size of their orders.

Mr Boston

"This is due to the fact there is more certainty about an indoor show taking place than one that is billed for the open air. I believe September is too late for outdoor shows.

"Our experience with the George-Browning match, and the difficulties the New York promoters had with the Ross-McLarnin go proved this to be so.

"When I was associated with Tom Goodwin in the promotion of boxing, we had a bout between Jim Maloney and King Solomon, billed for Braves Field, postponed so often that we finally ran into a snow storm, and then switched the attraction to Mechanics Building.

"I find that many persons believe Browning will lick George. This is one of the reasons they are so keenly interested in the coming title bout. Fans like to see a title change hands."

"Dave" Sullivan

THE DEATH of David Copperfield Sullivan associated with the advertising department of this newspaper over a period of a quarter of a century is a personal loss to all who knew him. Dave was considered a leader in the advertising field.

He probably created more new advertising accounts than anybody in Boston. He was able to show business men the advantages of advertising their wares.

His ability to write attractive advertisements brought great success to the accounts he handled. He was responsible for skyrocketing ordinary business into the million dollar class.

"Dave" is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Egan Sullivan who before her marriage, was associated with this newspaper.

The funeral will be from "Dave's" late home at No. 9 Commonwealth Terrace tomorrow morning with services at 10 o'clock at St. Aidan's Church, Brookline.

Ross Got $11,651

BARNEY ROSS received $11,651 as his share of the purse for his recent bout with Jimmy McLarnin. The latter pulled down $27,325. All of which proved there is still plenty of money in the boxing game for fighters who can fight.

The gross receipts amounted to $138,907, while the net after payment of federal and state taxes was $115,599. The Milk Fund received $11,478 as its share of the receipts.

Boxing, most abused of sports, has done more to help charitable causes than any other branch of athletics. Wrestling is a close second, baseball third and most other sports in the also ran class.

Rodeo for Garden

COL. W. T. JOHNSON'S rodeo will return to the Garden on November 1, and will wind up its performances on November 12. Col. Johnson, as in the past, will promote the kind of show he thinks gives the most thrills. Which means Boston will have a first class offering.

Amateur Boxing Bouts

GEORGE FREEMAN announces that the Irish American A. A. will open its amateur boxing season on September 27 when it stages a show at its clubhouse in South Boston. There will be contests at 126, 135, 147 and in the heavyweight division.

Uncle Sam Helps Fans Bury Tiger Office Help

With their team practically assured the American League bunting, Detroit populace, baseball temperatures running high, have gone World Series conscious and the office force of Navin's Tigers are hard pressed to handle the rush of applications for the late season classic. The clerical force has been augmented and an improvised office has been set up to handle the flood of mail. Thirty thousand letters were received on the very first day. Big 3 of School Football to Open on Saturday

By Bill Connell

Many of the top flight elevens move into full stride Saturday with few setups listed. Malden, Everett and Salem, probably the big three of this year's play, have stiff assignments.

Salem expects a hard game, though not by any means a defeat when it plays host to Marblehead. The Headers have much good material and will be fit to force Salem to its best efforts.

MAY BE UNDEFEATED

Bill Broderick's Witches appear better now than at a corresponding point in any of the last few seasons. They have enough weight, and more than enough speed. If the quarterbacking attains the high standard of last year, when Bill Peckham ran the team, Salem may be unbeaten.

Everett which missed out by one defeat on its title try last fall opens against Warwick from Rhode Island. The absence of Halfback Bill Piccione, veteran, weakens Everett a bit but not enough to affect its probable win over Warwick.

Malden beaten only once in the regular season last fall starts against Wakefield. The latter gave Malden rugged early season sessions in the past and will this week. But Warren McGuirk again is doing a great building job for Malden and his team will start off with a win.

Lexington at Lawrence, Arlington at Newton, Leominster at Lowell and Cambridge Latin at Woburn are other excellent games.

BARRY NOW PRINCIPAL

Lowell's bow is interesting. There was weeping, wailing and gnashing of Lowell's collective teeth through the team's wretched march of 1933. Now Tom Keady is teaching Lowell its football, and under his experienced and capable guidance the school will move back up in the grid whirl.

Bart McDonough is another new coach, at Woburn. There Arthur Barry worked wonders last season with the material at hand. Barry has forgotten football and assumed the principal's berth at Peabody.

McDonough has a few experienced hands as he starts construction work, but will scarcely be able to halt the Cantabs.

SCRIMMAGE BAN AT HEIGHTS

Rather than run the risk of injuring any of his football warriors, Coach Joe McKenney of Boston College has refrained from any scrimmages on the wet and slippery practice field.

Five days of intermittent rains have made the footing treacherous and even the customary grass drills have been eliminated. Practice has been limited to contact work, kicking and passing workouts, signal drills and brushing up on the formations.

Although handicapped by a lack of weight, Eddie O'Brien former Captain of the Jamaica Plain High School eleven is making a great bid for the centre berth.

Defensively and in passing the ball he has no peer at the Heights and he hopes these qualities will offset his lack of poundage.

A stiff seven game schedule has been booked for the freshmen, opening with the traditional struggle against the varsity next Tuesday.

U. S. Army Four Wins

Washington, Sept. 20—An American army four defeated an invading Mexican army polo team in the opening game of a three-game series here, 11 to 6.

PASSING GAME WORRIES B. U.

Passing and kicking, two vital parts of a football offense are Coach Pat Hanley's greatest worry at present. The Boston University backs have been so slow in learning the new system of flipping passes and booting that the running attack will probably have to play a big part against Brown a week from Saturday.

Coach Hanley and his backfield assistant Walt Holmer have been showing the Terrier backs the best way to heave the small sized ball for three weeks but the ball toters seem to lack the accuracy needed.

The new scientific methods of kicking have not registered entirely as yet, and the coaches hope that one or two may suddenly get the knack within the next week.

Warren McNamara, George Pattison, Ray Maddocks, George Timson and Bill Croke are all being drilled in both departments.

The running attack has been Coach Hanley's only source of joy. The backs have picked up the Warner reverses nicely, and they have been executing them perfectly in practice.

Hot Off the Gridiron

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 20—Coach Jimmy Crowley put his Fordham varsity eleven through their paces today while concentrating on the development of a star end to work with Lester Borden, captain. In yesterday's practice, which lasted some three hours, Steve Sarola, 168 pounds; Ralph Wolfendale, 220 pounds, and Julius Miskinis, who may be schooled to replace Johnny Del Isola, the Maroon's all-American center of last season, came in for exceptional attention.

New York, Sept. 20—When the Manhattan football squad opens its season against St. Bonaventure in Ebbets Field this Saturday night at least seven sophomores will be in the lineup with several more on the sidelines. Joe Gallagher, 203-pound second-year man, did outstanding work at end position in yesterday's scrimmage.

Lake Sebago, N. Y., Sept. 20 (INS)—New plays were practiced by two teams making up the N. Y. U. squad in a two-hour drill yesterday. Coach Marvin A. Stevens said vigorous scrimmage will be held in the two remaining days at camp here.

Gales Ferry, Conn., Sept. 20 (INS)—Jerry Roscoe, star quarterback last year, and Phil Tyson, fullback, were particularly brilliant in yesterday's drill by the Yale football outfit under Coach Ducky Pond.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 20 (INS)—Coach Fritz Crisler put the Princeton Tigers through intensive practice today moulding them into what he believes to equal last years undefeated squad. With eight regulars of 1933 and numerous experienced second year men present, it looks as if the Tigers will come up to eastern expectations this year.

Al Niemic Stars in Debut With Sox

By Joe Cashman

Much too late, the Yanks finally took a fall out of the coming champion Detroit Tigers. After being held scoreless for 20 innings by the Bengal pitchers, the second-place New Yorkers landed on Eldon Auker's underhand shoots to take the third game of the series, 5 to 2.

The Cochrane crew has a 6½ game lead entering the final tilt of the engagement today.

"Lefty" Richmond, Baltimore rookie who won for the Braves on Sunday, held his own with "Tarzan" Parmelee until the eighth when the world champions landed on him for four runs.

Al Niemic, former Holy Cross third baseman and a native of Bridgeport, was the star Red Sox rookie in the third game of the series in St. Louis, which went to the Browns, 3 to 2.

The young infielder from Kansas City played second base, made two of the Sox six hits and accepted nine chances without an error. The Browns scored all their runs off Johnny Welch in the sixth. "Lefty" Grove stoped them dead thereafter.

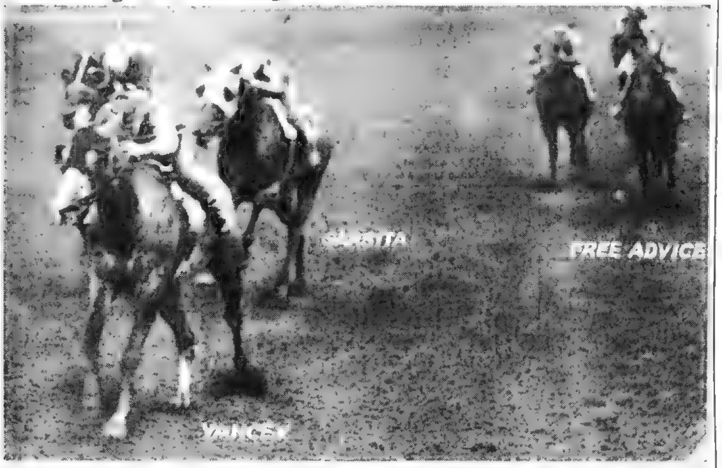
SWEEPOGAN WILSON BEST BET

Rare Sight at Rockingham as Favorite Comes Through



There were eight races on the mid-week card at Rockingham, and of the eight only one favorite won his race. That was Mrs. K. McMann's Yancey in the first race of the day. Yancey paid only $5.20. (Picture by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

STRENUOUS, a scheduled starter for today, should experience little difficulty in handling this ordinary lot if sent right back. The J. L. Roberts-trained thoroughbred is the speed of the party. HAPPY SCOT has been finishing close up in most of his recent starts. With little or nothing left in the race, the Scotch Broom colt appears to have the place award at his mercy. JIM ORMONT displayed considerable improvement in his last start and should be along in time to save the short end of the spoils.

LITTLE WING, DOORKEEPER, CHIMNEY TOP

THIRD RACE—$500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs

Chimney Top	107	Coming Back	104
Little Wings	109	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible] Queen	109	Tenless	x101
Doorkeeper	109

LITTLE WING just failed to earn brackets in his last two outings. Last out he was [illegible] in the final strides by Par[illegible] Prior to that, the Christmas [illegible] placed to Pompohone. DOORKEEPER has been [illegible] speed in longer races a[illegible] well suited by the distan[illegible] affair. CHIMNEY TOP [illegible] against it in his recent out[illegible] is entitled to some c[illegible] a field of this sort.

MORNING MAIL, JESSIE D. M., MOLLY GREENOCK

Irokta	x95	Molly Greenock	103
Light Brook	111	Teddy Car	x101
Jessie D. M.	x102	Morning Mail	x106

MORNING MAIL turned in a corking effort to place to Cloud Sweeper in his only start at this session. The Baron, coatbearer, has drawn an outside post position and should escape all early interference. JESSIE D. M. [illegible] faint hearted miss [illegible] main danger. MOLLY GREENOCK, a winner of her last three races, is moving up a long ways, but there is no telling just how good she really is.

Rockingham Park Race Selections

By Dave Wilson

FOR FRIDAY, SEPT. 21

1—Sweepogan, On Our Way, Weedidit.
2—Strenuous, Happy Scot, Jim Ormont.
3—Little Wing, Doorkeeper, Chimney Top.
5—Village Vamp, Friar Mark, Ukraine.
6—Timber Trump, Panbula, Secular.
7—Moralist, Scotch Soldier, Legender.

BEST BET—SWEEPOGAN.

VILLAGE VAMP, FRIAR MARK, UKRAINE

FIFTH RACE—$1000, claiming, three-[illegible]

[illegible]

VILLAGE VAMP has [illegible] to head a field of this sort. The daughter of Supremus closed a world of ground to finish fourth behind Lauretta Nash last out. FRIAR MARK has been freshened up since the recent Narragansett meeting and should be ready for a good effort. UKRAINE has had quite a bit of it during the past few days, but with little or nothing left, he should have little trouble in snaring the short award.

TIMBER TRUMP, PANBULA, SECULAR

SIXTH RACE—$800, claiming, maiden three-year-olds and up, five and one half furlongs

Ede	103	Silver Wreck	103
Panbula	107	Grande Prince	x104
Bottled Bourbon	104	Timber Trump	x106
Crystal Ann	103	Secular	106
The Rake	109

TIMBER TRUMP was off in a tangle the other day. After being straightened out the daughter of Tall Timber closed like a [illegible] on fire to share fourth money behind Nimbus. PANBULA, which was beaten only a nose for all the money in that same affair, figures to offer the contention. SECULAR was third in that same race and looks next best.

MORALIST, SCOTCH SOLDIER, LEGENDER

SEVENTH RACE—$[illegible], claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile

[illegible]

MORALIST [illegible] to master a field of this sort, just a question [illegible] back to any of his recent good races. SCOTCH SOLDIER looms as the main danger off his last winning race, which was run in excellent time. Legender's last race was too poor to be true. Mayhap that he will wake up and win the whole affair.

Rugby Star Excells on Gridiron

By Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 20.—Ira P[illegible] is putting some English on the football these days at Transylvania College, and Coach James Shannon believes this young Bible student is the only football player in America who can get off a punt, and a good one, while running at full speed.

Patern[illegible] learned the trick while playing [illegible] in Australia. The Australian game, he explains, is a cross between English rugby and American basketball—you can't pause to take aim when you boot the ball.

Born in Lexington of English parents, P[illegible] went to Australia as a small child. Now he is back here studying for the ministry.

[illegible] drawback by the same [illegible] difficulty in getting off punts from scrimmage while being charged by opposing linemen. The coach thinks he'll get used to that in a few more weeks.

Chicago Set for Lewis-Londos Go

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP)—Promised a real "shooting match," a crowd of 30,000 is expected at Wrigley Field tonight to watch old Ed (Strangler) Lewis attempt to take the world's heavyweight wrestling championship from Jim Londos of Greece.

The match, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune, is supported by another wrestling event and four boxing battles, including a 10-round skirmish between King Levinsky and Art Sykes, Elmira, N. Y., heavyweight. Gross receipts for the show are expected to total $85,000.

New Films at First-Run Theaters

The new film fare for the coming week at Boston's first run picture houses starts today on the Paramount and Fenway screens with "The World Moves On," featuring Madeleine Carroll, English picture star, and Franchot Tone in the leading roles. Others prominent in the supporting cast are Reginald Denny, Louise Dresser, Siegfried Rumann and Dudley Digges.

Mae West's latest film, "Belle of the Nineties," is the attraction at the Metropolitan tomorrow, with a story by the star herself, several songs which she sings to the accompaniment of Duke Ellington and his orchestra, and a cast that includes Roger Pryor, John Mack Brown, John Miljan and Katherine DeMille.

A musical revue featuring Borrah Minevitch and his Harmonica Rascals headlines the new stage presentation, a comedy of the Golden West entitled "Indian-Oola." Pansy, billed as the human horse; Miriam Lax, Ray Thorne and the Elida Ballet contribute to the stage show, and Fabien Sevitsky conducts the Grand Orchestra.

"The Barretts of Wimpole Street," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen adaptation of the famous Rudolph Besier play of the same name, brings Norma Shearer in the star role of Elizabeth Barrett to the screen at Loew's State for the new program opening tomorrow. Miss Shearer has the role created by Katharine Cornell in the dramatic production, and her supporting cast is headed by Fredric March as the poet Browning, Charles Laughton as the senior Barrett and Maureen O'Sullivan as Henrietta Barrett.

Today's new program at the Fine Arts offers another of the Alexandre Dumas stories, with the all French version of "The Three Musketeers" the attraction.

At the RKO Boston tomorrow the new screen attraction is Colleen Moore in Hawthorne's famous story, The Scarlet Letter. Hardie Albright plays opposite the star and Henry B. Walthall, William Farnum, Alan Hale and Cora Sue Collins are in the supporting cast. A new all-star vaudeville program, Ranny Weeks and his orchestra and short film subjects complete the program.

"The Count of Monte Cristo," co-starring Robert Donat and Elissa Landi, will be held over for another week at the Keith-Memorial.

A Lady in Fine Feathers

Yacht Races in New Hearst Reel

In the new edition of Hearst Metrotone News, now at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, are the Globe-Trotter's interesting comments and thrilling pictures of the British challenger, Endeavour, winning the first race for America's Cup. The race was filmed from the air, and in addition to the exciting contest, skippers Sopwith and Vanderbilt talk for the cameraman before the race. President Roosevelt is seen as an interested spectator from Vincent Astor's yacht, Nourmahal.

The $98,000 Futurity racing classic at Belmont is another of the famous events in the sporting world caught by the news reel camera, with J. E. Widener's colt, Chance Sun, leading the field of thirteen for the $78,000 award.

Fresh from his triumph in England where he won the British amateur golf title, Lawson Little wins the American crown at The Country Club in Brookline in a final contest with Dave Goldman, Dallas, Tex., carpenter.

Among the other interesting events of international importance in the Globe Trotter's review are scenes of the great textile strike in Woonsocket; Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army, in a brief talk; the Lipton Trophy outboard motor championship races on the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia; and the triumphant victory of the St. Louis Cardinals over the New York Giants in the record-breaking double-header at the Polo Grounds.

Dorothy Maye at Howard

Continuing at the Old Howard is "Spices of 1935," with that versatile star of burlesque, Dorothy Maye, heading the cast of the big musical revue. Many favorites are featured with the production, which is another of the Independent circuit's outstanding shows. Margie Lee, Jean Rose, John Grant, Vic Plant, the clever tramp comedian, and Frank Smith, the "tangle talker," share headline honors.

Lights and Shadows

By
George Holland

Today is "As Thousands Cheer" Day at the Rockingham track. It hasn't been unusual in the past to name a feature race after a hit show, but Lou Smith and Eddie Mack have gone the complete distance in paying honor to their friend Sam H. Harris, producer of the grand revue which had a record number of standees at the Shubert Theater last night. Every race on the program was named after some one connected with the show. The first race was the "Sam H. Harris" and the feature was the "As Thousands Cheer" Handicap. Leslie Adams, whom this corner believes is of such value to the show that he should be featured, has been acknowledged by the Rockingham management and a race bears his name.

Hal Forde, who has the appearance of a leading man and who plays Premier MacDonald among other parts in "As Thousands Cheer," will have been on the stage 50 years on November 27. Hal's speckled career has included seven years in the ring and a term in the diamond mines of South Africa. He was a boy acrobat for the three years between seven and 10. The actor will be 56 next month.

* * *

Marilyn Miller dropped into town last night and watched Dorothy Stone playing the part Miss Miller created in "As Thousands Cheer." I can't say whence Miss Miller "dropped" into town because that might be a tip-off to other city editors about a brand new romance that the famous Marilyn may be ready to discuss for her public. Through this paper, of course.

Marilyn Miller

Tamara, who comes to the Colonial Monday, in "Roberta," wears her hair parted in the center and it is long, straight and dark brown. It never has been cut, because she maintains that the public identifies her as Russian, and expects her to wear long hair. Tamara was the first to sing "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

* * *

Milton Shubert is the busiest young man in the theater today. Plays that he produced opened concurrently Monday night in New York, London and Boston. The Boston play is the Owen Davis drama, "Coming Spring" at the Plymouth Theater. New York play was "First Episode", which opened to high praise at the Ritz Theater. "No More Ladies", which Boston approved last season, opened at Wyndham's Theater, London. When he returns next week to New York, Mr. Shubert will be engaged with the forthcoming presentation of "Sexes and Sevens", by Albert Savoir, and Arthur Wimperis, which Harry Wagstaff Gribble is staging. "Something Gay", a comedy by Adelaide Heilbron, the motion-picture writer. Lee Shubert, Milton's uncle, is presenting all these plays. Lee Shubert, by the way, will be in town tonight.

"Coming Spring" is finding a large public in Boston. The show will open in New York a week from next Monday.

Election Returns

Returns from the primary contests throughout the state will be given from the stages of the Old Howard and Bowdoin theatres this afternoon and evening.

RKO COMPANY ARRIVES AT BOULDER DAM TO FILM ACHIEVEMENTS FEATURE

Sally Blane Has Leading Role With Martha Sleeper and Hardie Albright in Cast

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 20—I suppose it's human nature for RKO to do a little chuckling today. After all the talk on Boulder Dam pictures they are the first company to actually be on the spot with camera. "Silver Streak," which features the demon train recently exhibited at the World's Fair, is at the dam this minute getting shots.

The story sounds to me like a [illegible] progress yarn since it has the Boulder Dam and a few other 1934 achievements are being shown. The cast up to now is Sally Blane for the lead, Martha Sleeper for the second lead and here's an interesting angle. In the same picture is Martha's bridegroom, Hardie Albright.

Louella O. Parsons

I don't know whether this was before Warner Brothers plan to make a Boulder Dam yarn with James Cagney. I shouldn't think [illegible] the stories planned by RKO and Warners are entirely different.

* * *

Smiles of relief once more on David Selznick's face. The camera is getting scenes from "David Copperfield" because, after all the weeks of worry and uncertainty Freddie Bartholomew, the English child, is on the lot ready to begin on his part in the Dickens' story. Freddie plays Copperfield as a child and that's something because after two thousand or more tests he proved he is the only child who fulfils Dickens' description. Great day all around for the Selznick side today. Hugh Walpole, English author, decided to do a Robert Benchley and play the vicar of Blunderstone.

Loretta Young

You can put down the name of Loretta Young for Ronald Colman's leading lady in "Clive of India." [illegible] make a [illegible] for I saw Loretta in the Twentieth Century [illegible] being made up [illegible] Darryl Zanuck [illegible] he was delighted with [illegible]. The only fear was that Loretta might not be able to look [illegible] which age she portrays in the first sequence. After seeing her in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back" with Colman I should say the decision will meet with favor from the Colman fans.

You have never seen Puck as Shakespeare [illegible] him until you have seen Mickey Rooney. For the first time a child plays the role and I [illegible] now, that the hundreds of people in Hollywood Bowl gasped with amazement. Max Reinhardt himself says that young Rooney is the best Puck that he has ever had in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Curious the effect Mickey's performance has had all over Hollywood. Today he is the most talked of figure in our town. Jean Harlow, Anita Loos, Bebe Daniels and a dozen others to whom I've talked were thrilled over the way in which this thirteen-year-old boy delivered his lines.

Rudy Vallee will be [illegible] here before we know it and just so he'll have plenty of comedy to accompany his crooning and what-have-you Warners have put Allen Jenkins, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorne in the cast, and they are looking for two more comics. Why not Hugh Herbert? He can make me laugh even when the world looks blackest. The champion piano sitter Helen Morgan, will also be another big shot in this big show, also two orchestras, Rudy's own Connecticut Yankees and Frank and Milt Britton and their band.

Snapshots of Hollywood

EDDIE CANTOR getting the laugh of a life time when HAZEL FORBES and RUBINOFF were introduced at the Bowl as MR. and MRS. RUBINOFF, the violinist accused Eddie of bribing the announcer; then when Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played for "Midsummer Night's Dream" everyone sitting near the CANTORS [illegible] in the big smile. CHARLIE CHAPLIN and GILBERT ROLAND tennis enthusiasts, giving a big dinner for the tennis guests. CAROLE LOMBARD hurrying out to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to hear the details of her part in "Re[illegible]"; her mother remained in New York. DOLORES DEL RIO on the early morning plane bound for Mexico City. JOEL McCREA turning down an enormous offer from British Gaumont because he couldn't tear himself away from FRANCES DEE and the new baby. ANNA STEN, her husband ERNEST FRANKE, and dozens of the elite in the foreign colony at the supper party given in Max Reinhardt's honor by SARI VIERTEL, the autograph hunters near hysterics when they discovered that JOAN CRAWFORD, JEAN HARLOW, MARLENE DIETRICH, BEBE DANIELS, NORMA SHEARER and GLORIA SWANSON sat in adjoining boxes at the opening of the Reinhardt Festival. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Aaron Richmond

Roland Hayes, world famed Negro tenor; Albert Spalding, violinist; and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist and conductor of the Detroit Symphony orchestra; Josef Hofmann, pianist; Angna Enters, dance mime, and the renowned Don Cossacks under the direction of Serge Jaroff are booked for appearances under the Richmond banner with the first concert of the series scheduled for Oct. 24 in Jordan Hall.

The recital season will open in October with Raymond Havens, concert pianist, to be followed at early fall dates by Isabel French, Boston soprano, and Frank Kneisel, violinist. Other noted artists to appear during the coming season are Maria Kurenko, Artur Schnabel, the Vienna Choir Boys and the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe.

Stamp Shows Crater Lake

A supply of the special issue of 6-cent postage stamps of the National Parks series has been received in Boston, according to an announcement made today by Postmaster William E. Hurley.

The new stamp is enclosed in a narrow rule panel border arranged horizontally, and printed in blue ink. Its dimensions are 0.84 by 1.44 inches. A view of Crater Lake National Park, showing portions of the surrounding rim and Wizard Island, occupies the major space within the border.

Film Fare at Tremont

A return showing of the screen [illegible] "Cavalcade" is the feature of the film program opening tomorrow at the Tremont Theatre. The Noel Coward epic, features Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook in the leading roles, is paired with "Too Much Harmony," starring Bing Crosby.

Today's program offers the final showings of "Bolero," with George Raft and Carole Lombard, and "Looking For Trouble," which features Spencer Tracy, Jack Oakie and Constance Cummings.

Two Openings This Week

This week marks the reopening of the Liberty Theater in Dorchester and the Warren Theater in Roxbury, two neighborhood houses that have enjoyed great popularity with movie-goers.

Once more under the management of the M. & P. Publix theaters these two playhouses will again feature the outstanding productions of the major film companies and will present double feature programs at popular prices. At both houses the bills will be changed on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday.

Bowdoin Program

The screen program features Jean Harlow in "The Girl From Missouri," with Franchot Tone and Lionel Barrymore, and "Hat, Coat and Glove," starring Ricardo Cortez and Barbara Robbins.

EASTMAN PLAN AID TO RAIL PROBLEM

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Morton Bodfish

A secretary of transportation, created to enable the government to direct the affairs of all common carriers. One of the better suggestions that has made, in [illegible] would [illegible] expense. When the railroad executives meet tomorrow in Chicago to act on the proposed Railroad Institute it is hoped that some [illegible] will be forthcoming.

* * *

Shorts—When transportation is mentioned our mind keeps traveling back to Raymond Moriey's remarks in Today . . . His liberal views toward railroads of a few weeks back still appear to have been inspired by administration desires to better the lot of railways . . . Possibly a secretary of transportation will be the answer . . . Massachusetts bankers can not be accused of a lack of interest in the National Housing Act . . . Today the convention of co-operative bank heads heard Morton Bodfish of the United States Building and Loan League . . . Whose organization with Chicago headquarters has financed eight million American homes . . . Mr. Bodfish stressed united nation-wide action of co-operatives in connection with the home modernization campaign.

At just about the same time the bears and blues singers advocated abandoning all hope for the markets prices of equities and liens showed their ability to bounce. A one or two session rally does not make a bull market but it is hard to pass it off as insignificant when it comes from such important levels. Especially is this so in the present instance as sellers had exerted themselves to some extent in an attempt to send the entire list to fresh lows. Now if the industrials climb easily over the 90-92 area there will be cause for cheering.

A special survey of the utility situation by the New England Financial Service has been condensed and is now being distributed. The service in drawing conclusions from its studies makes the suggestion that investors immediately start to make plans to withdraw from power and light securities. Current facts and trends, it is pointed out, are such as to force only one market policy, namely, elimination of stocks from one's list of holdings. From a market standpoint the service believes the most one may expect is relative firmness and slightly rising prices over a period of months.

Comment Opportunism says that if there is anything in the general market outlook to warrant bullishness funds should be put to work in the most advantageous situations . . . That, to us, means switching out of utilities . . . The silvers and smelters have staged quite a comeback after their nose-dive of some weeks ago . . . Steel also shows better tape action than at any time since early summer . . . Bulls are hoping for a near term reaction with volume drying up and a sharp drop in the number of issues traded . . . They will consider such behavior a buying signal.

Sees New England Trade Checked By Strike Activity

As the textile industry is disrupted by the strike, there is very [illegible] chance for New England business to go ahead and make the expected seasonal gain. Trading on the local wool market, which had been very slight for several months, practically is at a standstill.

Sales of cotton, woolen and worsted yarns have dwindled to practically nothing and, although the supply of raw cotton is considerably less than normal, the anticipated rise has been converted into a decline, due to lack of business.

Shipments of woolen goods already made up are coming through somewhat slowly from the mills, [illegible] to supply the needs of the trade, as the piece goods market continues [illegible]. [illegible] on fabrics are moving slowly at somewhat higher prices. Deliveries from the rayon mills are curtailed 25 per cent on account of [illegible] yarns are moving fairly well however.

The volume of orders received by the shoe factories during the week fell off to some extent. Large distributors still are cutting retail prices and in order to meet their requirements for merchants at a [illegible] manufacturers, in some instances, have been obliged to reduce the quality. Tanneries are operating at a moderate rate, and there is a good demand for some of the fancy leather.

They are feeling the pressure for lower prices on all sides, but, in the meantime, the hide market is somewhat firmer. Calfskins show the largest advances, but sales have been moderate.

Department stores in New England report a falling off in sales for August of 4 per cent, as compared with August of last year, although [illegible] the year showed a gain of 9 per cent.

Gold Production Higher in July

Canadian gold production in July totaled 245,516 ounces, an increase of 1.2 per cent over June and a decrease of 4.3 per cent against 1,720,397 in like 1933 period. Ontario led in July with 171,654 ounces.

Quebec produced 31,007 ounces, British Columbia 25,578, Manitoba and Saskatchewan 11,124, Yukon 5727 ounces of alluvial gold and Nova Scotia and Alberta 426 ounces. Quotations for gold during July averaged $34.59 an ounce, at which price the month's output was worth $8,492,398.

Share Prices Higher on Curb

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 20—The Curb Market developed a fairly firm tone today under leadership of utilities, metals and specialties, all of which were in active demand and responded with gains up to ½ point or more. Specialties were quiet and oil shares were inclined to sag. Trading continued active after the execution of overnight orders.

All of the leading utilities displayed quiet strength for the first time in several weeks, during which time a number of them sank dangerously close to the lows of the year. American Gas & Electric advanced nearly a point. American Super Power, Niagara Hudson and Electric Bond & Share improved up ½.

Ford Motor of Canada advanced 5 points on a small turnover and Aluminum Company was one higher. Other shares showing improvement included American Cyanamid "B," Cord Corporation, Garlock Packing.

RAIL FUTURE IS DISCUSSED BY SLOAN

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Copyright 1934, By Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Sept. 20—H. G. Wells once remarked that in this age of specialization progress is made when a specialist steps from his own field to another.

A little more than four months ago, Matthew S. Sloan, eminent public utility executive and engineer, entered railroading. Since becoming executive head of the Missouri Kansas Texas lines, Mr. Sloan, with characteristic energy, has travelled incessantly through the territory served in order to gain a first hand acquaintance with the patrons of the line. He has called upon thousands of shippers.

With his fresh viewpoint and his background of progressive achievement in the electrical utility industry, Mr. Sloan has gathered significant impressions about the future of railroading.

I asked him what he had found out. "These contacts," he told me, "have convinced me that the business man is eager to see the railroad problem solved, that he fully appreciates the values of fast, dependable rail service and that he realizes that his own best interests, and the best interests of the country, lie in legislation that will give the carriers a square deal.

"Relieved of their handicaps and given an opportunity to prosper the railroads will play a highly important part in the business recovery of the entire nation."

Explaining in a sense why he had the courage to enter railroading at a time when general pessimism towards the railroads was approaching flood tide, Mr. Sloan said:

"In spite of conditions not altogether encouraging at the moment, the railroads have a great destiny to fulfill as the country's chief transportation agency. Every one, I believe, concedes the fact that the nation must look to the railroads to transport the bulk of the nation's freight, and that a breakdown of the rail transportation system would produce unthinkable chaos."

Facts Affecting Ingot Production Listed in Survey

New York, Sept. 20. Supporting a forecast that steel ingot operations in remaining months of 1934 will improve only moderately above the low rates of July and August, the Standard Statistics Company of New York calls attention to the following unfavorable factors:

Exhausted backlogs. Mills will be dependent largely upon spot business hereafter.

Convincing as the unfavorable factors are, and recognizing that they outweight favorable indications, the near term steel industry outlook is not wholly without encouraging signs. On the favorable side, the following points are listed:

Heavy consumer inventories are nearing exhaustion and sooner or later will need replenishing.

Railroad equipment in bad shape. Large deficiency in normal rail and equipment buying in past four years has created an enormous backlog of steel demand.

TRADING QUIET IN BOSTON

Issues 1 to 2 lower included American & Continental Corporation, American Telephone, Edison and Old Colony Railroad.

Firm Tone Marks Grain Dealings

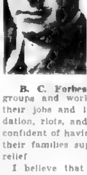
PESSIMISM ON BUSINESS IS OVERDONE

By B. C. FORBES

I believe that pessimism is being overdone.

I believe that October will bring substantial increase in business.



B. C. Forbes

I believe that many stock and second-high grade bond prices will thereafter advance.

I believe that the textile bloodshed will shortly end and that the strike will be settled in a way not calculated (as many employers now fear) to incite other major groups and workers to throw up their jobs and indulge in intimidation, riots, and defiance of law, confident of having themselves and their families supported by public relief.

I believe that the New Deal's sponsors have become disturbed over the results now being reaped, and that reassuring readjustments, amendments, modifications, will be effected.

I believe that NRA threats of "cracking down" are losing their power to terrorize and that, under separation into three co-equal divisions, NRA will some how find ways and means of cooperating more smoothly and helpfully with business hereafter than in the past.

I believe that the new Congress, though it promises to be distinctly Democratic, will not abjectly abdicate its rights, authority, responsibilities, and become obsequiously content to be a pliant rubber stamp.

I believe that the heights of extravagance in governmental expenditures have already been reached and that henceforth thought will be given to how the appalling bill is to be met by taxpayers.

I believe that the reign of the brain trustees is about over and that President Roosevelt will turn to the practical, more experienced, more dependable men for counsel.

I believe that the Chief Executive will by and by realize the necessity of saying and doing more to dissipate the acute uneasiness which prevails throughout business and industry, and to convince the employing class that they can safely go ahead with expenditures, enterprise, expansion.

I believe that on the other hand, if the new dealers fail to revive recovery and faith the nation will sink to perilous depths before another very different new deal is demanded at the polls by American citizens eager to restore and maintain as much as practicable of true-blue Americanism.

I believe, however, that the odds are in favor of avoiding the supreme danger which would be courted by a new economic relapse, collapse, worse than already suffered.

I believe, finally, that come what may, America and Americans ultimately will rise to heights never yet approached.

President H. G. Batcheller, whose Ludlum Steel Company has been celebrating its 80th anniversary, ended an invigorating talk to his fellow-workers with these ringing words:

Improved Tone Marks Bond Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 20—The bond market had a decidedly better tone today, especially in the domestic corporate group, with general interest centered in the low priced carrier issues. United States Government loans were fairly stable although price movements were narrow and trading slightly less active.

Included among rail loans in active demand from the beginning of trading were Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, St. Paul 5s, Erie 5s, Great Northern 4½s, New York Central 5s, which were nearly a point better at slightly less than 62 and Frisco 4½s which sold about 13, Southern Railway 4s, Union Pacific 4s, and Canadian Pacific debenture 4s also were higher.

Obligations of leading oil companies attracted a following after publication of statistical data purporting to show the industry in the best position of the year. Shell Union Oil 5s sold a major fraction above 100, and Texas Corporation 5s within a minor fraction of reaching 103. National Dairy 5¼s gained nearly ½ point and crossed 96. There was a heavy turnover in this issue.

Government bonds were quiet and showed only nominal changes, Liberty issues, with two exceptions, were minor fractions higher and the Treasury notes were steady at slightly higher prices. Home Owners Loan 3s gained around ¼ at 95.30.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
TREASURY DEPARTMENT

BOSTON, September 20, 1934.

Sealed proposals for MASSACHUSETTS SERIAL BONDS amounting to $4,000,000, exempt from Federal and Massachusetts Income Taxes, will be received at the office of the Treasurer and Receiver-General up to 12 o'clock noon on October 1, 1934 at which time they will be publicly opened and read.

The bonds are duly authorized by Acts of the Massachusetts Legislature on account of the following loan:

EMERGENCY PUBLIC WORKS LOAN
$2,400,000 October 1, 1935-October 1, 1944, $240,000 each year
1,600,000 October 1, 1935-October 1, 1939, $320,000 each year

$4,000,000

All the above bonds will be in coupon form of a denomination of $1,000 each and may be exchanged for fully registered bonds. The bonds when put into registered form cannot be re-issued as coupon bonds.

Bidders will name one rate of interest only on the entire $4,000,000 which rate must be a multiple of ¼ of 1%. In comparing bids preference will be given to the bidder whose bid provides for the lowest net interest cost to the Commonwealth (total interest for the duration of the loan from October 1, 1934, less the amount of the premium bid).

Principal and interest will be payable in such funds as are, on the respective dates of payment of such principal and interest, legal tender for the payment of debts due the United States of America.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for two per cent (2%) of the amount bid for, to the order of the Treasurer and Receiver-General of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on a national bank or trust company doing business in this Commonwealth or in the City of New York.

A descriptive circular will be furnished upon request.

Any award by the Treasurer to a successful bidder is subject to the approval of the Governor.

The Treasurer reserves the right to reject any or all bids which are not in his opinion advantageous to the interests of the Commonwealth.

CHARLES F. HURLEY
Treasurer and Receiver-General.

BUYING IN RAILS SENDS SHARES UPWARD

New York, Sept. 20—The stock market developed renewed strength in the final hour today after early hesitancy, with the rails setting the pace for the advance.

Buying of the rails in the final hour was particularly evident, and sent Atchison, Southern Railway, Lackawanna, Union Pacific and several of the lower-priced issues up from fractions to more than a point to their best levels in more than a month.

UTILITIES STRONG

Utilities, which had been depressed earlier, also turned strong near the session's close, and Public Service and Southern California Edison scored gains running to a point.

Mining shares also turned firmer as the profit taking which had beset the group earlier abated and American Smelting got up fractionally.

United States Steel was a laggard making no headway despite strength elsewhere.

Motor stocks including Auburn, General Motors and Chrysler were firm and moderately higher.

Oils, aviations, chemicals, and specialties were firm. Wheat also was strong advancing about a cent a bushel, and cotton about 25 cents a bale.

CREDIT EXTENSION

That the margin situation may be clarified soon was seen in advices from Washington stating that the Federal Reserve experts had completed their recommendations on credit extension by brokers' dealers and bankers for securities trading and that the matter was up before the reserve board officials for final action.

There were some estimates that railroad carloadings for the past week, which will be reported tomorrow, will show a more than seasonal increase. Carrier equities, however, did not appear to be particularly stimulated.

Financial observers were cheered by another gain in bank clearings in the principal cities of the country. For the week ended Sept. 19, Dun & Bradstreet found that clearings totaled $4,863,357,000 and were 4.9 per cent ahead of the aggregate in the same week last year.

In addition to the rise in bank clearings, the Engineering News-Record reported that engineering awards this week would amount to some $27,945,000, in increase of 18 per cent over the prevoius four-week average. Of this total, it was said, public works would account for about $20,866,000.

Frisco Increases Car Loadings

Revenue car loadings handled by St. Louis-San Francisco Railway during the week ended September 15 totaled 14,719, against 12,672 in previous week and 12,850 in same 1933 week.

Pirelli Co. of Italy Pays $8.45 a Share

Pirelli Co. of Italy declared a dividend of $8.45 on the American shares, payable October 6 to stock of record September 28. On March 31, 1934, a cash dividend of $4.25 and 1-24th of a share of Class A stock was declared.

Dollar Lower at Closing in Paris

Paris, Sept. 20 (AP)—The United States dollar lost ½ centime today, closing at 14.9775 francs (6.676 cents to the franc), as compared with yesterday's close of 14.9825 francs (6.674 cents). The opening was at 14.97 francs (6.68 cents).

Dividend on Nat. Cash Register

National Cash Register Company declared a dividend of 12½ cents, payable October 15 to stock of record September 29. Similar payment was made three months ago.

Company stated that orders are running well ahead of last year.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Peter B. Carey, president, Chicago Board of Trade.—"Every attempt to raise prices by force of law has, over a long period of time, met with failure."

Clark, Childs & Keech—There seems to be no reason to qualify opinion to the effect that long commitments made at or near recent lows will show satisfactory profits over the near term.

Josephthal & Co.—While the advance of the past two days can readily be explained on technical grounds, prices have now reached a point where a further rise would have considerable significance, especially if accompanied by an increased volume of trading. It would probably mean that stocks were discounting an improvement in corporate earnings for the last quarter of the year.

Paine, Webber & Co.—At last night's close, prices were pressing against the four-day horizontal shelf established Sept. 10 to 13. A further lift of a fractional point in the average issue would penetrate that resistance area and call for an uprush carrying close to the highs of this month.

James A. Moffett—"Obviously we shall have no recovery and prosperity in the country unless everybody who labors or produces or buys and sells can make a fair profit."

U. S. Smelting to Increase Wages

E. A. Hamilton, general manager of United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Co., announced a sliding scale of wage increases, ranging from 25 cents to 50 cents per day, for all the company's 1500 employes at its Midvale mills and smelter and its mines at Bingham and at Lark in Utah.

NewBrazilExchange Rule Announced

The Bank of Brazil has announced that all exchange derived from exports other than coffee will be free from control henceforth, according to cabled information from American Ambassador Hugh Gibson, Rio de Janeiro, made public by the Department of Commerce.

The new regulation is effective immediately. Coffee exporters must deliver exchange to the authorities at the rate of 155 French francs per bag, or the equivalent in other foreign currencies.

Exchange will be granted at the official rate on all applications presented prior to September 10, under the same conditions as obtained previously. Applications covering merchandise imported hereafter will be granted exchange to the extent of 60 per cent at the official rate, the remaining 40 per cent to be obtained in the free market. All applications will be handled chronologically and in accordance with the degree of necessity of the articles imported.

Virginia Carolina Reports

Report of Virginia Carolina Chemical Corp. and subsidiaries for fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, certified by independent auditors, shows net profit of $492,377 after depreciation, depletion, federal capital stock tax and other deductions. This is equal to $9.05 a share on the 54,372 shares of 7 per cent cumulative dividend prior preference stock of $100 par, excluding shares held in the treasury, on which accumulated unpaid dividends amounted to 17½ per cent at the close of the year.

After allowing for only annual dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preference stock, there was a balance of $111,773, equal to 52 cents a share on the 213,392 shares of 6 per cent cumulative dividend participating preferred stock of $100 par, excluding shares held in the treasury, on which unpaid dividends amounted to 37 per cent at the end of the year. In preceding year the company reported a net loss of $762,828.

Lehigh Income Lower

Severe falling off in shipments of anthracite in line with general business and increase in operating costs experienced by all railroads have been the main factors in the recent disappointing showing of Lehigh Valley.

At end of first quarter a net income of $375,245 after charges was registered, equal after dividend requirements on the 10 per cent preferred to 31 cents a share on common. At end of seven months ended July 31 this had been converted into a loss after charges of $933,955, of which figure July alone accounted for about two-thirds.

BANK PLAN IS APPROVED

By Associated Press

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 20—Upon recommendation of Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy, the Massachusetts Supreme Court today approved a plan of reorganization of the Worcester Bank & Trust Company under which that bank and the Worcester County National Bank, its branches and affiliates, will be combined into one banking unit.

This combined bank will be based upon the charter of the trust company, and will in no way affect or disturb the continued function of its trust department.

Full details of the plan, together with a letter from the commissioner and forms for assent to the plan, are being mailed today to the 4600 holders of certificates of the Worcester Depositors' Corporation.

The plan provides for the release in cash to holders of Class "A" certificates of the Worcester Depositors' Corporation of approximately $2,800,000.

This release will be in the form of checking accounts credits in the trust company equivalent to 40 per cent of the face amounts of the Class "A" certificates so that former depositors of the trust company who are the holders of these certificates will have received in cash a release of approximately 65 per cent of their original deposits.

For the balance of their certificates these former depositors will be given Class "A" preferred stock in the new organization, which stock will have a par value of $10 per share and will be callable at a price of approximately $21.

Rate Reduction by Std. of New Jersey

A reduction of ⅛-cent a gallon, effective September 19, has been made by Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey in gas, oil and fuel oil at New York Terminal. New price is 4⅛ cents for distillate fuel oil, gas oil and standard Diesel fuel.

Juliet, Given O'Hara's Job, Is Puzzled as to Why It Has Been Handed to Her

SYNOPSIS

In the dining room of a Los Angeles hotel, Juliet Rankin is approached by Denton Terhune, well known San Francisco lawyer. Attracted by Juliet's beauty and aloofness, he asks if he might chat with her. Terhune introduces Mary to Madame Hubert, wealthy beauty expert, whom he describes as the oddest and most interesting woman in Los Angeles, and her handsome, young manager, Thomas O'Hara.

O'Hara is worried over the case of a Mrs. Gottlieb who is in a serious condition at the beauty institute due to her heart being too weak to stand the ether administered during a facial operation. Madame Hubert, however, appears unconcerned. She compliments Juliet on her beauty and offers her a position. O'Hara objects strenuously, saying: "Take my advice and keep out of it. I don't like you and you don't like me—we would never get on together."

CHAPTER III

Juliet looked at O'Hara coolly, let her eyes run over his face, his clothes, his hands. All at once she was trembling—but she didn't know why. Never before—except once—had any man affected her that way. Never before . . .

"I wish you'd tell me, Mr. O'Hara," she asked in a strained voice, just why it is that you don't like me."

It was Madame Hubert who answered:

"It's because he knows I admire you and he's afraid you'll get his job."

"YOU'VE GOT THE JOB"

O'Hara got up from his chair. This time he was in earnest and he was leaving.

"Okay with me," he said quietly. "You've got the job right now Miss Rankin. Good night and goodby."

His broad departing back plowed its way out of the laughing and dancing and dining throng.

"Don't you worry, my dear," said Madame Hubert placidly to Juliet. "He'll be at his desk by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning—and so will you."

It was at this precise instant—when O'Hara's face was gone—that she remembered him. It all came back with a swirl that tore like a wolf at her heart . . . that brought a stifled cry of anguish to her bright seductive lips . . .

Madame Hubert began making preparations to leave the Cocoanut Grove which, as midnight approached, was getting more crowded, and noisier, and smokier and gayer.

"Then it's settled, my dear," she told Juliet. "You're a member of the staff now. We'll discuss salary and all that tomorrow. I'll wait in the lounge while you run upstairs and get your wrap."

"You want me to go somewhere—now?"

"We're going back to the Institute," said the older woman with surprising energy. "I don't need much sleep, and you shouldn't at your age. We have a dying woman on our hands—a patient—and something has got to be done."

The Madame got to her feet and Juliet saw that she was a mere wafer of a woman, a dry, croaking whisper of humanity. When she was upstairs in her bleak little room Juliet put on her wrap and paused to give her luxuriant hair a quick combing.

That man O'Hara . . .

LIKE HER DEAD LOVER

Her heart kept twisting and bleeding until she felt dizzy and faint as she continued to think of him. The handsome line of his profile, his black brows, the turn of his head and the swing of his shoulders brought back vividly the old anguish she had hoped to bury forever.

Juliet's past life whirled before her like a merry-go-round. Girlhood in an orphanage. The Middle-Western family that adopted her at 18. Their death and the inheritance of $5000 that had taken her to Chicago. The wild fling at clothes, theaters, hotels, books, dances, all the dreamed-of luxuries of a hungry-hearted girlhood. Then poverty again. Next, New York with a few inconsequential bits on the stage and a luckier fling at art modeling.

Love came to her like forked lightning out of the sky—he was an aviator, a stunt flyer, younger than O'Hara but with the same brows, the same eyes, the same strong masculinity of profile.

Nature, by some cruel caprice, had reproduced, physically, in O'Hara even the mannerisms of that boy whose plane crashed him to death five years ago.

The funeral was held on the day they had set for their wedding . . .

Juliet burned all his photographs and letters. After that nothing mattered. It was no good trying to keep alive something that was dead. A job as social secretary, a better one in an advertising agency, a small stroke of luck with a few stocks.

Grass grew over his grave and the wound in her heart was naught but a scar until O'Hara—tonight—had torn it open.

And now she knew why she had trembled in O'Hara's presence, why those old seething currents had surged once more in her veins. The swift new pain of it was like the onslaught of some dangerous emotional madness.

The aching stress of it was almost more than she could bear, but she knit her resolution together and tried desperately to obliterate all memory, all sensation.

In the lobby O'Hara, waiting, emerged from the depth of a great chair. Without a word he walked beside Juliet and Madame Hubert escorting them to the Madame's limousine. This act of repentance for rudeness kept Juliet from utterly despising him.

GRIP ON HERSELF

She was getting a grip on herself now and was able to ward off the agitation he radiated.

"Good night, madame," he said, holding the door open.

"Lots of luck, Miss Rankin." He stood there with a derisive smile as they drove away.

The tawny greyhound of a limousine sped through streets strange to Juliet—streets with sleepy houses and quiet lawns and drowsy trees slipping past. The late night air swept around the car, saturating it with crisp coolness.

Madame Hubert touched Juliet's arm. "Look!"

Over on the right an ivory-colored tower of a building, bathed in illumination, lifted its graceful proportions in the direction of heaven. The whole city seemed to circle around it. At the base other buildings were dark and squat and despairing.

"The Institute!" said Madame Hubert, with a glow in her voice. Somehow it was as though a song began to throb in Juliet's heart.

"It's gorgeous!" she breathed.

"Thought you'd like it!" chuckled Madame Hubert. "I built it myself out of my own brain."

Juliet could not tear her gaze from the softly luminous Institute. It was a pillar of light, a phosphorescent spire upward flung toward the stars in promise of some mysterious fulfillment. So beautiful it seemed that mist came stealing into her eyes, leaving her feeling pitiably small and excited.

JULIET IS PUZZLED

"Why did you give me this opportunity, Madame Hubert?" she was surprised to hear herself asking. "I'm a stranger—you know absolutely nothing about me."

"Nothing wrong with you, is there?"

"Not that I know of," smiled Juliet. "Nothing, at least, that would interfere with my employment."

"I didn't think so," Madame Hubert told her. "The only danger I see in you is that you might be too attractive to the men. You won't get very far in our business if you start playing with fire. We shall see. Why did I hire you? Well, we need a beautiful thing like you at the Institute to offset my own ugliness. But that isn't the real reason. I'm taking you on because I have an instinct that amounts to genius for finding the right people when I need them."

The immediate need of Madame Hubert and her Institute was a solution of the Gottlieb case. Perhaps the old woman had clutched at Juliet's fresh mind for that very purpose.

At any rate, she laid the whole dangerous situation before Juliet while they were yet in the limousine.

"O'Hara's brain has gone stale on it. So has mine and so has Von Guerdon's. All we do is quarrel at each other. Perhaps you'll have a good idea. We shall see."

GIERA GUARDS GAS SECRET

By Universal Service

Monticello, N. Y., Sept. 20—In an old mansion, securely guarded by vicious dogs, Captain Philip Belfungo Giera, mysterious figure of international intrigue, is conducting his experiments on a new and deadly poison gas.

Captain Giera ignored testimony before the Senate munitions investigating committee that he had served 13 countries in military espionage and insisted he has been working in secret for the U. S. government since 1914.

His surroundings attest to the secrecy in which he works. The mansion itself is three miles from the gate lodge. A lofty tower in the house commands unobstructed view of the territory for miles and a ship's bell swings in its turret.

Twice recently, Giera's life has been in danger. Once a lighted bomb was found in the laboratory and hurled from the building, he said. Then, a discharge from a naval gun wounded him in the thigh during an experiment.

Boston Milk Firms Hearing Date Set

Washington, Sept. 20—The Farm Administration has fixed September 26 as the date of a hearing for two Massachusetts dairy companies charged with violating the Boston milk license.

The companies involved are the Seven Oaks Dairy, Garfield avenue, Somerville, Mass., and the Westwood Farm Milk Company, Jamaica Plain, Boston. The hearing will be held in the Boston federal building.

Confar Boy Safe, Feared Kidnaped

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 20—Jackie Confar, 10-year-old playmate of little Dalbert Aposhian, whose mutilated body was taken from San Diego Bay last summer, was declared safe by police after a previous statement that he had been kidnaped.

The district attorney's office intimated he was being questioned again regarding the Aposhian case.

MIDOL

"I used to read about Midol with raised eyebrows. I wondered how anything could help anyone who had pain like mine every month. Now, I know it's the truth."

Will you be giving these truly remarkable tablets some such endorsement some day? Won't it be too bad if you let months—maybe years—of regular suffering go on before finally deciding to try Midol? You needn't hesitate with anything so widely known and widely endorsed. Don't be afraid of the speed with which Midol takes hold; it is not a narcotic. Midol is as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache.

Many women who now go through this trying time in comfort regret the years they ignored or doubted the definite relief to be had from Midol. It acts immediately, and is effective several hours so two tablets should see you through your worst day. All drug-stores have them; just ask for Midol—today, so you'll be prepared.

1000 HARVARD FRESHMEN DUE

The 299th year of Harvard College opens tomorrow when more than 1000 freshmen will register at Memorial Hall.

Upper classmen also begin to arrive tomorrow and by 5 p. m. Monday registration in all departments of the college will be complete. First classes start Wednesday.

John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President; Kermit Roosevelt, Jr., grandson of former President Theodore Roosevelt, and Henry Parrish Roosevelt, a cousin of Kermit, Jr., will be among the freshmen at Harvard this year. At the Harvard Business School, registration of first year students started today.

Milton Pair Hurt in Ontario Crash

Tillsonburg, Ont., Sept. 20—Charles Ware and Robert Wilder of Milton, Mass., are recovering in the hospital here following an accident when their auto was forced into the ditch to avoid hitting another machine.

NEW YUGOSLAVIA PROTEST SEEN

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 20—Yugoslav newspapers indicated today a counter-protest against "Italian provocation" may be the government's answer to the Italian foreign minister's protest against "virulent" anti-Italian expressions in this nation's press.

The Italian minister here lodged the protest after constant friction between the two nations since the July assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria, an incident which caused both nations to rush troops to the Austrian frontier.

There was no official comment here on Rome's action, but a Yugoslav official declared that a recent visit of General Italo Balbo to Dalmatia, a territory causing contention between the two countries, could be considered only a provocation.

Lectures on Fire Offered Watchmen

The state division of vocational education will conduct a free course for watchmen starting the first Monday during Fire Prevention week, October 7 to 13, and continuing for three consecutive Mondays, in co-operation with the fire prevention committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Through the lectures for watchmen, which are to be given in the Gardner Auditorium of the State House, it is hoped to reduce Massachusetts' annual fire loss of $16,000,000, highest per capita in the nation.

FREE COOKING SCHOOL OPENS NEXT WEEK

The eighth annual free Cooking School, sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, will begin Tuesday, September 25, and will continue for four days. This year it will be held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Bradford.

Martha Lee, director of household economics activities for the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser, will be hostess. Mrs. Frances T. Northcross, lecturer and home maker, will speak again this year at the school.

So much experience, such sound training and enthusiasm have been combined in the work of Mrs. Northcross that she has built for herself a nation-wide reputation as lecturer, home-maker and food specialist, almost without comparison in this country.

There will be daily distributions of valuable gifts such as a Glenwood table top gas range, a Kelvinator refrigerator, Easy electric ironer, Universal electric range, Florence range oil burner, five-piece dinette set, Eureka vacuum cleaner, a number of electric utilities. In addition, 25 valuable market baskets are to be distributed daily to fortunate guests.

TEAR GAS SLUMP BARED IN PROBE

Washington, Sept. 20—Dull days for tear gas salesmen in Buenos Aires and their efforts to liven them up were described in correspondence introduced at the Senate munitions investigation.

"Things are very quiet down here just now, and this being the case, the police don't use any gas from the supplies they have on hand, which means it is bad for us," wrote Raoul Leon, Argentine agent for Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh, to his New York chief, Frank S. Jonas, last June.

"However, I am working on a scheme with the police which may bring about results. This is to have them use up some of the stuff they have by giving the men practice."

Crack New Haven Train Kills Man

Providence, R. I., Sept. 20—An unidentified man about 40 years old was killed by the Merchants Limited, New Haven Railroad flyer, on the outskirts of this city.

Vermont Bandit Suspects Trailed

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 20—State authorities turned their search for two thugs who beat and robbed Elmer Partlow, Brandon merchant, to this city. Several Rutland youths were under suspicion.

Partlow was taken for a "ride," beaten and robbed of a diamond ring and other valuables worth $250.

Man Hurt in Staging Fall

Grateful Mother

This is to certify that my son, Earl W. Hodgdon, at the age of 7 was pronounced by several doctors to have Tuberculosis and they gave little hope for him. I had you treat him for a few months and then his school called for a health certificate. He was examined at the Mass. General Hospital and he was pronounced free from all Tubercular symptoms and all diseased spots healed. Returned to school and has never had a return of his former trouble. He is now 32 years old, married and has two healthy children and is in the best of health, thanks to you. You may use this letter for publication in hope it will help others who suffer as my son suffered. Signed, Mrs. Anne L. Hodgdon, 275 Rock Island Road, Quincy, Mass.

Your Two Feet

Health and Comfort Depend on Them. They Are Life's Foundation.

DR. LOCKE SHOWS REX BEACH, HOW, BY TWISTING THE FOOT, HE CURES NUMEROUS DISEASES

The distinguished writer, Mr. Rex Beach, publishes in COSMOPOLITAN FOR OCTOBER another article about the medical miracle worker who "cures arthritis by twisting your toes."

This description might repel the man of so-called "common sense." Suffering acutely with arthritis in the shoulder, elbows, wrists, he would reasonably ask: "What have my toes to do with the pain in my shoulder?"

That question is answered ingeniously by a Canadian doctor who sits in a swivel chair, in the open air, in the little town of Williamsburg, Ontario, with from one to two thousand people always waiting for him to examine and treat their feet.

After you have read Mr. Rex Beach's article in OCTOBER COSMOPOLITAN you may want, very probably, to investigate extraordinary statements that Rex Beach and other responsible writers have made concerning Dr. Locke removing disease by manipulating the feet of patients.

Dr. Locke, far from being a mere theorist, first studied medicine and became a full-fledged "regular" doctor in Canada and subsequently studied in Edinburg University, concentrating on manipulating surgery. When patients complain that it is foolish to treat a pain in the shoulder manipulating the feet, Dr. Locke replies good naturedly: "When you step on a dog's tail, which is the end that yelps?"

In other words, the place where you feel pain may have nothing to do with the location of the trouble that produces the pain.

The nerves, continually abused, strained and tortured by ignorant treatment of the feet, tight shoes, defective arches that carry the weight of the body, bones pressing on nerves, might in turn affect the mysterious endocrine glands that control all the functions of the body.

A defective thyroid gland will cause permanent idiocy, and injections of thyroid gland extract will restore normal mental conditions while the injections are continued. Who knows how important glands may be affected by incorrect posture and neglected feet?

Dr. Locke, who treats some twelve hundred human beings daily, looking at their feet and manipulating them, sometimes twisting the legs and bending the body over backwards, affirms that he is unable to teach others to do his work, although if his son should take up medicine he hopes that he can teach him.

As it is, the extraordinary Canadian doctor, surrounded every day by hundreds of suffering human beings and thanked daily by many that he has cured, enjoys a profitable monopoly in his line of work.

You take off your shoes, tell him what you think is the matter with you. With his powerful hands, that some of his patients call "ex-ray" hands, he manipulates your feet, and you pay only one dollar for the treatment.

But at the end of the day twelve hundred human beings have each paid one dollar to have their feet looked at and twisted, and twelve hundred dollars in a day is "something."

Rex Beach, who had already written two years ago about Dr. Locke, provides in this second article, published in COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE FOR OCTOBER, details of cures, including cures of blindness, that must amaze all doctors and annoy some.

Patients come to him suffering with arthritis, after they have had tonsils removed and teeth pulled to eliminate the supposed "focus of infection." Dr. Locke does not remove tonsils or teeth, but, according to Rex Beach and thousands of witnesses, he does remove arthritis.

Thanks to Dr. Locke's work and the crowds that he has brought to the little town of Williamsburg, the old village has been transformed into a modern city with good hotels, good roads, plus prosperity.

Ancient miracles performed by the power of religion, according to Rex Beach, are almost equaled by Dr. Locke's extraordinary insight into the complicated human body.

Men and women come to him on stretchers and later come back "under their own power," cheerful and well, to thank him. Children especially are benefited by Dr. Locke's treatment.

Rex Beach writes:

> "In the crowd are a number of children—frail, misshapen, sober little people with aged faces. They wear heavy metal braces or shuffle on twisted feet and on legs that bend like rope. A few are on litters and their shrunken limbs are tied into pitiful knots. One little seven-year-old is riding a velocipede, and I am told that he arrived only a few days before with swollen knees that were as stiff as steel."

Dr. Locke, according to Rex Beach, welcomes all physicians, explains his methods to them.

Sir Morell Mackenzie, the able British throat specialist who operated on the father of the former Kaiser, prolonged his life and thus enabled his wife, a daughter of Queen Victoria, to sit upon the German throne for a little while, once advised a young newspaper man who had broken his ankle badly in Monte Carlo:

> "Don't have your ankle attended to here. Get crutches, go back to London, see a certain 'bone-setter.'"

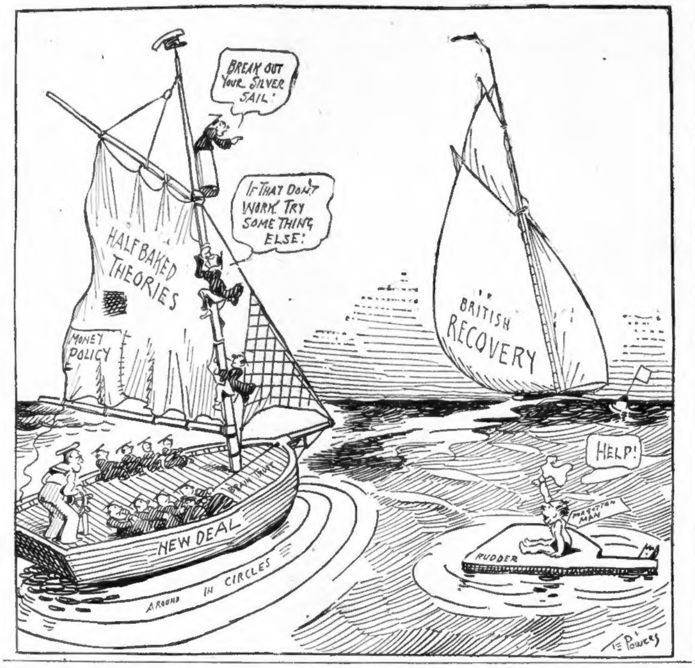
This newspaper does not endorse or guarantee Dr. Locke's ability or his cures, nor does COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE or Rex Beach guarantee them.

We do tell you of the extraordinarily interesting observations made by Rex Beach, an able writer and observer. You may read his article in the COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE FOR OCTOBER.

College Days--- -:- The Professors Will Have to Try Something Else -:- By T. E. Powers



Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

"HOW COULD I DO IT?"

She signs herself "Redhead." And—yes, you've guessed it—it's a typical redhead ruckus. But there's something else in her letter that goes for all of us, without distinction as to color, class, age or creed.

Elsie Robinson

"How," she wails, "could I have done it? I'm supposed to be intelligent. I've fine people behind me, and good training. I really care for the best things in life. Then how could I have made such a common fool of myself?

"Where was my decency, my will power, my refinement—even my sense of humor? How could they all be swept away—leaving a person I've never known before?

"SORRY NOW"

"Oh, I'm sorry now. No one on earth knows how sorry I am—unless they've been through it themselves. And the worst of it is—I don't know how to start over again, for I've lost my faith in myself. If a thing like this can happen to me once, what's to keep it from happening again?"

What's to prevent it happening again? The very thing that caused you to run amuck will prevent it from happening again, Redhead.

No, that isn't a riddle—it's life's deepest truth. The goodness and the badness in us actually spring from one common source. We aren't—as most of us believe—two different people inhabiting one hide, with entirely different qualities.

We're just one person with one set of qualities. And our acts depend simply on how we use those qualities.

Dollfuss, the good man who has just been martyred in Austria, and Dillinger, the bad man who has just been slaughtered in Chicago, were exactly alike in certain particulars, and their acts sprang from the same roots. They were both brave, reckless, rebellious and proud.

They both defied the Status Quo. And they both stood out above other men because of the intensity of these qualities. Their only difference lay in how they used these qualities.

Dollfus used his courage nobly. Dillinger used his villainously. The same trait which made one a GOOD man made the other a BAD man. Yet if someone had taken Dillinger as a little child, and taught him how to turn his great courage and rebellion in the right direction, he might today be as revered as he is despised.

"How could I have done it!" That's what Redhead cries. That's what we all cry with shame and dismay when we've made a mess of things. And we wonder where this mysterious evil spirit came from, which has ousted all our decency and blackened our fine records.

But there is actually no "mysterious evil spirit." There is only that same strength which has hitherto racked our finest acts, which has now run amock.

And the marvel is not that we SOMETIMES make fools of ourselves, but that we don't do it all the time! For it is such a little while since all human beings were Dillingers—living in jungles, following jungle desires. And now we're "civilized," trying to use the same impulse which once made cannibals of us—to build cathedrals!

So don't be hopeless if you've come a cropper. Don't say to yourself, "There's a jinx in me that I can't understand; which may rise any time and wreck my life, no matter how hard I try to make good." Say instead—

"There's a FORCE in me which I can use, either for good or evil, as I, myself, choose. AND I CHOOSE TO USE IT FOR GOOD!"

And while you're saying that about yourself, it might also be well to remember it about the other fellow. He, too, is wondering how he "could have done it," and thinking of himself as a hideaway for some devil. But he isn't. He's just a muddled human being who has used his strength in the wrong way.

And I'm telling you this for your comfort, Kid Redhead. If I had to select a man or a woman for a hard job—one which implied plenty of temptation and punishment as well as honest sweat—I'd take, every time, the human being who'd made a big mistake and lived above it, rather than the Pious Prune with no spot on his or her record.

For I'd know with the once-sinner, that I was dealing with strength. But I could never be sure about the saint.

She Can't Thank You -:- By Winifred Black

Rosalie can't bear to say thank you. She simply cannot endure it.

She doesn't even like to look thank you, or feel it either, I begin to think.

Winifred Black

I've seen Rosalie walk around four blocks and up and down a hill on a hot day to avoid meeting someone who had tried to do her a kindness.

She's intelligent, she's generous, she's kind-hearted, if you aren't as well off or as popular, or as good-looking, or as witty as she would like to be.

Ask all the favors you want of Rosalie and she will do them with smiling and genuine warmth—but do her a favor, ask her to go on a little trip with you, and you pay the expenses—look out for trouble with Rosalie.

She may accept the invitation for one reason or other, but she'll think of a hundred ways to make you uncomfortable.

She'll suggest a different sort of trip—if you ask her to go to Alaska she'll say, "No thanks, I really couldn't make it this year," or she'll say, "Yes thanks, but couldn't you make it Honolulu, that would be so much more fun."

And all the way to either Alaska or Honolulu she will think of a dozen little ways to make you feel that she'd do the thing a lot better if she were the hostess.

Don't ask Rosalie to your house to meet a few really interesting people.

She likes to meet the people but she hates it because you're asking her and she is not asking you.

The way to get Rosalie's everlasting grudge is to do something nice for her that she'd like to do for you—and can't.

I call it plain, old-fashioned envy, and hateful, bitter, small-minded jealousy—and that's that.

TORTURE OF JEALOUSY

Poor Rosalie—she seems such a nice, well-balanced person on the outside, and all the time this cruel wolf of envy is tearing at her heart.

I'd rather be as poor as Job and as old as the hills, and as ugly as a mud fence and as unpopular as a snake—than to suffer from this hideous, tormenting disease of jealousy, which can turn rather an unusually nice woman into a spiteful green-eyed monster.

What is it they used to tell us when manners were manners and breeding was really breeding—oh, yes! "It takes more breeding to receive a favor graciously than it does to give one with grace, and courtesy."

Bad breeding, that's part of the "I'm as good as you are, and don't you dare try to do anything pleasant for me." frame of mind.

Pride, self-respect, why they aren't first cousins to this little mean down-the-back-alley way of looking at things.

Poor Rosalie, isn't it too bad she does so hate to say thank you?

GOLF

If golf I'd never come to know
I had been spared no end of woe.
I might have passed the summers by
Untroubled by a cuppy lie
And only had my peace destroyed
By troubles mortals can't avoid,
But now when I should happy be
What should be pleasure tortures me.

From loss and hurt most men receive
Enough in life to make them grieve
And it would seem the fates designed Sufficient cares of every kind
To try men's courage o'er and o'er
Without their manufacturing more!
But no! Mankind must golf invent
Further to stir up discontent.

Not satisfied throughout the years
With all that causes sighs and tears
And frets the soul, the notion came
That golf would be a pleasant game,
And thus the hook and slice were born
By which the souls of men are torn.
Then they began with frenzied glance
To worry over hook and stance.

Sometimes I wonder as I sigh
In grief above a cuppy lie
Or feel my temper boiling hot
Because I've shanked a mashie shot
And cannot seem to groove my swing
If golf's a necessary thing.
Had I ne'er putted on a green
My life much happier might have been.

Words of Wise

Better be ignorant of a matter than half know it.—Marcus Aurelius.

Tis not the drinking that is to be blamed, but the excess.—Selden.

It is a condition that confronts us—not a theory.—Grover Cleveland.

No legacy is so rich as honesty.—Shakespeare.

Stars and Stripes

Now that Europe has wangled Soviet Russia into the League of Nations, we see no reason why that body, which has died so many natural deaths, can't start something livelier than a funeral.

With a 43 per cent corn crop and a similar reduction in our wheat crop, something's going against the grain.

Human Side of the News; Old-Age Pension Idea

By Edwin C. Hill

The Townsend national old-age pension movement, but lightly touched on in the newspapers, is sweeping eastward from California and now claims 4,200,000 adherents.

It would require the federal government to pay every person 60 years old a monthly pension of $200 to the end of his life, with the provision that he spend the entire amount within the month.

According to the official prospectus of the movement, there would be 10,300,000 persons thus taken out of the competition for jobs; a second condition would be that the recipient of the pension must sacrifice any employment he might have. Funds would be provided by a national sales tax.

Proponents of the plan insist that the dual achievement of removing more than 10,000,000 persons from jobs, and turning $24,000,000,000 each year into the channels of trade and manufactures, would end unemployment and depression.

MOVEMENT GROWING

They also stress the vast gains in the abolition of poor farms and relief agencies for the care of the aged poor. The plan is put forward by Dr. F. E. Townsend, for several years in charge of the care of the indigent sick of Long Beach, California.

Whatever fantastic aspects the scheme may assume in the mind of a detached and rational observer, the fact is that it is a strongly financed, rapidly growing movement, attracting huge audiences, put forward with an active and skillful organization, and quite certain to cross the threshold of the next Congress.

A petition for presentation to Congress already has more than 4,000,000 signatures. The national headquarters are in Los Angeles, where it is incorporated as Old Age Revolving Pensions, Inc.

National organizers are at work throughout the country, and the organization now has branches in 31 states. Organization is now beginning in New Jersey and New York. Funds are obtained by subscriptions and from the sale of booklets and pamphlets describing the plan.

Politically, it apparently is following the methods of the Anti-Saloon League, by which a compact balance of power was used to swing candidates for elections. Leaders of the movement are frank in saying that candidates for Congress will be giving a showing of the power and numbers of the organization.

Out of the long depression of the seventies came Henry George and the single tax. The obscure printer came within a few thousand votes of being elected mayor of New York as his single tax movement, hooted and ridiculed at first, gained ground. Earlier depressions had produced Greenbackers and "Know-Nothings."

TECHNOCRACY'S NEST

Multitudes of people, suffering long years of want and insecurity, look eagerly for a messiah or a messianic plan. One saw this in the quick flare-up of technocracy, which believers in the status quo might have found much more disturbing had it not been for the inept, if not fantastic leadership of Howard Scott. Technocracy was hatched here.

"Sockless Jerry" Simpson flourished in Kansas, and the Ku Klux Klan first grew in the troubled reconstruction days in the South. There is no sectional locale for Utopias. But California seems more intent than any other lotus land in peering through the mists toward the enchanted City of Camelot.

It was in 1898 that Edwin Markham published, in the San Francisco Examiner, "The Man with the Hoe." There was, as now, a Rousseauesque stir and ferment in California. Edwin Markham was lifted to Olympus; Henry George, too, had come from San Francisco.

And now, Upton Sinclair, the literary gad-fly, is keeping the stolid burghers awake nights, as he sweeps the Democratic primary with his Utopian "End Poverty in California" campaign. Concurrently, another such incubus to conservative citizens is the strange secret sect, the Utopians, which is seeping out around the country from California.

California, too, has an elaborate and drastic plan for the re-making of the national economy, providing for the retirement of all workers at the age of forty-five. It is moving eastward rapidly, claiming 5000 converts a day. Its semi-invalid, mystical leader, Eugene P. Reed, is all but canonized by his followers. The society is incorporated in Los Angeles as a "Utopian Society, Western Division." Its support is believed to have aided greatly in the nomination of Upton Sinclair.

Back of all these schemes there is, first of all, a promise of security and provision for old age. Public men have realized that this urgent human demand can and does motivate sometimes erratic political action, and, during the years of depression, the cause of old age pensions has been sharply advanced. Twenty-eight states now have such laws.

Senator Clarence C. Dill is pressing hard for federal legislation. Various associations for social security are organizing and campaigning.

Out of all the bewildering welter of our confused economy, out of all the conflicts of interests and opinions, there is emerging in the minds of the masses the determination that somehow, by any kind of a desperate expedient, some measure of security must be attained. Utopias—from the Timaeus of Plato, down on through Thomas Moore's ideal state, Bacon's New Atlantis, Samuel Butler's Erewhon and William Morris' News from Nowhere—usually are made by old men; old men's visions, rather than young men's dreams.

Naturally they seek security. Young men are less afraid of risks and contention, always hoping to parlay a long shot into something or other.

Dr. John Dewey muses benignly over his Utopia, in which it seems all men are scholars. The eugenists build millenia where all are pole vaulters.

G. B. S. Haldane, the British scientist,—and here is our secret preference — thinks perhaps we have messed up life a whole lot with our febrile mudding and meddling, and that, in his Utopia, there will be regard for Nature's insistence upon variation, and every man will have a chance to be himself. He thinks some kind of salvation may mysteriously emerge from the life stream, but that it can't be put into it by laws and systems.

Just in case you are inclined to regard too lightly these errant mass movements which come in times of stress, think back to a group of fanatics known as the "German Racialists," who were first out in front in 1924.

Their Nordic fallacy was laughed down by everybody who knew anything—but here they are right up in the wheel box in Germany today, with the great Rosenberg state philosophy built on their fantasy.

Aid for Shoe Industry

The great New England shoe industry is making a plea for a common sense solution of its troubles, largely brought about because of the extension of Federal aid to drouth-stricken cattle owners. It should be heeded.

Hides taken from cattle from the drouth-stricken areas became the property of the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation after September 5. And remain a threat to stable hide, leather and shoe markets until plans for their disposal are developed.

Already a proposal to have the government manufacture leather articles has been made. And has caused concern to manufacturers who see their markets literally swept away from them by misguided attempts at relief.

From William R. Martineau of Boston a suggestion comes that has the merit of substantial support by informed leather and shoe interests. Store the hides from drouth cattle. Then, through a series of public auctions, spread over a period of months, gradually dispose of them.

Against this reservoir of readily saleable merchandise the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation can place its orders for leather articles. For it is assured of a fair income in the not too distant future to cover costs.

The result can only be a firm, and some say higher, market for hides. Plus a guarantee that the needy will be cared for with wanted goods produced by those skilled by years of practical experience.

Good Man Resigns

The resignation of Matt B. Jones as president of the New England Telephone Company is received with widespread regret. It becomes effective the last day of this month. A good man gives up the helm.

Mr. Jones is outstanding among public utility leaders in that he has built up a wide circle of friendship among the common people.

Many a young New Englander has heard opportunity knocking at his door and found it was Mr. Jones, offering him the chance to work his way up life's ladder.

He has governed company affairs with Lincoln-like "Charity toward all and malice toward none." May John J. Robinson, Mr. Jones' successor, do as well.
